Defense Tax Compromise Is Discussed At Hearings

Organized Business Continues Attacks On Administration's Excess Profits Levy

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A "defense tax" compromise appeared in the offing last night as organized business continued its unbroken attack on the Administration's proposed 75 percent excess profits levy.

The compromise, being privately considered by a number of House Ways and Means Democrats, would at least partially meet business criticism by tying a moderate increase in regular corporation rates to a considerably softened excess profits tax.

Various forms of the so-called "combination plan" receiving backstage consideration would raise between three and five billion dollars. The Administration's own 75 percent profits levy would raise four billion.

The Committee for Economic Development and the United States Chamber of Commerce meanwhile led off another day of business testimony against the special profits levy.

As the House Ways and Means Committee prepared to close public hearings tonight and spend several days in executive session drafting a bill:

1. J. Cameron Thomson of Minneapolis, representing the CED, urged the committee not to put Congress in the position of choosing "between an excess profits tax of the World War II type and no taxes." Thomson recommended that the committee instead approve a "sound, adequate" program, along the lines of the CED's own proposals to raise six billion dollars in defense taxes, half from increases in regular corporation taxes and half from individuals.

2. Ellsworth C. Alvord, chairman of the Federal Finance Committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, called for a six-billion-dollar cut in nonmilitary expenditures as "the first step" in financing the Nation's rearmament program. Alvord said there is "no necessity for, and no justification of, an excess profits tax applicable to any portion of 1950 or 1951." He said every possible source, including excises, must be explored and tapped "if and when" additional revenues are needed for defense. He said the new revenue "doubtless" will be needed in 1952 and subsequent years.

The search for a compromise that would modify the impact of the Administration's excess profits tax without cutting back revenue goals or violating the "mandate" Congress gave the committee to report back a profits levy, is still very much in the discussion stage.

But one Democratic member, who asked not to be identified, said he definitely will offer a "combination tax" motion when the committee reaches the bill drafting stage. Another key member, Representative Wilbur D. Mills, (D., Ark.) is known to be cosidering a similar motion, linking a modified profits tax with an increase in regular corporation

Drama Seen Daily as Truman Crosses Avenue for Luncheon

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The distance from the west gate of the White House to Blair House is somewhere around 200 yards. A good golfer could reach it with a brassie shot; an excellent one, like Sam Snead, might even prefer an iron.

In earlier days, President Truman used to travel it on foot and welcome the chance for a little fresh air. He was accompanied by Secret Service men, naturally, but he obeyed the red and green traffic lights just like other pedestrians.

Nowadays, his journey is an exciting drama, a spectacle which the onlooker won't soon forget. In all Washington's long history, there has never been anything quite like it.

It goes something like this.

At the luncheon hour, say, Mr. Truman leaves his office in the west wing of the White House and starts for Blair House across the street. A signal is flashed to the new sentry box at the point where West Executive ave. joins with historic Pennsylvania ave. The Chief Executive is on his way.

In a second, the whole scene changes.

Uniformed policemen, now reinforced, swing into action. They face east and west, and their hands go up. Traffic is halted, both vehicular and pedestrian.

"Get back, lady," a policeman yells.

Up West Executive ave. comes a Lincoln with bullet-proof windows. In front are two Secret Service men, one a driver and the other a guard. In back, alone, rides President Truman.

Traveling just behind it is an open Cadillac, either the Queen Mary or the Queen Elizabeth, names that go back to the Roosevelt years. The car is loaded with

200,000 Due To Quit City For Holiday

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

Thanksgiving comes to Washington Thursday with the District's traditional trimming for any Government holiday—heavy "back home" travel.

If forecasts hold up, nearly 200,000 Washingtonians will leave the city beginning at noon today.

Union Station officials expect 120,000 to leave by rail. The American Automobile Association estimated last night that 30,000 to 35,000 residents will travel by car.

Bus companies and airlines either have scheduled extra sections or are holding equipment in reserve. The railroads are planning 20 extra sections in and out of the city. Almost every scheduled train will carry added cars.

Government employes have just Thursday off, but many intend to take Friday on annual leave to make a four-day visit home.

But like a many another resident of the District, President Truman plans to stay here rather than go home to Missouri.

He canceled his usual Thursday press conference to have dinner at Blair House with Mrs. Truman, Margaret, and Mrs. David Wallace, Mrs. Truman's mother.

Mr. Truman's Thanksgiving proclamation urges Americans to be grateful for "the bounties of our soil, for the unequaled production of our mines and factories, and for all the vast resources of our beloved country . . . for

New Sum Reported To Be Earmarked For Construction Of Tritium Plants

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Atomic Energy Commission will request the forthcoming short session of Congress for a substantial sum—certainly more than a quarter of a billion dollars—for the expansion of certain production facilities, it was disclosed yesterday.

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) gave the first intimation yesterday that the AEC will ask for supplemental funds. He made public a letter he received in his capacity as a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee from Carleton Shugg, deputy general manager of the AEC. It said the commission plans to ask Congress for the money as soon as it reconvenes on Monday.

Neither Shugg's letter nor Maybank's comments disclosed the size or details of the expansion program. But from other sources it was indicated that the amount to be requested would be "very substantial" and more than the 260 million dollars which Congress granted the AEC late last summer. The money is to permit construction of facilities to manufacture tritium, the explosive fuel for the hydrogen bomb.

In all, the AEC has received more than 900 million dollars for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30.

Maybank said he would urge Congress to give the AEC all it needed and asked for in its forthcoming requests. He said the atomic program should have first priority in funds voted by the short session.

Shugg's letter said the money will be needed to buy "critical items" of materials and to pay for other "initial expenditures." The funds are needed at once to "avoid delay" in expansion programs, he reported.

Allies Driving Against Reds Near Border

Communist Troops Massed Only 10 Miles From U. S. Outpost; So. Koreans Advance

SEOUL (Wednesday), Nov. 22 (AP). — United States Seventh Division troops advanced in Northeast Korea today toward two Communist battalions reported massed within 10 miles of the American outpost at the Manchurian border.

Bitter cold, biting winds, 3000-foot mountains and faulty maps slowed the push toward Samsu, 10 miles southwest of the border city of Hyesanjin. Other Seventh Division elements took Hyesanjin yesterday on the Yalu River across from Chinese Communist Manchuria.

On the northeast coast, the South Korean Capital Division reported today it was pursuing "a retreating disorganized enemy" near Chongjin, 55 air miles from the Soviet Siberian frontier. The South Koreans approached Naman, 5 miles south of Chongjin.

The Seventeenth Regimental Combat team of the United States Seventh Division dug in today at Hyesanjin without seeing any activity there or across the Yalu River in Manchuria.

Red Battalions Sought

Fifteen miles southwest of Hyesanjin, other division elements moved out of the town of Kyohang on a secondary road toward Samsu, seeking to contact the Red battalions.

Although the South Koreans, moving up the northeast coastal road, had it comparatively easy today, there was an indication of possible trouble ahead.

United States Marine pilots reported their planes encountered heavy antiaircraft fire over Chongjin's industrial southern section. This suggested the Reds may put up a tough battle for the town.

At Hyesanjin, the jubilant Seventeenth Regimental Combat Team planted the United Nations flag and fortified nearby hill positions.

Red Delegates Awaited

China's Plans Still Obscure But Less Worry Is Noted Here

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The mystery of Communist China's intentions was deeper than ever yesterday, although official Washington had lost some of the worry that weighed down upon it a week ago.

In northwestern Korea an estimated 60 to 70 thousand Chinese troops were still reported to be in holding positions from which they could block an advance of United Natons forces to the mouth of the Yalu River.

But air reconnaissance showed them to be still without tanks or artillery, and therefore unable to start an immediate offensive against General Douglas MacArthur's U. N. forces.

Evidently the Chinese have learned something from Secretary of State Dean Acheson, whom their propaganda pictures as a hated enemy. Acheson has been preaching for months that the non-Soviet world must develop "situation of strength" which will compel the other side to negotiate and seek a settlement.

Now the Chinese Communists have developed a "situation of strength" so full of potential menace that the western governments are not only ready to negotiate but are almost panting to do it.

All the work of allied diplomacy over Korea and Formosa has come to a dead stop until a 9-member Chinese Communist delegation arrives in New York this weekend.

The delegation received its American visas in Prague yesterday, and was expected to take off for London today or Thursday on its transatlantic journey. The group is coming here with the avowed purpose of telling the Security Council about alleged American "aggression" in Formosa.

But the fervent hope here—and it is still only a hope—is that the emissaries of the Chinese Communist regime will be willing to talk privately, if not at public U.N.

Four U. S. Agencies Accused Of Costly Defense 'Blunders'

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Four Government agencies were accused by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee yesterday of costly "blunders" and complacency in the defense mobilization effort.

In an interim report on its investigations, the group sharply criticized officials for showing "less prudence than they would display in operating a charity bazaar" by selling war plants and goods as "surplus" after Korean fighting started.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.), also termed our rubber preparedness program "far from satisfactory" and warned that we would find ourselves in a worse situation than during World War II, if war shuts off Southeast Asian supplies.

Centering its castigation on the Munitions Board, General Services Administration, Air Force and Commerce Department, the Johnson Committee was particularly critical of several disposals of "surplus" war plants since last June 25.

"The agencies responsible for the surplus disposal program—primarily the Munitions Board and GSA—have been slow to awaken to the realities of the challenge presented by Communist aggression," said the 37-page report. "The results, in some instances, have been costly to the preparedness program."

At another point, the committee hit out at companies and citizens of our allies for raising monopolistic prices of rubber from 17 to 75 cents during the past year.

Wallace Favors A-Bomb Threat Against Russia

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21 (AP).—Former Vice President Henry A. Wallace said here tonight that the placing of Moscow-trained Communists in key positions in Czechoslovakia convinced him that Russia "wanted a cold war and eventually, perhaps, a hot one."

Participating in a symposium of the Yale Political Union, an undergraduate organization, Wallace made no reference to the atomic bomb in his prepared talk, but in reply to a question from the floor he said:

"It would be a mistake to say we won't drop the atom bomb in the state the world is in today.

U. S. Supports Call for Probe Of Russia's Role in China

Moscow Is Accused By Tsiang in U. N.; Britain and Arabs Opposed to Move

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 21 (AP). — Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang today charged the Russians are trying to force the Moscow brand of communism on China's millions. He appealed for an impartial United Nations commission to investigate Russia's conduct in China.

The Soviet Union, Britain and Arab countries opposed such a group, while the United States held such an investigation would be beneficial.

Tsiang told the 60-nation political committee that 45,000 Russian agents are clamping controls on all aspects of life for the 450 million Chinese. He said resistance forces on the mainland are growing phenomenally.

J. E. Coulson, British spokesman, whose government has recognized the Communist regime, said opinions would not be changed by such an investigation. He warned that anything embittering the Far East cannot do anything but harm.

Syria and Egypt Opposed

Russia demanded that the committee throw out the Tsiang proposal. Delegates of Syria and Egypt reported they could not go along with Tsiang.

Tsiang, whose government has retired to Formosa, said resistance forces on the mainland totaled 1,667,000 men during the first half of 1950. He said these forces killed or wounded 154,811 Communists in 1321 reported clashes in that period.

Tsiang charged Russia had ignored an appeal of the 1949 Assembly to all nations to refrain from interfering in China's internal affairs. He said Russia is responsible for Chinese Communist intervention in Korea and for most of the unrest in Asia.

John Foster Dulles, United States delegate, indorsed Tsiang's plea.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik replied that Tsiang's whole case is made up of "lies and fabrications" against the Chinese people and resembles a "letter from a death house, a ghost house."

Tsiang said:

"Since the Chinese Communists, fully backed by the Soviet imperialists, overran a substantial portion of China, a large number of Soviet military, economic, technical, cultural, and more importantly, political workers descended upon China, seeking to control their Chinese stooges in every branch of Chinese life."

Tsiang listed 15 groups of advisers and others, totaling 45,100, and said these agents of "Soviet imperialism are supervising every phase of activity undertaken by the puppet Communist regime." He said his figures were based on reliable information as of June 14, 1950.

DC-3 Crashes In Wyoming, 24 Aboard

JACKSON, Wyo., Nov. 21 (U.P.)—A nonscheduled DC-3 airliner, carrying a group of 21 missionaries from Chico, Calif., and three crewmen, crashed into the wild, isolated Tetons Mountains of southwestern Wyoming tonight, the Civil Aeronautics Administration said.

The CAA said the plane belonged to the New Tribes Mission, a religious organization with headquarters at Chico. The plane's pilot was identified as Sterling Wiley.

The two-engined plane left Chico at about noon on a flight to Helena, Mont. CAA stations were alerted that the plane was missing when it failed to appear over Billings at its estimated arrival time of 6 p. m.

Clarence William Harris of Signal Mountain Lodge at Moran, Wyo., reported to the CAA that he "saw a crash and a fire three quarters of the way up Mount Moran about 7 p.m."

Teton County Sheriff in Jackson, Wyo., Harold Heide, reported that "several people in this area said they heard a plane flying overhead at 6 p.m. tonight. At about 8:40 p.m. a fire was seen on the side of Mount Moran about 25 miles north of Jackson."

Seven members of the New Tribes Mission, which has its headquarters in Chico, Calif., about 125 miles northwest of San Francisco, were killed in a plane crash June 9 in the mountains of northeast Colombia. Five children and three crew members also were killed when the plane, a DC-3, smashed into a mountain peak.

Search crews and rescue teams were dispatched to 12,000-foot Mt. Moran from nearby communities and from here. No one had yet reached the scene and casualties were unknown.

The Air Force reported that rescue teams were being dispatched from the Fourth Rescue Team at McChord Field, Tacoma, Wash. Additional teams were on alert orders at Lowry Air Base.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Feb. 19, 1937

Dear Jim:

Ever since November 1, 1936, I have been trying to raise enough money to pay my election bet. I appreciate now that I should have asked a hundred to one odds from you when last May I bet you one dollar that Borah would come out for me before November. I made the dollar bet on even terms on the doctrine of chances—that Borah, for the last twenty-five years or more, had threatened regularly during each three and a half years following election to bolt his party nominee—only to backslide to said nominee during the few months before the national election. I was wrong. He ran true to form.

Therefore, having during these days since election saved one cent a day on my lunches, I am able to enclose one of H. M. jr.'s one dollar bills. I do not think it is any good but you and I, not being financiers, must take Henry's word for it.

Affectionately,

Mystery Witness Faces Quiz On Prince Georges Gambling

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senate crime probers will quiz a "mystery" witness for first-hand evidence on Prince Georges' gambling conditions, it was learned last night.

Existence of the mystery witness was disclosed by William R. (Huck) Hughes, Republican member-elect of the Maryland House of Delegates.

Hughes said that if the witness' name were known, "I don't think he'd last a day." He added that the witness has 25 to 30 percent of the first-hand information about Prince Georges' County crime conditions now available for the Senate investigating committee.

The decision to go ahead with a preliminary inquiry into the Prince Georges gambling picture was made by Downey Rice, assistant counsel, and John McCormick, investigator, for the Senate committee.

Rice and McCormick conferred for almost two hours with Hughes in the committee's Washington office.

Their decision to prepare a report on Prince Georges crime conditions was announced by Alfred M. Klein, who is also an

Thanksgiving Push Planned

Chest Meets 71% of Goal, Passing $3-Million Mark

The Community Chest drive in the Metropolitan Washington area topped the 3-million-dollar mark yesterday to reach 71 percent of its goal.

New subscriptions, recorded at a general report luncheon in the Washington Hotel, totaled $112,000 to drive up collections to $3,042,000. The goal is $4,260,000.

Chairman Hugh K. Duffield urged Chest workers to set last year's goal of $3,550,000 as their target for next Tuesday.

At that rate, he said, solicitors may devote the next two weeks to reaching this year's goal.

The long Thanksgiving Day weekend "is a good time to ask people for their Red Feather gifts," Duffield told the group.

All nine units, including campaign organizations in Alexandria, and the four nearby counties reported the following progress:

The Government moved up to $1,383,000 or 82 percent of its quota. Business 1 reported $1,100,000 collected, or 64 percent. Business 11 reported 137,000 or 56 percent, and Special Solicitations recorded $213,000 or 68 percent of its quota.

Among the counties, Fairfax stayed in the lead with $29,000 collected or 75 percent of its quota. Alexandria listed $53,000, or 66 percent; Prince Georges, $19,000, or 37 percent; Arlington, $36,000, or 57 percent, and Montgomery listed $66,000 for 51 percent.

The weather that chilled Washington—and most of the east and southeast—came from a cold air mass that swept down into the Plains States and moved eastward.

Mostly sunny today, said the Weather Bureau.

Army Now Rejecting Far Fewer Draftees

Capital Blamed

Civil Defense Found Puny In Most Cities

By The Associated Press

If the atom bomb should fall tomorrow, most United States cities could put into action only a small part of the civil defense effort needed to save lives and rally from the attack.

Mostly, the cities blame the Federal government for this state of affairs.

They complain that the Government hasn't told them in detail what to do—that they can't get a real civil defense organization going until they learn who's going to pay for it.

These are the highlights of a report made public yesterday by the American Municipal Association, made up of 10,500 cities and towns.

Officials in 137 cities from coast to coast contributed to the report, which gives this summary of the state of cities' preparedness:

"Many cities feel that their organization 'on paper' is well completed; that is, that their planning has progressed well. But they report far less optimistically about the readiness to cope with a disaster of the magnitude envisaged by atomic warfare.

"Cities are handicapped most by the absence of a check list or bill of particulars from the Federal and State governments. The public is not aroused. The Federal government has not urged immediate action.

"Rightly or wrongly, local officials are more critical of Federal action or inaction than they are of State relations."

The report says only a few cities such as New York, Milwaukee, Los Angeles and San Francisco have made substantial sums available for civil defense.

"Many cities say they will make no appropriations until the Federal and State governments announce their policies," the report says.

The National Securities resources Board (NSRB), which has the job of supervising civil defense, made no immediate comment on the report.

A so-called master plan for civil defense, prepared by NSRB, was submitted to Congress by President Truman last September 18. The President urged State and local officials to "move ahead rapidly" with their planning without waiting for Congress to act.

The master plan called, among other things, for mutual aid agreements among neighboring cities and States—even extending across the borders to Canada and Mexican neighbors.

Reports from the 137 cities contributing to yesterday's survey indicated that some steps have been taken in this direction.

The Army's draftee rejection rate, which ran as high as 58 percent when the draft was renewed with the outbreak of the Korean war, has fallen off to 36 percent, it was learned yesterday.

Latest available induction figures, covering September, show that of 206,000 men sent up for preinduction exams by local draft boards, 131,600 were found acceptable by the Army.

The 36 percent rejection rate compares with 48 percent rejections in August and July's 58 percent.

September Rate "Normal"

An Army spokesman pointed out the rejection rate for September is close to the 34 percent rate during the last year of World War II, and therefore can be considered "normal."

A breakdown of figures indicates little change in the mental qualification test failures: for July, 15.2 percent; August, 17.6; September, 15. These tests have come under severe attack by Selective Service as being susceptible to deliberate flunking. The Army on the other hand has stoutly maintained the test is pretty much foolproof so far as cheating is concerned.

A sharp drop is shown in the September figures for medical rejections—that is, physical or mental ailments: July, 26.8 percent; August, 20.1; September 14.5. The Army holds that after sending up the least-fit along with 4-Fs from World War II, the draft boards are now sending in an average sampling of men between the draft ages of 19 through 25.

Younger Men Healthier

Selective Service says the boards are coming up with healthier men as they dig into the lower age groups for military manpower.

The rejection rates for draftees turned down for both mental and medical reasons also has fallen considerably: July, 9.3 percent; August, 6.7; September, 3.8.

Meanwhile, in Minneapolis, Brig. Gen. Louis B. Renfrow, deputy director of Selective Service, yesterday told the National Garage the over-all manpower pool of 8 million men in the 19-through-25 draft age brackets, under present conditions or exemption, deferment, postponement of induction and medical rejections, will produce only around 870,000 draftees for induction. Renfrow said the draft law would have to be changed to attain the President's goal of a 3 million-man military force.

District Navy Officer Describes Sinking Of Minesweeper in Fight Off Korean Coast

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The ship died as brave a death as can befall a man o' war—her crewmen heedless of their own safety, guns blazing away at North Korean shore batteries trying to pick off the men of a sunken sister ship, struggling in the water.

The minesweeper USS Pledge suffered high casualties—over 50 percent of her company of 71. But she was a brave ship with a brave crew.

The story of the sinking of the Pledge and the USS Pirate off Korea October 12 was told here yesterday by the first naval casualty of the Korean war to arrive at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Lieut. (j.g.) George W. Eidsness, 29, of 1401 East Capitol st., was gunnery officer on the Pledge while she and the Pirate were minesweeping during the invasion of Inchon.

The Pirate, he related, hit a mine and sank in two minutes.

Rescue Whaleboat Lowered

The Pledge lowered a whaleboat to rescue the Pirate's survivors, tossing in the sea.

Then the North Koreans, the officer related, opened with their shore batteries.

"Our skipper was wounded and nearly everyone else on the bridge. I started helping them—then I noticed I was bleeding myself."

Later Eidsness learned he had suffered a broken left leg and broken right arm.

Ship Abandoned

The Pledge's wounds were fatal. Abandon ship was ordered and Eidsness slipped off into the water.

Although casualties were high, the killed and misssng number from the Pledge was small—one killed and six missing, Eidsness said.

Ban on Beer Urged If U. S. Adopts UMT

DES MOINES, Nov. 21 (AP).—If Congress enacts Universal Military Training of boys, beginning at age 17, it should prohibit sale of beer to trainees, says the newly formed National Temperance League.

A resolution urging such restrictions was passed as the league ended its first convention here last night.

One resolution described the modern beer tavern as, "in many instances, worse than the saloon which it displaced." Another urged Congress to prevent use of radio and television as mediums for alcoholic beverage advertising.

Dr. Robert G. Lee of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Southern Baptist Convention, was elected president of the new league. The league was formed by a merger of the National Temperance Movement and the Temperance League of America.

Other officers elected included:

Treasurer: Dr. G. M. Bruce, Minneapolis, Minn.

Secretary: The Rev. James R. Swedenburg, Birmingham, Ala.

The new league is an independent organization whose chief mission is scientific temperance education. It receives its primary support from the major Protestant denominations.

During the war he was assigned as a Navy operational officer and was attached to the Office of Strategic Services.

Pickets Protest Segregated Schools

A dozen women, members of the Southeast Club of the Progressive Party, yesterday protested the District's segregated school system by picketing Board of Education headquarters at 13th and K sts. nw.

They carried placards that urged admission of Negro students to the white Sousa Junior High School and repeal of the ruling against mixed groups of whites and Negroes appearing in schools during school hours.

Truman Limits Dollar-a-Year Men for U.S.

President Truman yesterday authorized defense production agencies to hire "dollar a year men," but he hedged the process about with tight restrictions.

Under a general law, persons drawing a salary, cannot receive pay from private enterprises. In the Defense Production Act, however, Congress authorized the President to appoint persons to Federal jobs to serve without compensation, thus permitting them to retain their private salaries instead.

Mr. Truman acted yesterday to avail himself of this permission, even though he has consistently opposed the idea. Along with many of his top officials, he feels that in a defense emergency, highly qualified persons should be willing to work for the Government, at Government pay, even though that means giving up their higher private salaries.

Recent Difficult Problem

In recent months, however, the problem of inducing particularly competent private citizens to give up their posts and high pay and take Federal jobs has been almost insurmountable.

Accordingly, the President yesterday issued an Executive Order allowing the heads of defense production agencies to put men on their rolls "WOC"—without compensation.

But, the President provided, this may not be done unless the agency certifies that the individual hired is filling a job requiring "outstanding experience and ability," that he has such experience and ability, and that the agency was unable to obtain a person of the necessary qualifications on a full-time salaried basis.

Other Limitations

The Executive Order said that "so far as possible," the "WOC" permission shall be used only for consultant and advisory positions, and that it can be used for full-time jobs only when there is no other way to get the right man.

Agency heads were also told "to avoid, to as great an extent as possible, any conflict between the governmental duties and the private interests" of the men serving without pay.

The Civil Service Commission is also required to review appointments made in this way and to render a report with findings and recommendations every three months.

6,275,190 in Tokyo

TOKYO, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The population of Tokyo totaled 6,275,190 as of last October 1, making the city the fourth largest in the world, the municipal government reported today. The announcement said Tokyo is outranked only by New York, London and Paris.

Cobalt Curb To Cut TV, Radio Output

Defense limitations ordered yesterday on the commercial use of cobalt—a metal used to harden steel—will cut the production rate of radios and TV sets by 25 to 40 percent below current levels, industry spokesmen declared.

The National Production Authority, which froze all use of cobalt last week, yesterday ordered its release again for non-military use, but only at 30 percent of the consumption rate during the first six months of 1950.

That 70 percent cut, plus a 35 percent cut-back in aluminum and impending reductions of similar magnitude of copper, nickel and zinc, will fall with a heavy blow on the radio and television industries, their officials said.

"The industry faces dwindling production in the first quarter of 1951—and after that it will grow worse," said a spokesman for the radio-television manufacturers association.

Cobalt, described as "highly essential" in the making of magnets for radio and TV loud speakers, is imported from Africa. Had the freeze on sales continued, the industry spokesman said, all plants would have been shut down by the end of next month.

CBS Protests Delay of Color TV by Court

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Columbia Broadcasting System tried another legal channel today in an effort to get its commercial color television programs on the air.

It filed a long memorandum with a three-judge Federal court protesting the court's action last week in delaying CBS's planned color telecasts. It asked immediate permission to start the programs and said delay is costing the public "millions of dollars."

The court on November 15 issued a temporary restraining order delaying the CBS telecasts. It took the action after Radio Corporation of America and other television equipment manufacturers argued that the CBS color system was inferior to others and was too costly. RCA and the others wanted an injunction issued to prevent CBS color programs.

CBS said today that every day the FCC order remains suspended another 30,000 black and white receivers are sold to the public.

8 Germans Found Guilty as Spies; 5 Slated to Die

BERLIN, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Eight Germans have been convicted by a Russian military court in East Germany on charges of spying for the United States and five of them have been sentenced to death, the Soviet-licensed ADN news agency said tonight.

ADN said that the eight, two of them women, "admitted their guilt without restriction." The women were sentenced to 15 years each in prison and one of the men received a 25-year sentence.

"The subversive activities of the unmasked spies were directed and financed directly by the American espionage service," the agency said.

The roport said the eight operated under the direction of a Captain Hartmann, who was not further identified. It did not say whether the sentences had been carried out.

Brothman Spy Trial Goes to Jury Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Federal Court trial of Abraham Brothman, described as a partner of atom spy Harry Gold, ended today and the case is due to reach a jury Wednesday.

The defense rested after calling only two witnesses in behalf of Brothman and a co-defendant, Miriam Moskowitz, accused of conspiring to obstruct justice.

Neither Brothman, a 36-year-old chemical engineer, nor Miss Moskowitz, his business associate, took the stand.

Earlier, the Government rested its case and Federal Judge Irving Kaufman turned down a routine defense motion to dismiss the charge.

Judge Kaufman said he would give the case to the jury of seven men and five women Wednesday — after both sides sum up and he delivers his charge.

Gold Awaits Sentence

The pudgy, 39-year-old Gold was not a defendant in the case but it revolved around him. He is awaiting sentence as a confessed Soviet spy.

Gold testified that Brothman turned over Government technical secrets to him to relay to Soviet agents.

Then, Gold said,— with the FBI closing in on them in 1947— Brothman and Miss Moskowitz conspired to get him (Gold) to lie to a grand jury about the spy activities.

This conspiracy, the Government charged, was a plot to obstruct justice.

Gold wound up his testimony today with an account of the soul-searching he said he underwent before he confessed he acted as an atom spy for Russia.

He said he "lied desperately" when the FBI first questioned him.

Wouldn't Lie Now

"Would you lie to save your life?" the defense asked the stocky witness, who faces a possible death penalty.

"Now? No," replied Gold after a moment's thought.

With the FBI hot on his trail last May, Gold testified:

"I realized I could possibly fight this thing. I realized that all my relatives and friends and the people at the heart station in Philadelphia would rally around me."

When arrested Gold was engaged in chemical research connected with heart ailments in a Philadelphia hospital.

"But I realized that once the FBI pulled one thread the whole horrible scheme would become untangled."

So, Gold said, he told the FBI: "Yes, I am the man who got information on atomic energy from Dr. Klaus Fuchs."

Decided to 'Take Rap'

Fuchs, one of Great Britain's top scientists, now is serving a prison term in England as a confessed member of the spy ring.

Gold said Fuchs already had disclosed their spy activities, so he decided to admit his part in them — as far as it concerned himself and Fuchs.

At that time, he added, he did not intend to spill any other names of spy-ring associates.

"I decided to take the rap myself," Gold said.

The first defense witness was Benjamin G. Dann of New York, who once employed Brothman as a chemical engineer. He said he did not recall that his company ever dealt with any Government secrets — secrets which Brothman might be tempted to pass on to Gold.

Housewife Asks Court to Bar Deportation

A Philadelphia housewife who has been in the United States for 36 years yesterday asked District Court to prevent her impending deportation.

She is Mrs. Dora Coleman, 50, mother of three children and wife of an American citizen. She has never been naturalized.

In her suit, she declares that she was unjustly found to have belonged to an organization advocating violent overthrow of the Government, and for this will be sent back to Russia.

She contended that her membership in the organization — which is not named in the suit — was before 1940, when the law permitting deportation for past membership in subversive organizations was passed. In her case, she said, it amounted to ex post facto punishment and is unconstitutional.

Her suit, filed by the law firm of Rein & Forer, also claimed her hearing before immigration officials was illegal because the charges were not presented to her until after the hearing.

She also stated that the immigration hearing officer was not "impartial and independent."

According to Attorney David Rein, she is asking for a three-judge tribunal to determine constitutionality of the legislation used for the deportation.

The suit asks for injunctions and other relief to keep her in this country.

Bonn Takes Up Occupation Statute Terms

BONN, Nov. 21 (NYHT.)—Under the heavy shadow of election defeats for his remilitarization policy, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today began discussions with his cabinet on two crucial government declarations that the Western allies are insisting upon before they bring into force their new shortened occupation statute.

The allies are asking the Bonn government for a declaration acknowledging obligation for the freign debts of the old Reich. The allies want it to be formally voted upon by the Bundestag.

Second, the allies want a government statement showing willingness to enter into raw-materials and production agreements for the coordination of a western European rearmament program.

Proposed texts of these declarations were taken up by the Cabinet today but it is clear that in having to open the two questions at this time Adenauer faces sharp political difficulties. The discussion will continue Friday.

The declarations are certain to be attacked heavily by the Social Democratic opposition—strengthened as it has been by its twin election victories in Hesse and Wurtemberg-Baden.

Adenauer's position will not be helped by the fact that the Allies are asking for vague commitments that they say cannot be spelled out. Neither is there any plan or program on how the raw-materials and production declaration will be applied, because there is no western European agreement into which Germany is supposed to fit herself.

Rebels Mass For Red River Delta Assault

SAIGON, Indo-China, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Viet Minh Communists were reported massing in the foothills along the western rim of the Red River delta today for a major assault on the vast northern rice basin.

A French military spokesman said the rebels have been massing during the past few days near Phu Tho, 50 miles northwest of Hanoi, and now "menaced" French defenses along the edge of the delta.

The main Hanoi defense line is only 20 miles north and west of the city, since the French abandoned the fortress of Hung Hao and the string of satellite posts just south of Phu Tho earlier this month.

The spokesman said French warplanes bombed and strafed the Phu Tho area yesterday, raking enemy positions only a few hundred yards from French lines. But he believed Hanoi itself was in no immediate danger.

On the northeast, where Viet Minh forces also have been reported assembling in strength, rebel saboteurs penetrated to within 17 miles of Hanoi, blowing up a bridge near Bao Ninh late yesterday.

In southern Indo-China, guerillas sabotaged a railroad on the China sea coast 100 miles east of Saigon, causing "some losses among personnel," the spokesman said.

Rail Supply Line

Reds Hint Blockade of Berlin Army

BERLIN, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The Russians set the stage today for a possible attempt to blockade the rail movement of American, British and French military supplies to Berlin.

The Russian-German news agency, ADN, reported that many protests have been made by Russian zone organizations over the transport of Western military supplies and troop reinforcements.

"The conscience of our railway workers will no longer allow the continuation of American war materials to be carried through our German democratic republic to West Berlin," said one protest from a Magdeburg railway workers union.

The union claims to represent 30,000 workers in the area through which Western Allied military trains must pass to reach Berlin.

Since the arrival of American and British troop and tank reinforcements of last week and the announced plan to strengthen further the West Berlin garrisons, the Russian-controlled newspapers have been writing themselves dizzy with denunciations of the "Anglo-American warmongers."

Western quarters immediately speculated that, at a minimum, a stiff protest from the Soviets may be expected over the movement of troops and new equipment.

Veteran observers doubt, however, that the Russians will attempt a full scale blockade. It is believed more likely they may announce that railway workers will refuse to throw the switches for military trains other than the normal passengers and freight transports.

This would halt the movement to Berlin of new heavy armor, including about 20 American tanks due here soon after January 1. The tanks are part of the newly reactivated Sixth Infantry Division which has been assigned to strengthen the Berlin garrison.

The official Russian newspaper, Taegliche Rundschau, which is the voice of Moscow in Germany, was particularly bitter about the Western reinforcements.

It charged the military buildup is being carried out to intimidate the West Berliners before the December 3 municipal voting. It accused the Westerners of attempting to make Berliners "passive voting machines."

Germany's Bid For Equality in Army Rejected

STRASBOURG, France (Wednesday), Nov. 22 (AP).—The European Assembly's general affairs committee today refused to support German demands for written guarantees of equality in a proposed western European army.

The committee then adopted a resolution calling for immediate creation of a European army under a European defense minister and subject to "proper European control."

The committee modified recommendations for placing the European army within the framework of an "Atlantic force." The modification was the result of Turkish demands. Turkey is not a member of the North Atlantic pact.

A minor concession was made to the Germans. The committee adopted a paragraph saying the "defense of a territory which includes western Germany naturally requires German participation."

Action on the European army resolution had been delayed by West German Socialists, who took time out to attack both the Schuman coal-steel plan and the proposals on the European army. The Socialists were bolstered by election victories at home.

German Socialist Wilhelm-Erik Noltin, speaking to the full assembly, demanded removal of allied restrictions on German steel output and full equality of all members in the six-nation Schuman coal-steel authority.

Former French Foreign Minister Paul Reynaud and other delegates to the Assembly—the lower house of the Council of Europe—praised the Schuman plan and renewed pleas to Britain to join

British, Dutch Rulers Make Unity Appeal; 41 Laborites Call for 4-Power Peace Talks

LONDON, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—King George VI of Britain and Queen Juliana of the Netherlands tonight appealed for unification of Europe and the Western world to stave off the threat of atomic war.

In formal speeches at a Buckingham Palace state dinner, the two monarchs said unity must be achieved despite traditional rivalry and division.

"Whatever forms the closer association of the Western world may take," King George said, "it is already accepted among the free nations that we share the same precious heritage and that our interests lie in unity and cooperation, rather than rivalry and division."

Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands arrived here on a Dutch cruiser for a three-day state visit today.

"We cannot allow Europe to become a separate self-sufficient unity," Juliana said. Problems blocking unity should be considered against the background of the atom bomb, she added.

In the meantime, 41 moderate Labor members of Parliament, including some of Britain's foremost Labor leaders, called for the three Western powers to meet with Russia in an effort to attain lasting peace and world disarmament.

The Laborites introduced their motion in Commons only four days after the left-wing faction of their party put forward a similar resolution. That resolution also called for the United Nations to demarcate a line in Korea over which United Nations troops would not go.

Earlier last week Lord Salisbury, Conservative leader in the House of Lords, appealed for the three Western powers to get together with Russia now.

Tom Briberg, leftist member of the House, other members of Parliament and some leading journalists, clergymen, lawyers and business men, meanwhile were forming a new, non-Communist "peace movement" here. The first meeting, on "China and Korea," will be held Monday.

It was reported that several Americans, including O. John Rogge, former United States Assistant Attorney General, who was roundly booed at the Warsaw "peace" congress, will be asked to speak.

What is most significant about the resolution presented today is that virtually all of those who signed it are moderate Laborites who up to now have taken a strong pro-American stand. The resolution, besides asking for the Big Four meeting, also urged:

1. "A world plan for mutual aid and particularly of the undeveloped areas of the world."
2. "Enhanced economic development."
3. "Increased trade between all countries."
4. "A scheme for gradual world disarmament."

Israeli Envoy Urges Arab Peace

Israel's new Ambassador in Wahington, Abba Eban, yesterday pledged his country's willingness to seek peace and a "final settlement" with each of the Arab states.

But, he said, "from the Arab world we hear no echo of peace, no hint of reconciliation, no respite from a hostile propaganda which inflames public passion and appears to eliminate any early prospect of regional peace and stability."

Eban was speaking at the National Press Club in his first public address since becoming Ambassador here.

While Eban was extending his carefully wrapped olive-branch to Israel's neighbors, Undersecretary of State James E. Webb was giving an official luncheon at Prospect House for Azzam Pasha, secretary general of the Arab League.

Regarded As "Reasonable"

Azzam, an Egyptian, has been attending the U. N. Assembly for the Arab League, which represents the nations that were at war with Israel. He is regarded in Washington as the "reasonable" of all Arab spokesman, and officialdom here has gone to unusual lengths to welcome him.

He plans to visit Assistant Secretary George McGhee at the State Department today, and their conversation is expected to touch on defense problems of the Middle East as well as on Arab-Israeli relations.

The Israeli Ambassador insisted yesterday that the chief aim of his country's regional policy "is to secure a normal relationship between Israel and the Arab states based on mutual tolerance and cooperation."

"Israel and the Arab states," he said, "are each the heirs of ancient traditions which have contributed immeasurably to the development of human civilization. The renewal of this cooperation in our own times would open out new horizons of peace and expanding welfare for the peoples of the Near East.

"Unhappily, this prospect still appears to be distant. It is cherished by Israel but still rejected by the Arab states."

Eban charged that whenever a single Arab government tries to reach a separate agreement with Israel "the majority of Arab states, through the Arab League, bring their influence and pressure to bear against the conclusion of an agreement."

Dealing with domestic affairs, Eban said Israel's democracy was a thriving sapling "planted in a great wilderness of totalitarianism, despotism, squalor and oligarchy which extends across vast areas of the Near East."

Reused Dishwater Ruins Marriage

Asked her to use her maiden name on their honeymoon; and 4. Held a mouse over her head "solely for the purpose of terrifying her".

Filipino Troop Commander Is Sent Home

MANILA, Nov. 21 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Mariano C. Azurin has been relieved as commander of Philippines forces in Korea and ordered home.

Defense Secretary Ramon Magsaysay said today he took the action after consultation with General MacArthur's headquarters, President Quirino and Maj. Gen. Mariano N. Castaneda, Philippines Army Chief of Staff.

"The relief of Colonel Azurin was wholly a Philippines action," Magsaysay stressed in an interview.

He said Lieut. Col. Dionisio Ojeda, United Nations observer, will replace Azurin. Ojeda was promoted today from the rank of major.

Until Ojeda reaches the 1200 troops, Lieut. Col. Gamaliel Manikan, former executive officer of the Philippines Tenth Battalion Combat Team, will be in command.

Ojeda was trained at the United States Army's Fort Benning, Ga., infantry school.

Magsaysay declined to discuss the reasons for relieving Azurin.

[The Associated Press on Monday reported from Seoul that the commander of the Philippines Battalion had requested that the troops be returned home because they were not being used as a unit. He also was reported to have complained that the Filipinos had not been issued winter clothing and that the Korean winter was too cold for them.—Editor's note.]

The Philippines Tenth Battalion had been guarding the highway and rail route between Seoul and Pyongyang from attacks by bypassed Communist guerillas.

The battalion has been split into units of company size or less.

Many American forces, notably the United States Twenty-fifth Division, have been split into small units for combat against guerillas.

Scientists' View

Missing Link Inhabited South Africa

LONDON, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Two South African scientists insisted today that bone fragments and other remains prove that the missing link between man and the apes lived in the Transvaal perhaps a million years ago.

Dr. Robert Broom and J. T. Robinson of the Transvaal Museum in Pretoria discussed the controversy over their finds in the scientific magazine, Nature. They called the article "Ape or Man?"

They said that in the past two years they had discovered a number of nearly complete skulls "which give us a new picture of the origin of man. . . . We seem to be dealing with beings that have some claim to be called human."

"A considerable number of men of science from America and Europe have visited South Africa to examine our specimens," they said, "and we think all who have taken this trouble have gone back convinced that at least we have the remains of beings that were much more human in structure than any known living or fossil apes.

"Opinions still differ considerably. Some have argued that all apemen are true human beings. Some—a very few, we believe—consider they are anthropoid apes."

After discussing the evidence of teeth, skulls and pelvic bones the writers conclude:

"Possibly we are correct in assuming that there lived in South Africa a million or perhaps two million years ago a family of higher primates not closely related to the living anthropoids, but perhaps evolved from a very early anthropoid, or even a pre-anthropoid by a different line, that this line early became bipedal and soon used the hands for tools and weapons, and that one branch of this family about Upper Pliocene times, gave rise to man."

Peru Demands That Colombia Give Up Refugee

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The Peruvian government today demanded that Colombia surrender Peruvian opposition leader Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, a refugee in the Colombian Embassy here since January 3, 1949.

Foreign Minister Manuel C. Gallagher said "no other solution is acceptable to the Peruvian government."

The Peruvian demand was based on an International Court of Justice ruling yesterday that while Haya was a political refugee, Colombia had no right to decide his status without consulting Peru. Colombia immediately asked the court to say whether it should surrender Haya to Peru.

WHY DO STOCK PRICES CHANGE ?

Imagine a typical auction. The auctioneer calls for bids on some early American chairs. He points to one.

"I hear $40. Forty-five? Thank you, sir!

"Will someone make it fifty? Forty-five I have—a lady bids $50. Fifty-five over there—and sixty?

"Sixty, a bargain at $60. Sixty-five? Do I hear sixty-five?...Sold for $60."

On the New York Stock Exchange there is a continuing auction . . . in stocks. But unlike the country auction, the Stock Exchange is a market place for securities in which thousands of investors, from all over the country, participate daily. Their orders are serviced by its members, acting as their agents, every business day.

Actually, it's a double auction, working both ways. Bidders want to buy their stock from sellers at the lowest possible price. Sellers want to get the highest price for the shares they are offering. When a buyer's bid and a seller's offer arrive at a mutually acceptable price, a purchase is completed, a sale is made . . . at the best price available in this national market, at that moment.

That's the kind of give and take going on all the time at the Exchange, in the 1,500 stocks that are listed. That's why stock prices change. A buyer whose bid is too low can raise it. An offer to sell that is too high can be lowered. It's an auction market . . . for buyers and sellers.

All kinds of factors influence people to buy or sell . . . earnings and dividends . . . purchasing power of the dollar . . . new production records . . . a war won or threatened . . . a change in tax laws . . . strike news . . . other factors.

The Exchange does not set prices. Prices are determined by the public's appraisals of the attraction of stocks in terms of benefits offered and risk assumed. The Exchange does see that prices are arrived at openly and fairly, and published promptly.

A SHARE OF A BUSINESS. When you buy or sell a share of stock, you buy or sell a share of a business, an interest in everything that company has—its laboratories, supplies, patents, factories, reputation. Information about any corporation's operations and financial condition, its earnings and dividend record—facts essential to an investment decision—are yours for the asking, without obligation, at offices of member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. They are located in 377 cities.

4 U.S. Agencies Hit For Defense Errors

lization program," it stated, "are obviously taking advantage of the tight situation created by our and th ir national emergencies to sabotage the preparedness effort by gouging unmercifully on their sales of rubber."

The Johnson Committee—successor to the wartime Truman Committee—recalled that in its first interim report, six weeks ago, it had chided officials for their "siesta psychology" in the surplus disposal and rubber programs.

Taking another look at both yesterday, they reported "some progress" but still did not like what they saw.

"Progress in paper work—of which there has been considerable—is no substitute for progress in performance—of which there has not been enough," it was said. "Paper-work preparedness is only flimsy protection against the threat we face."

Instances Cited

The report cited these instances as proof of its over-all charges:

1. The day after GSA Administrator Jess Larson told the committee he would "freeze" all disposals of surplus plants and on the very day the order was issued, GSA accepted by telegram a bid from Schenley Distillers, Inc., for purchase of the Government's Kansas City (Mo.) alcohol plant. Although capable of being rehabilitated to produce "alcohol vitally needed" for synthetic rubber output, it is being converted to beverage production without even a war-recapture clause, it was said.

Challenging the legality of the sale, the committee added:

"The Munitions Board action releasing this plant from national security clause coverage indicates a lack of foresight . . . GSA's performance can fairly be characterized as an example of extremely poor judgment."

2. The Department of Commerce laudably limited non-military use of rubber to 90,000 tons to conserve it for defense use, but favored big companies in granting quotas. Then, to remedy the inequities, Commerce granted additional quotas totaling 105,000 tons.

Plane Engines Sales Criticized

3. The Air Force continued to sell serviceable aircraft engines and parts for a month after Korea. USAF Undersecretary John J. McCone told the committee July 10 that orders had been issued to all Air Forces to stop such sales, after inquiry was made of disposals at Robins Air Force Base, Ga. Committee investigators, however, established that the base was not notified of the action until July 25 and sales continued until August 1.

Perhaps the most "astounding case of shortsighted" encountered by the committee, it added, was the previously reported sale of aircraft computers by the USAF for $6.89 and their repurchase for $63,000.

4. GSA leased the Government's Omaha alcohol plant to the Central States Corp. for manufacture of beverage alcohol after the committee objected to its sale. But the lease contained an option to buy.

Furthermore, said the committee, it is not satisfied with the financial responsibility of the company, inasmuch as another company operated by the same interests is contending in the courts that it cannot satisfy a judgment proposed to be handed down. The committee recommended a "thorough investigation" of the company's condition, and said it should not be allowed to use it to make beverage alcohol.

5. Sale of the Cotton Valley, La., aviation gasoline plant—of which there is a critical shortage—was approved by GCA 16 months ago for scrapping. GSA failed to check the sale with the Munitions Board—as directed by a 1947 order—through oversight. This "administrative mistake," said the report, "assumes proportions of a major blunder."

Rubber Supply Still Short

The committee said that while the rubber situation has brightened since its September 5 report, the prospect still is not good.

"At present, industry supplies of rubber are far less than those on hand at the time of Pearl Harbor," it stated. "Manufacturers have formed the habit—a habit of doubtful wisdom—of carrying short supplies of natural rubber, relying on synthetic rubber to meet temporary peaks of demand."

Industry must not "minimize the dangers of the precarious natural rubber situation," said the report. "While there is still time," the committee added, we must "aggressively" attempt to solve the rubber problem.

Steps urged include: additional stockpiling; careful allocation of present supplies; step up synthetic rubber research and production; develop domestic sources of natural rubber in the Western Hemisphere.

West Virginia to Buy Land for State Forest

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—The West Virginia Conservation Commission today authorized purchase of about 20,000 acres for a new State forest in Berkeley and Morgan counties.

Land will be purchased for $35,000 from the Farmers Bank of Pittsburgh, which has owned it since 1909. The tract includes two mountains and the intervening valley, through which flows Meadow Branch.

Defense Tax Compromise Seen

income rates to raise about five billion dollars.

Some other Democrats interested in the proposal predicted the compromise would pick up some Republican votes on the committee.

At least one Republican member, Representative Robert W. Kean (N. J.), indicated he would support such a tax if it removed what he believes are serious defects in the Administration plan.

Kean favors a combined tax that would raise about three billion dollars by (1) reducing the Administration's proposed 75 percent profits tax to about 60 percent on all profits over a 95 to 100 percent earnings base and (2) increasing the 45 percent top corporation income tax rate to about 50 percent.

Representative Daniel A. Reed (N.Y.), ranking Republican member of the committee, meanwhile, indicated he will renew in executive session his "third method" motion, sidetracked Monday by a 15-to-10 Democratic majority.

Reed's plan would give corporations the option of paying a 55 percent corporation tax in lieu of a profits tax based on average earnings or invested capital.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), who ruled Reed's motion out of order, stressed again yesterday that the committee is still in the public hearings stage and hasn't started to draft a bill.

During yesterday's hearings both CED, speaking for leading business executives, and the United States Chamber of Commerce hit the World War II excess profits tax principle as unsound.

Thomson, for CED, said it is not only unfair, burdensome and difficult to administer but would "weaken America in the long-run crisis for which we must be prepared.

Alvord, for the United States Chamber, said it would contribute to inflation and the cost of preparedness with consequences "too gruesome to play with."

Both recommended returning the combined corporation income and surtax rates to 38 percent, from the present 45 percent, to reach a basic rate, and then adding a defense tax to that to raise the new corporate revenue required.

Leo Cherne, executive secretary of the Research Institute of America, presented the results of a survey it recently made of "a typical cross-section of the business community," including both business and professional people.

The results were as follows: 50.50 percent favored higher corporate rates. 19 percent favored an excess profits tax. 30.50 percent favored "a combination of more modest corporate tax and mild excess profits tax producing the same yield." The latter choice is substantially the compromise plan now being discussed by Ways and Means Democrats.

Clarence D. Laylin, representing the Council of State Chamber of Commerce, testified that the excess profits tax is both administratively and economically unsound "even as a war measure."

Probe of Soviet Role Urged

Mao Tze-tung (Chinese Communist leader), his complete and absolute subservience to Moscow, and, above all, the barbaric nature of Soviet aggression upon China, have thoroughly convinced the Chinese people that Mao's regime, having perpeterated the act of burning books, will collapse the way Chin Shih Huang did 21 centuries ago," Tsiang said.

Book-Burning Recalled

The Communists in China, on the advice of Soviet workers, last summer ordered the burning of books, many classics, considered to be reactionary, Tsiang asserted, and this recalled the book-burning of Chin Shih Huang.

"The wrath of the Chinese people toward their Communist masters is now being expressed in increasingly overt forms," Tsiang said. "The Mao regime is now confronted with an effective and widespread resistance movement. Mao himself admitted that much only last June."

Tsiang said the North Korean attack on South Korea and the Chinese Communist invasion of Tibet were part of the same issue. He suggested the Assembly consider the Tibetan question along with his own charges of Soviet aggression against China.

Malik Asks Clarification Of Jap Treaty Proposal

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 21 (NYHT).—Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik asked John Foster Dulles last night for clarification of America's seven-point proposal for a Japanese peace treaty.

The meeting, which took place at Dulles' home, was the second between the two men since exploratory talks were initated six weeks ago by the United States.

Malik submitted a lengthy memorandum, made up largely of questions. The document was in Russian and has been sent to the Department of State in Washington for translation.

said the Sevententh's commander, Col. Herbert B. Powell.

A United States Tenth Corps spokesman said no sign of activity has been reported across the river in Soviet-dominated Chinese Manchuria.

United Nations forces on other sectors were miles from the border but serious opposition was sighted in only one area, the northwest.

Across the 100-yard-wide Yalu River on the Manchurian side small houses could be seen shelved against the slopes. It looked like a mining town, front dispatches said.

Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, commander of the United States Seventh Division and Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the United States Tenth Corps, rode into Hyesanjin in a jeep. Two other generals were on hand—Brig. Gen. Homer W. Kiefer, artillery commander of the Seventh and Brig. Gen. Henry Hodes, assistant division commander.

The generals found a big signboard showing a battle map used by the Reds to illustrate their one-time conquests south of the thirty-eighth parallel.

"That's going into the Seventh Division trophy room," Barr said.

On the northwest front, heavy concentrations of Chinese and North Korean Communists were hard at work welding a defense line of fortified high points. This was intended to seal off the United States First Corps and the Republic of Korea Second Corps—a total of six divisions and a brigade—from approaching within 50 miles of the big international Suiho reservoir on the Yalu. The reservoir is one of the main sources of power for Red Manchuria.

United Nations intelligence officers conceded that the outlook is for continuation of the Korean war well into next spring, Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported.

Swinton said these sources believed a winter cleanup offensive was virtually impossible in an area where terrain and poor roads would give the Communists all the advantages.

The border town of Hyesanjin was occupied without a shot being fired.

Bearded and tired American troops who had marched 105 miles from the Northeast coast in 22 days patted one another on the backs. Some shook hands, said Associated Press Correspondent Tom Stone who accompanied them.

There was no shouting, Stone said. One weary GI asked:

"Where in hell is that Yalu River they've been talking about?"

Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, commander of the Seventh Division, said, "I'm thankful that we got here with a minimum cost in lives and equipment."

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the United States Tenth Corps, pointed out the strategic effect to the Seventh Division's drive to the Yalu River. It had split Communist forces in the northeast from Reds in the northwest, he said in a special communique. Significant Communist forces in the east now were isolated, he said.

However, there was no American solid line extending from the east coast to Hyesanjin. Winter conditions made supply problems difficult through snowy mile high mountain ranges. Air drops are used to supply forward elements, while rear echelons crawl over ice-coated roads.

In reaching the Yalu, combat engineers built 12 small bridges and set up two big prefabricated bailey bridges across rivers. They bulldozed airstrips in earth frozen so hard that steel blades could bite only 1 or 2 inches deep at a time. Some of the time the engineers were under fire, but they cleared roads and forded streams the Reds thought couldn't be passed.

The Seventeenth Regimental combat team wasn't the first United Nations force to reach the frontier. In the northwest the Seventh Regiment of the ROK Sixth Division reached Chosan in late October but was unable to hold when heavy Chinese reinforcements poured across the frontier. The ROK regiment was cut to pieces and only a few officers and some 200 men made their way back to U. N. lines.

In the Tumen River area northeast of Hyesanjin Chinese Communists were reported to have considerable forces near the Manchurian frontier. North Korean troops in this area were said to be regrouping and reforming near the border town of Hoeryong.

These forces were in position to slash at the ROK Capital Division which has speeded up its advance along the extreme east coast road leading to Siberia.

Returning pilots late Tuesday reported advance elements of the Capital Division were nearing Chongjin.

A Tenth Corps briefing officer confirmed that the surging ROK, backed by United States warplanes and guns of the heavy cruiser St. Paul and the destroyer English offshore, were less than 15 miles from Chongjin the last major east coast Korean city in Communist hands short of Siberia.

Farther south the United States Fifth Marine Regiment pushed its lines up the east side of the Changjin reservoir—another important power source for both Manchuria and Korea. The Leathernecks were reported 6 miles north of Hagaru at the southern tip of the reservoir. The Marine Seventh Regiment was advancing up the lake's west side at a slow but steady rate.

Propaganda Parroting Expected

This much the Chinese have already achieved by their entry in force into northwestern Korea. Last September, when they first asked for a hearing on Formosa, the United States voted against it in the Security Council; on November 8 the situation had changed so ominously that the United States voted with the Soviet Union to invite the Chinese here for a discussion of their intervention in Korea.

Nobody yet knows the frame of mind in which the delegates will arrive, or the amount of leeway the Peiping government has given them. The American delegation in New York suspects that the Chinese will do more in public speeches than parrot the propaganda attacks which have been blasting American "imperialism" over the Peiping radio.

But the delegation includes three of the highest-ranking officials of the Peiping Foreign Office, and should be in a position to use its time more profitably.

Its leader, 42-year-old Gen. Wu Hsieu-Chuan, is head of the Russian and Far Eastern Division; his deputy, 36-year-old Chiao Kuan Hua, is not only in charge of United States and western European affairs at the Foreign Office, but is believed to be Communist China's most important propaganda director as well.

Chiao speaks English fluently; so does his sister-in-law, Kung Peshung, another member of the group, who studied at an American missionary school and once served in the U. N. Secretariat in New York. She handles United Nations affairs at the Peiping Foreign Office.

McNeil on Same Plane

By a thinly-disguised coincidence, one of the fellow-passengers of the nine Chinese on the ocean plane will be Hector McNeil, formerly British Undersecretary of State for Foreign Affairs, one of the shrewdest and most popular practitioners of British diplomacy in the history of the United Nations.

McNeil, now Secretary of State for Scotland, will be on his way to Canada on Scottish business, but he will have about 16 hours on the plane in which to get acquainted with the Chinese and, if they are willing, to discuss their U. N. mission with them. McNeil was in charge of the British delegation at last year's Assembly.

The U. N. will make no special effort to welcome the Chinese, although their arrival in New York will be Communist China's first official contact with most of the non-Soviet world. A protocol officer from the Secretariat will meet them at the airport and, as with all official visitors to the U. N., will offer them all possible help in making themselves comfortable in New York.

So far the Chinese have not asked the U. N. for any help, and the suspicion at Lake Success is that their allies and friends from Moscow have already arranged hotel accommodation for them.

Meanwhile, the American, British, French and some Commonwealth governments have reached a tentative, informal and very general agreement to propose a buffer zone along the Korean-Manchurian border—if the Chinese show any disposition to seek reassurance about Korea.

MacArthur Confident

General MacArthur is reported confident that his troops can reach the entire line of the Yalu River without serious Chinese interference. Then, the plan is, the U. N. would propose pulling all non-Korean troops back from the mountainous frontier zone and leaving only the troops of the Republic of Korea there.

Such a move would be based on the assumption that the Chinese Communists really are afraid of an invasion of Manchuria, and it would be calculated to set their fears at rest. But whether the proposal is made at all, and how it will be made, will depend on the attitude to be shown by the Chinese emissaries next week.

It may be necessary to send a U. N. official to Peiping to negotiate, or, possibly, a commission on which the big as well as the small powers are represented. Such a group might be found in the so-called Peace Observation Commission of 14 nations, recently set up by the Assembly with Soviet approval and membership.

Officials here insist that all such ideas are speculative until there is some clew to what the Chinese Communists want. If they want border reassurances, as Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk said last week, then their demands are negotiable; if they want to get rid of all foreign troops in Korea, and refasten a Communist grip on the country, then their demands are not negotiable and the U. N. will not yield to them.

Next week the Security Council expects to deal with Formosa, not with Korea; a little later the Assembly plans to take up an American resolution calling for a U. N. commission to recommend the long-term future status of Formosa.

Formosa Support Thins

But on the Formosa issue the American position is not as strong as it seemed a month ago. Some of America's closest friends and allies in the U. N. no longer believe the U. N. should assume responsibility for the future of the island.

They support the present American policy of "neutralizing" the island as long as the Korean war goes on, and indeed as long as U. N. forces remain in Korea. They do not want to see the U. N. get itself into a position of guaranteeing a peaceful solution of Formosa's future.

For this, they fear, would saddle the U. N. with a military responsibility if the Chinese Communists, at some future time, would try to take the island from Chiang Kai-shek's control.

Among the governments which have their doubts on this issue are India, Australia, Canada, France and the United Kingdom. Accordingly, the United States has asked the Assembly to postpone its discussion o fthe Formosa resolution, which now stands as the last item on the order of business.

Possibly the United States may decide to drop its resolution altogether, or to rewrite it so drastically that it could win support from those who now shy away from it. On this, as on so many other Far Eastern issues, the ultimate tactics will depend on the attitude to be shown by the Chinese delegation, and by the light it may throw on Communist China's purposes.

Indiana Man Elected By National Grange

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
HERSCHEL D. NEWSOM
. . . Hoosier to head Grange

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 21 (AP).—A 45-year-old Indiana farmer, Herschel D. Newsom, was elected master of the National Grange at the eighty-fourth annual convention today.

Newsom, who operates a 472-acre farm near Columbus, will fill the one-year unexpired portion of the two-year term of the late Albert S. Goss, who died unexpectedly in New York October 25.

Newsom has been master of the Indiana State Grange since 1937 and chairman of the National Grange executive committee since 1949.

His election came at the end of a day during which delegates heard Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow, deputy Selective Service director, discuss the manpower problem, and listen to an address by Paul S. Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America.

Other business delayed until Wednesday consideration of a report on national defense by the Grange's naticnal welfare committee. The report, which proposes that the Grange consider reversing its opposition to military conscription, is scheduled to be taken up Wednesday.

The new Garage master has been active in Grange work for about 35 years. His father, Jesse Newsom, was master of the Indiana State Grange from 1921 to 1931. The younger Newsom is a member of the advisory council of the Indiana State board of health, a member of the State committee of the Farmers Home Administration and a member of the Indiana Marketing Council. He will be formally installed at the convention's concluding session on Friday.

Renfrow hinted that the national draft law must be changed if the armed forces are to get needed men. He said the country's draftable pool now is 870,000. President Truman has proposed a force as large as 3,000,000.

Renfrow said about 8,000,000 men between the ages of 19 and 26 have registered for the draft, but that number has been whittled down by deferments, exemptions, physical ailments and draft calls.

Willis said that 1950 farm production has been "ample" and grocery manufacturers "have performed their functions in the life line of America so that ample supplies of quality products have moved from farms to tables."

"Full employment at good wages, population increases, military requirements, improved plant and machine facilities on farms and in factories, and better eating habits all combine to indicate upward trends in the farm and food business," said.

Veterans' Clubhouse Gets Honorable Mention

An honorable mention certificate for the Lane Bryant Annual Award has been presented to Andrew Rice, clubhouse president, for the club's "intensive effort to deal with racial problems in a community where segregation is the publicly enforced pattern."

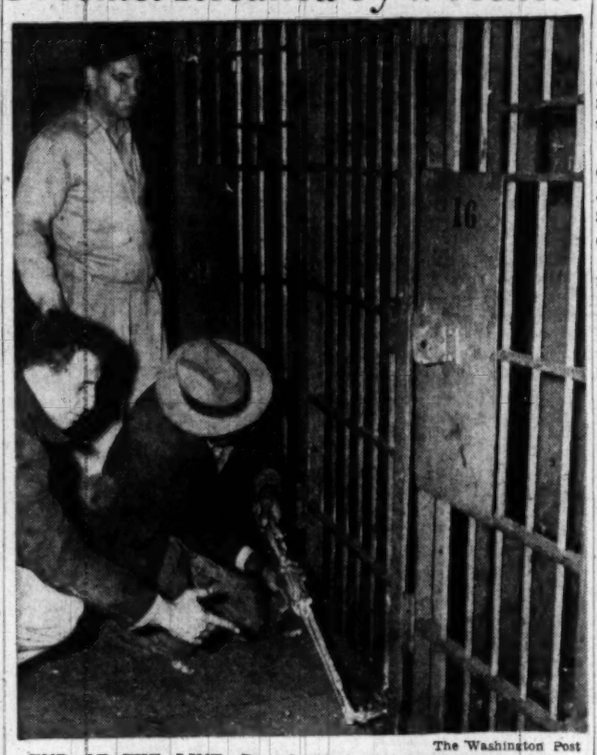
Unhappy Memories of No. 1 Precinct Recalled by Wreckers



The Washington Post

END OF THE LINE—Daniel Goodman, wrecking company owner, directs Sam Utley as he starts cutting up cellblock of the old First Precinct Station house for scrap iron

Here's a man who really enjoys his job. In fact, he's delighted with this particular one.

LeRoy Ferguson and his fellow crew members employed by the Ace Wrecking Co. are tearing down the old First Precinct police station.

And Ferguson's a pleasure at tearing apart the ugly old police pokey doesn't stem from a love of modern architecture, either. It comes from memories of lost liberty in the cells of old No. 1.

Ferguson is using an acetylene torch on the steel cell partitions. And you never saw such suppressed glee.

About three years ago he remembers "visiting" No. 1 for the last time. They put him in one of the cooler's cells for "Whooping it up."

Ferguson, 85 Myrtle st. ne., didn't comment when he was asked how it felt to destroy the station.

But when he put the torch to the pokey, he looked as devilish as a little boy putting pebbles in his teacher's blueberry pie.

And some of the other boys were gloating too as they helped to destroy the ancient edifice. "I ain't sorry to see it go," said one. "I was in here three days before they moved it."

The old building located on New Jersey ave. between D and E sts. nw. is the city's oldest precinct station.

And for some—who were on the right side of the bars—it provided pleasant memories. Police Chief Robert Barrett is among the many top men on the force who spent their rookie days there.

Daniel J. Goodman, owner of the wrecking company, said the old structure will be demolished in about three weeks.

The District plans to build a new precinct building, including a woman's bureau, on the site. The new No. 1 is in the Municipal Center.

Williams to Head Country Club for His Fourth Term

Wash B. Williams, president of American Sales Co., has been re-elected president of the Congressional Country Club for the fourth consecutive year.

Williams

Williams, who lives at 5111 Broad Branch rd. nw., is also presdent of the Chatterbox Club and for the past two years was general chairman of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club campaigns.

H. Loy Anderson was elected vice president; Raymond G. Lochiel treasurer; J. Mark Trice, secretary and Joseph W. Uptown board member.

12% Freight Rate Cut Ordered By ICC Will Lower Car Prices

By The Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday ordered an average 12 percent reduction in railroad freight rates on new automobiles.

Officials estimated the cut, dated to become effective February 20, will involve savings of $10 and up for new car purchasers.

The retail price of new automobiles traditionally includes the rail transportation charge from the manufacturer's headquarters factory to the home city of the purchaser, regardless of how delivery is made between them.

Thus the revision in the basic rail rate will be reflected in the local sales tag, in amounts varying according to location and the weight of the car.

The ICC acted on the basic rate structure in what was described as an effort toward equalizing competition among those manufacturers handling their product principally out of the factory city and those maintaining assembly plants at various places over the country.

Chrysler, Nash, Packard, Studebaker and Willys-Overland complained to the commission three years ago that the railroad rate structure tended to give a competitive advantage to General Motors and Ford because these two had established assembly plants, away from their home factories, in virtually all sections of the nation.

The complaining companies maintain factories and make most of their distribution at Detroit, Evansville, Ind., Los Angeles, Kenosha, Wis., South Bend, Ind., and Toledo, Ohio.

They asserted that General Motors and Ford deliveries from the regional assembly plants of cars which included the rail transportation charge from their home factories in the Detroit area gave these companies an additional profit.

CIO Attacks Loan to Spain, McCarran Act

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP).—The CIO urged today a mobilization of "the full strength of the free people of the world to fight the forces of communism on every front."

A "guns and butter" foreign policy declaration adopted, without a dissenting vote, by the CIO convention called upon the nation to forge:

1. The weapons of war to stop Communist aggression on the military front, and

2. The tools of peace to fight "poverty, hunger and injustice on the economic and social fronts."

The resolution said the European recovery program must be revised to help achieve "improved living standards" in France, Italy and Western Germany.

The foreign policy resolution came out of a committee headed by Walter P. Reuther, Communist-fighting president of the United Auto Workers Union.

Reuther, CIO President Philip Murray and other union leaders made pleas for its passage.

It assailed aid to Argentina and the $62,500,000 loan grant voted by Congress in September to Franco Spain.

It also called for putting "labor-minded citizens" in top policy-making jobs in the State Department.

Earlier, the convention urged almost complete repeal of the McCarran Antisubversives Act, and suggested that President Truman name a committee of "outstanding citizens" to study the internal security problem.

A resolution adopted described the law as "a composite of ill-considered and unrelated proposals which have little in common save their claim to being anti-Red."

The resolution was approved without opposition.

In other resolutions adopted, the convention demanded outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and the substitution of "a fair and equitable labor relations law based on the principles of the Wagner Act."

Advocated also was passage of fair employment practices legislation, a Federal anti-lynching bill, an anti-poll tax law and a Federal civil rights act.

A rollback of prices to pre-Korean war levels was recommended by former Secretary of the Treasury Henry J. Morgenthau, jr., at the convention.

But wage controls are not needed, at least for the time being, Morgenthau declared.

"Inflation is an angry tiger, not a purring pussycat," he said "it won't be kept in bounds with milk-toast programs."

The ex-secretary cited price rises to date and said "there's no end in sight."

District Barbers Split on Haircut Price Increase

District barbers are almost evenly split on whether the price of haircuts should be raised from $1 to $1.25, a spokesman for the Barbers Union, Local 239, (AFL) said yesterday.

Results of a referendum conducted among the 700 barber members were computed last week but will not be made public until the international union's headquarters in Indianapolis is consulted, according to H. S. Fink, president of local 239.

He would only say that the barbers here seemed to be "very closely split" on the proposed price hike. Consideration of a higher priced haircut is pegged upon a rise in the cost of equipment and accessories.

Flood Emergency Proclaimed in California

By The Associated Press

Rioting flood waters from the mountains on North Central California chased another 10,000 residents from their lowland homes yesterday.

Governor Earl Warren proclaimed a state of emergency and told state agencies to use every resource to assist the cities in fighting the floods and in organizing relief.

The new area of devastation—in the fourth day of the floods—lay in unincorporated districts not far south of Marysville, near where the Yuba River joins the Sacramento.

Across the Sierra Nevada range, the glittering little city of Reno was squirming out of its worst flood in history. The Truckee River, normally a quiet little stream, had gone on an unpredicted rampage.

South of Marysville the Yuba River swept wide out of its banks and covered the lowlands in what was called the worst flood in the history of the rich farmland country. Refugees poured into Marysville in trucks, automobiles and on foot.

That was the last of many flights for safety made by residents of California's central valleys since Saturday.

The floods have caused at least nine deaths. The storms which set off the floods have accounted for a dozen lives.

Another possible danger spot was developing in central California. The city of Lodi, of about 14,000 residents, near Stockton, was told it should make preparations for all to leave should the Mokelumne River force itself from its banks. The San Joaquin County sheriff said, however, the stream was expected to recede soon.

To the north, the American River leaped its banks again, covering thousands of acres lying outside Sacramento. An hour after the American reached its high point it started to go down.

Gale Rips Northeast

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP).—A northeast gale ripped through a large section of the eastern seaboard today. Rain, snow and a sharp drop in temperature accompained it.

At least eight persons died in the storm.

A Maine utility manager called it "the worst (storm) we have had for three years." Even South Carolina felt its fury.

200,000 Due to Quit District In Holiday

the enjoyment of our personal liberties and for the loyalty of our fellow Americans."

Washingtonians have a particular event to commemorate this Thanksgiving: the District's 150th anniversary.

Today—November 22—marks the convening of the first joint session of Congress here, 150 years ago. At the ceremonies formally establishing Washington as the Nation's Capital, President John Adams delivered the principal address. He spoke in the Capitol building, then still uncompleted.

The National Sesqui Commission has scheduled no special activity for today, but has asked that this week—November 19 through November 25—be celebrated as "Thanksgiving for Freedom Week."

One emphasized section of the Presidential proclamation for Thanksgiving calls on "every citizen to offer thanks to God for his gracious guidance and help."

Throughout the area, a number of special religious services have been scheduled.

The traditional Pan-American Mass—asking blessings on North, South and Central America—will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday at St. Patrick's Church.

Four downtown Protestant congregations and one Jewish congregation will hold a joint service at 11 a. m. at the First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Joint Services Scheduled

The congregations of St. Paul's Methodist Church and the Montgomery County Jewish Community Center will have joint services at 10:30 at the center, 2901 East-West hwy., Chevy Chase.

At a luncheon today, the Rev. George M. Docherty, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will address the combined memberships of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs. This annual Thanksgiving Day event will be held in the Mayflower Hotel.

Among charitable and community groups that will disrtibute food baskets today will be the Silver Leaf Charity Club, 548 Oklahoma ave. ne. The distribution will be made from 618 T st. nw.

Twenty-five refugees who have come to Washington since last Thanksgiving will be dinner guests of the National Council of Jewish Women's Washington branch at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at Beth El Synagogue. Cosponsor of the dinner is the Jewish Social Service Agency.

Red Cross to Take Part

The Red Cross will aid Thanksgiving programs and ceremonies in all military and Federal hospitals in the Washington area. This includes Walter Reed, St. Elizabeths, Mount Alto, Bethesda, the Soldier's Home Hospital, and the hospital at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Thursday will be a holiday for all branches of the Public Library.

The kids also have time off—Thursday and Friday in the District, and Prince Georges, Montgomery, Alexandria and Fairfax Counties. Arlington County students return to school Friday.

Concerning the major aspect of any Thanksgiving Day celebration—the turkey dinner—there was good news for housewives all over the country.

Associated Press national survey shows 1950 not only produced the biggest crop of turkeys, but that turkey prices are the lowest since the war.

Drama in Truman Crossings

Secret Service men. Most of them are standing up; all, presumably, have their hands close to their automatics. "Jim" Rowley, chief of the White House detail, stands near an open door, ready to leap out if necessary.

Mr. Truman, a man who would much rather be walking, sometimes waves as the limousine flashes by.

The two-car procession crosses Pennsylvania ave., moves into Jackson pl., and then turns into an alley. That ends the spectacle, so far as passersby are concerned. Mr. Truman goes into Blair House through a back door.

On his way back to his White House office, after luncheon and a nap, the security drama will be repeated. Altogether, it comes four times a day.

The President abandoned his practice of walking to and from Blair House last spring. Crowds, made up mostly of tourists, got so big as to give the Secret Service concern.

But the extra policemen, the barricades and some other extraordinary precautions—these all resulted from the shooting melee in front of Blair House on All Saints Day, when a vain attempt was made to assassinate the Chief Executive.

Historians some day may note the irony in the present situation. For Mr. Truman, the most heavily guarded of all Presidents, is one of the friendliest men ever to occupy the White House. In addition, he sincerely likes people, and enjoys mingling with people.

Prince Georges Gaming Probe

assistant counsel to the committee.

Klein said that the committee, headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) would determine from the investigators' report whether an investigation is in order.

Hughes campaigned for office on charges that Prince Georges was overrun with gambling and other crimes. He charged that these conditions prevailed with protection from police and other officials.

Chapter-and-verse substantiation of Hughes' campaign charges were understood to be the main topic of the conference yesterday.

But as for details, Klein would not give them, saying their disclosure would be deferred until the committee gets the preliminary report.

He pointed out the committee has been conducting hearings on the West Coast, but is expected back the end of this week.

Klein said some of the information presented by Hughes appeared to have interstate aspects that would bring it into the scope of the committee's studies.

Indications appeared to be that the Prince Georges picture would be considered a "natural" for the Kefauver probe, but that there might be a question whether the committee would find time to go into it in view of their February 28 deadline for reporting to the Senate.

Hughes said he felt Rice and McCormick were "very definitely interested" in the information he had to give and even "amazed" at some of it. He added that "they asked me not to tell the details."

In another development, the Citizens Committee for Good Government in Prince Georges County, in a letter to Chairman Kefauver, urged the committee to investigate Prince Georges gambling. The letter, signed by Walter F. Mulligan, chairman, said the county for some years has had a reputation as a haven for gamblers operating over state lines.

PASCO, Wash., Nov. 21 (U.P.)—Scores of residents reported watching a cigar-shaped flying object soar over the restricted area of the Hanford atomic works for 8 minutes this afternoon.

Managing Editor Perry Torbergson and City Editor Jack Anderson of the Columbia Basin News said they were among the observers. They said the daily newspaper had received numerous telephone reports and inquiries about the glistening object.

2. The next time you go to the track change the lay by picking a horse with an Army name.

3. If the horse has an artillery name, double the bet.

F.D.R.

Colonel Watson had sent this memo to the President: "I have the honor to report that in accordance with your verbal instructions, I placed a bet for you on the only horse running Saturday whose name smacked of the sea—namely, "Naval Cadet" in the fifth race. I placed the bet as follows:

$2.00 to win
2.00 to place
2.00 to show

The horse ran third paying $6.70. It gives me great pleasure to enclose 70 cents."

F.D.R. to William Phillips in Rome

THE WHITE HOUSE,
May 17, 1937

Dear Bill:

It is good to find your interesting letter of April twenty-second on my return. Your personal impressions are a great help.

The more I study the situation, the more I am convinced that an economic approach to peace is a pretty weak reed for Europe to lean on. It may postpone war but how can it ever avert war in the long run if the armament process continues at its present pace—or even for that matter at a slower pace? The answer they all give to any plea for reduction in armaments is that millions of workers would be thrown on the street. How do we make progress if England and France say we cannot help Germany and Italy to achieve economic security if they continue to arm and threaten, because they will not give us economic security.

Anything, of course, that postpones war is that much to the good. The progress of the disease is slowed up but the disease remains—and will probably prove fatal in the next few years.

Such are my feelings after a successful fishing trip in which I was able to get sufficiently far away from the forest to look at it as a whole without being lost among the individual trees.

I hope you and Caroline have had a wonderful cruise through the Greek islands.

Love to you all,

As ever yours,

Phillips reported from Rome that Mussolini was emphasizing his wish for economic cooperation with other countries. In his opinion the exploitation of Ethiopia would strain every financial and economic resource of Italy for years to come. The Italians were sick and tired of their venture in Spain, and might be ready soon to associate themselves with the United States in a worldwide move to limit armaments.

THE WHITE HOUSE

In March, 1937, I was offered membership in the French Academy — Rudyard Kipling's place. The question as to whether this could be properly accepted by me while President was referred to the Attorney General who, in the enclosed, rules that while the question is not free from doubt, there is enough question to make it advisable to decline.

Ambassador Bullitt has been instructed to explain the situation to the French Academy and to express my very deep personal regards.

F.D.R.

F.D.R. to Edward M. House in Manchester, Mass.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
June 16, 1937

Dear Colonel House:

Your signature is strong and characteristic as ever and confirms the report that you are well and as interested as always in the affairs of humanity. You were right in your answers to both the questions, and I am glad you said what you did.

I do wish that I could see you to tell you of the larger developments of policy.

I am holding a series of conferences with every angle represented, and what the doctors call the "prognosis" is encouraging.

In our domestic policy it seems clear that the many pieces of legislation and administration are beginning to fit into a social and economic plan which will not only raise the standards of the poverty classes but will also come within our financial abilities to pay as we go.

The Congress suffers from the usual "off year" combination of heat, the jitters and dissension among themselves. I hope they will pass the major measures and go home by the end of August. They will then come back refreshed and with a better perspective in January so that we can have a short session before the next Congressional elections. But it really is important that the major measures go through this year, for they all are integral and necessary parts of a democratic picture which grows more logical and simple the more we analyze it.

In all foreign relations the "prognosis" is better than a few months ago but the patient will die of the "armament disease" in a few years unless a major operation is performed.

I do wish I could talk with you about this and many other subjects but I fear that I cannot make any plans until the Congress adjourns. If I am able to go up to Rye Beach, N. H., to see Jimmy and his family, I will surely stop in Manchester to lunch with you.

My affectionate regards to you both.

As ever yours,

House wrote F.D.R. that reporters had put two questions to him: Whether he thought there would be a war in Europe soon; and whether he thought F.D.R. would be a candidate in 1940. In each instance he told them he thought the answer was no.

FDR to John N. Garner in Uvalde

THE WHITE HOUSE,
July 7, 1937

Dear Jack:

I have held off writing you for three perfectly good reasons! First, the Jefferson Island party (at which you were very greatly missed) and the wedding; second, my desire to check up on things on the Hill and elsewhere for a little while longer; and, third, because I did not want to bring you back to Washington until after you had had a real rest and a bit of fishing.

Frankly, I honestly think you ought to be coming back pretty soon, timing it so that it would not be said that you were rushing back to save the amended Court Bill by trying to call off a filibuster. Joe's best thought is that he has the votes with a comfortable margin and that he can prevent or defeat a long-continued filibuster. He wants to give the opposition, of course, every right to make all the speeches they want to but to try to force matters when the problem degenerates into what the country will recognize as a flouting not only of that Bill but of the rest of the legislation. That is why I really think it would be fine if you would come back before the Bill reaches that stage, i.e., in a week or ten days.

Then there is, as you know, the really continuing comment on your absence—criticism from papers like the editorial in the Scripps-Howard papers last night. I was sure there would be the usual deliberate misconstruction attached to your trip by the hostile press and I have consistently said that it was all nonsense and that you were coming back soon.

If Congress does not run wild in the next six weeks or two months, you will be glad to know that the Budget for the coming year looks like a very definite assurance of a balanced budget. The receipts from taxation are exceeding estimates and the Departments and agencies are cooperating in trying to cut their actual expenditures about four hundred million dollars under the Appropriation Bills.

On the labor end of things, the past two weeks have brought what I am very confident is the right psychology on the part of the public as a whole. They are pretty sick of the extremists which exist both in the C.I.O. and some of the A.F. of L. unions and also of the extremists like Girdler and some of his associates backed by the Guarantee Trust Company, etc. The point is that if the Administration had made pronouncements last winter and during the past month, the great mass of the people would not have had certain examples before their eyes which have taught them to take a pretty sound view of the situation. For instance, they have been just as horrified about the action of the Chicago police against the strikers as they have been by the proposed march of the coal miners on Johnstown.

And finally, just to clinch the argument for your return, I want to tell you again how I miss you because of you, yourself, and also because of the great help that you have given and continue to give to the working out peacefully of a mass of problems greater than the Nation has ever had before.

So do come back very soon and make me and a whole lot of others, very happy.

Affectionately yours,

In the heat of the court fight Garner packed his bags and went off to Uvalde for a rest, a move which Marvin McIntyre warned him would be widely interpreted as meaning a lack of sympathy with F.D.R.'s program. Garner wrote F.D.R. that such an interpretation was untrue. He had seriously disagreed with F.D.R. on only two matters, the sitdown strikes and excessive expenditures, particularly for relief, resulting in unbalanced budgets. He assured F. D. R. of his complete loyalty.

F. D. R.'s hope of a balanced budget was not realized, because a severe recession set in toward the end of the summer. His statement about the public's attitude toward extremists in labor and capital had been reflected in his own statement on June 30th, when with respect to the strike in Little Steel, he had said: "A plague on both your houses."

The Jefferson Island party referred to in the first paragraph was a three-day conference between F. D. R. and almost all the Democratic members of Congress to heal the party wounds generated during the Supreme Court fight.

The wedding was that of Ethel DuPont and F. D. R., jr.

Newspaper Loss

The newspaper world will be deprived of one of its most salient figures by the resignation of Paul Patterson, president of A. S. Abell Co., which publishes the Baltimore Sun. Mr. Patterson is wise in the management of a newspaper not only because of his natural gifts but also because of his rich experience in every branch of newspaper production. He did reportorial and editorial duties before coming to Washington 45 years ago, where he served on the Herald and then on the Times. Here he made a wide circle of friends. In 1911 he shifted to Baltimore as managing editor of the Evening Sun, and was soon promoted to the management. Mr. Patterson, however, has always had enough energy and devotion to spare for the industry in general, and the Associated Press, of which he was a director for many years, has profited from his counsel. He will retain membership on the board of directors of the Sunpapers, and, though his fruitful career has earned him the ease of retirement, he may not be entirely lost to the newspaper world.

India And Nepal

There must be some embarrassment in India over the revolt that has failed in nearby Nepal. It is now clear that the insurrection was generated in India by Nepalis in close touch with the Indian Congress Party and the Indian Socialist Party. No evidence is available that the Indian government was implicated; indeed, after the rebellion broke out, New Delhi closed the frontier, and this may have doomed the insurgents. Anyway, the Rana rule is again restored—that is to say, the rule of hereditary Prime Ministers who were given power as commander-in-chief and mayor of the palace by a self-abnegating monarch in 1867.

The King is now enjoying asylum in New Delhi, and in his stead a 3-year-old grandson has been installed in the capital, where he will stay immured so long as the Ranas hold sway. Whether the King was privy to the insurrection is a question that has been raised. It is said that he wanted not only his freedom but also a change which would make him a constitutional monarch. The rebels no doubt wanted more than that. With 85 percent of the land owned by the Ranas, they wanted land, and longed to introduce into their country the distribution which has been inaugurated in India.

That they had been worsted in the present struggle is no indication that they will be content with defeat. What, however, will the Indian Congress Party do? If it insists that aid and comfort be given to the restive Nepalis, Premier Nehru's government might be accused of intervention, if not imperialism. It is plain that the moral overtones in Nehru's foreign policy are finding competition from the power politics which are incipient in the new India. The process in any case would be natural, but nowadays power politics are being thrust upon India by the growing influence in Asia of Chinese communism.

Freezing GIs

Deputy Defense Secretary Lovett has given a logical explanation of the reports that GIs in Korea have been suffering from want of adequate winter clothing. He acknowledges that there have been a few instances when troops outran supplies and did not have proper clothing for the zero temperatures. But, he adds, "all immediate" winter clothing and equipment needs have now been met.

No assurance from Washington, of course, will be well received by men who for one reason or another have been caught short by the Siberian blasts, which, incidentally, sometimes send the temperature in North Korea to 65 below zero. Reports continue of complaints about inadequate underwear, overcoats and boots, and they are most acute among men on the extreme ends of the fighting. But the explanation that these are isolated cases squares pretty well with the known effort of the Army to have winter clothing on hand in the Far East.

Actually, the Quartermaster Corps anticipated the possible need and began to ship heavy clothing to Korea in July and August. The Army, however, shared the general optimism over the advance to the north, and when it began to look as if some troops might be returned to Japan, a portion of the supplies was held there. This was, of course, a miscalculation, and the reverses in the north and the entry of the Chinese Communists required a reshuffling of supply plans.

Since that time the main problem has been one of communications. For example, the port of Inchon is 200 miles from the front, and both railroads and highways are disrupted. Some attempt has been made to fly clothing by air, but of course the capacity is limited. Hence the fact that while suffering was not widespread, not all the men in the advance units had all the equipment they needed.

With respect to the Filipinos, whose commander has complained of insufficient clothing, part of the difficulty seems to arise over the fact that they are used to a semi-tropical climate. They receive the same clothing issue as GIs. Some of their dissatisfaction seems to stem, however, from a feeling that they are not being used as a combat unit, and on this point their complaint may be justified. Continued support of the Filipinos, who are both excellent fighters and an Asiatic people, is vitally important.

On a broad scale the record of the Quartermaster Corps and of American shipping companies to get supplies to Korea has been superb. The constant dilemma of course is to maintain adequate supply without overloading and impeding the fighting men—but there can be no patience with anything less than supreme efforts to see that the men exposed both to the weather and to the enemy have at least a minimum of physical comfort without turning them into pack mules.

City Of The Future

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has thrown out a stiff challenge to Congress and the City of Washington. It comes in the form of a comprehensive plan for the "National Capital Region." On paper Washington is transformed into a modern decentralized city capable of accommodating a population of two million by 1980 without intolerable congestion and without the vertical piling up that New York, Chicago and other cities have resorted to. It is a happy vision of the future. The big question that arises is whether the Congress, the local community and the adjoining States of Maryland and Virginia will have the foresight to follow this pattern during the present period of over-rapid growth.

The comprehensive plan covers most of the area within a radius of 15 miles of the White House. The central idea of the NCPPC is that governmental agencies should be widely dispersed within this area. While this pattern took shape before the President's recent recommendation that important defense activities be scattered within a 30-mile radius of the Capital, only details will need to be modified. Strategic agencies can be pushed out farther than the NCPPC had contemplated without affecting the general scheme for the city of the future. Of course, the NCPPC had not attempted to select the exact spots where future Government offices are to be located on the outskirts of the present city. Each agency that can be shifted without loss of efficiency will have to decide its own location within the general pattern and with the approval of Congress. The commission's chief concern is that future growth shall be in the outskirts rather than in the congested center of the city.

Specifically, the commission says that no more than the present 140,000 Federal employes should be housed in the congested area west of the Capitol; that temporary structures should be removed and additional permanent Federal buildings be erected in the projected East Capitol st. development; that agencies which can be moved to the outskirts be located with easy access to the intermediate and outer circumferential highways that are a part of the plan. The pattern that the planners have worked out is essentially a series of rings within rings. The first ring would circumscribe the congested area. The second would be about 3 to 5 miles from the White House, following for the most part the route of the much-neglected Fort Drive. The third would be an outer bypass route about 6 to 10 miles from the White House. The fourth would be a cross-country loop.

Freeways and other major arteries of traffic would connect these circular routes with the center of the city, like the spokes of a wheel. Some of these thoroughfares are already in operation such as the Lee Boulevard, the Shirley Highway, the Indian Head Highway and portions of the George Washington Memorial Parkway. Others are yet to be built, and one of the most serious defects in the plan is its failure to link up the contemplated Northern Freeway with any expressway into the downtown area.

There is no assumption that these arteries of traffic would be a cure-all for congestion. The commission also stresses the need for improvement and greater use of public transportation facilities. It calls for public parking facilities at key locations related to the thoroughfare plan and urges that new apartments, stores and offices be required to make provision for parking for their occupants or customers.

It would be a mistake to suppose that the plan is concerned only with new developments in the outskirts. Much of its emphasis is on the redevelopment of blighted areas within the city. The commission recognizes that public authority must be exercised to take over slum areas, clear them and make the land available for use in harmony with the city-wide plan. It proposes to modernize zoning so as to control population density and substitute neighborhood business centers for commercial strip zoning.

What is most striking is the enormous gap between planning and performance. Even while this plan has been taking shape, the rapid growth of some areas without regard to over-all planning has probably made execution of parts of the plan impracticable. It is especially notable that rights of way for the most of the outer-circumferential route and for many other vital improvements have not been acquired. And the whole plan stands only as a recommendation to the numerous agencies and governmental units now feverishly engaged in building the city of the future. The most critical need is for a closer link between the planning and the building arms. If it cannot be achieved, this dream of the future can easily be changed into a nightmare.

AEC Secrecy

The notion that this country can attain, or maintain, scientific supremacy through secrecy has had a very damaging impact on national security. It is heartening, therefore, to learn that the Atomic Energy Commission is planning to recommend to Congress certain amendments to the law under which it operates which would have the effect of liberalizing security provisions that are no longer useful for secrecy purposes.

In an interview with the editors of U. S. News & World Report, AEC Chairman Gordon Dean cited a dual objective of the contemplated recommendations—"keeping secret those things which we should keep secret and at the same time getting on with the job." Indubitably there are, and always will be, secrets that need to be jealously guarded. But the importance of guarding all but the most vital secrets needs constantly to be weighed in relation to two competing considerations: (1) the consideration that secrecy may impede progress and efficiency; and (2) the consideration that secrecy may keep from the public information essential to the genuine functioning of government by the consent of the governed.

Mr. Dean illustrated the first consideration most graphically: "As this program has grown," he observed, "particularly as the military has become more and more acquainted with the problems of assembly and delivery (of bombs), you had to make some of this information—that is, the size, the weight, the shape and general characteristics of the gadget—you had to make that known to thousands upon thousands of people. Otherwise, you could tie your own hands, because we have to have pilots, ground crews, people in the crew of the plane. We have to have all kinds of service people, people who make this thing and see it."

You could tie your own hands, to use Mr. Dean's apt expression, by too rigorous a clearance procedure for personnel. "The time may come," he said, "when as many as 300,000 or 400,000 people must know things at the operational level in order to have real readiness." It costs a great deal of money—and what is more important, a great deal of FBI time and energy—to subject an individual to thorough investigation. Investigation requirements are already causing serious delays. Prudence certainly suggests that they be confined to key positions.

Excessive secrecy ties the hands of research workers. It keeps men from the exchange of ideas which is the essential pollenizing process in science. It hampers teaching in the whole field of nuclear physics and thus discourages the training of new researchers who might make valuable contributions. Above all, it blindfolds the people—keeping from them the knowledge without which they cannot make the decisions that may shape their own destiny. We are glad that Mr. Dean, like his predecessor David Lilienthal, seems to be seeking a rational balance between security through concealment and security through achievement and understanding.

Inspection Racket

Automobile inspection in Virginia appears to amount to whatever the garages can make out of it. The safety inspection system in operation across the Potomac is in the hands of the private garage owners. They decide whether or not an "approved" sticker is to be pasted on a windshield. They are also ready to do the repair work necessary to win their own approval. It is a system which so invites abuse that it would be a miracle if some garage owners did not take advantage of it.

When Post Reporter Sam Zagoria took a car the other day to three northern Virginia garages authorized to make inspections, he received three different diagnoses of the car's defects. He had previously taken it through a District government inspection station—where it failed to win approval on three counts. At the first of his Virginia stops, the car was rejected—but for reasons somewhat different from those that had brought about its rejection in the District. At the second stop, certain repairs were made by the garage attendant—though not the same repairs that had been designated as necessary at the previous stop—and the car was approved. At the third stop, additional repairs were prescribed and made, and the car was approved again. Each stop involved a fee for the inspection service, of course; additional charges were made for the repairs.

It would be a mistake to assume that each of the Virginia garage men who inspected this car was incorruptibly conscientious in his diagnosis, the fact remains that their safety standards differed appreciably. They used different types of apparatus to check brakes and headlights. They arrived, in some instances, at diametrically opposed judgments as to what ailed the car. The arrangement is one which affords Virginians very little assurance that unsafe cars will be kept off their highways. And it does not protect them from the danger of petty extortion by an occasional unscrupulous mechanic. Virginia would do well, we think, to adopt the system of government-operated inspection stations that has worked so well in the District.

Carter Barron

I desire to express my affection and respect for Carter T. Barron.

There is in this great city, it seems to me, a reflection of immortality. Each generation bridges the past to the future to chain together all that has been with all that yet shall be. Washington has flowered, and it will continue to flower in the future, upon the achievements of those who, like Carter Barron, have made its well-being their prime care.

Carter Barron was to each of us, even though some of us may never have known him, our friend and neighbor; one who reared a family and progressed in his professional and civic attainments in a routine very much like our own; one who has often led us in civic causes and hence has been deeply associated with us in the development of a city we love; one who only yesterday shared our hopes and aspirations, our victories and defeats, our disappointments and our undismayed ideals.

He realistically believed that nothing is better than we seek to make it and so applied all of his energy to any undertaking in which he was engaged. Courageously believing he could do great things for the City of Washington, he found himself able to accomplish them.

His generous contributions of painstaking time and service over the past 18 years will long be remembered by each of us and forever memorialized in the city he too loved.

Butler's Victory

Regarding "Butler's Victory," concerning which there was a very interesting letter in this morning's Post over the signature "F. S."

I very heartily agree with this writer that McCarthyism had very little indeed to do with the very satisfying result of last Tuesday's election. In all my conversations with voters preceding the election I never heard McCarthy's name mentioned once.

I am quite convinced that the thousands of registered Democrats who voted the Republican ticket were just simply tired, disgusted and despairing of any improvement unless and until we had a change.

One other thing influenced me to vote for Mr. Butler: I knew that Mr. Tydings was in favor of the iniquitous, cockeyed farm-price-support thing and I didn't know but possibly Mr. Butler might be against it.

On the whole, I think it was a very salutary renovation of the political setup in Prince Georges County and in the State.

High School Drinking

I see that the "Fillyloo" bird is still with us and always will be. This time he is squawking about drinking and gambling at high school football games. Every year we hear the same squawk.

I remember a football game at Central back in 1921. Thirty of us (maybe more) bought a quart of corn whisky. We even formed a betting pool and sent the money down to McKinley looking for takers.

We were devils. Everybody got at least one taste of that vile stuff and felt better because he had violated school rules and Federal laws. Some of the devils even smoked and leered at the girls.

I think the real trouble is that the "Fillyloo" bird while flying backward is burned up at the younger generation enjoying life. Most "Fillyloo" birds have tasted of the pepper of life and are afraid the little ones can't stand it. He ought to know they'll have the same percentage of hits and misses we had.

Pakhtunistan

We have heard from many sources that the Pakistan government has again claimed the free Pakhtun territory between Afghanistan and Pakistan as an integral part of Pakistan and its people as subjects of Pakistan. Claims of this nature were first made by the Pakistan government about three years ago. Since that first attempt to mislead world opinion, ignoring the many century-old independence of the Pakhtuns, the Pakhtun leaders have been silenced by imprisonment in Pakistan jails, but the movement for defense of the freedom of our people has grown stronger and stronger. A parliamentary government was established last year about this time in free Pakhtun territory (Pakhtunistan).

The latest repetition of this absurd allegation has brought a strong denial from the parliamentary government of Pakhtunistan and by several counseling associations known as Safi, Mohmand and Bajawar. We are Pakhtuns, we have different customs and we are of a different race, language and culture from the Pakistanis. For centuries we have loved and guarded our independence above all else, and our people will never become subjects of Pakistan or of any foreign power.

Increased Penalties

Since the House District Crime Subcommittee is in the process of revising the District Criminal Code, I think more attention should be given to the penalties given in cases of abortion. The intended revisions have already been labeled as "drastic and tough." It seems to me that the committee should be "more" drastic and tougher in a case of abortion which is just another name for an act of murder. It's an age-old dodge to hide behind a euphonism to mask the true nature of a deed. Abortion is an attack upon innocent life and is murder—and it should be dealt with as murder.

If laws were such that the full penalty of murder were inflicted, perhaps there would be fewer of these crimes committed. The unborn child is essentially and substantially a human person even though he is unable to assert his right to live. This right to live is the same right which every person in this world enjoys. Who is to speak for and defend this right of the unborn?

Arlington School Bonds

In behalf of the Parent-Teacher Associations of Arlington County I wish to express thanks for the fine support your paper gave to our late lamented school bond issue. Just what Arlington can do in the face of the thousands of additional children who will crowd into our already bursting schools in the next few years is a problem which still faces us. However, we take heart in the fact that we have the enlightened support of such a paper as The Washington Post.

Deeds And Propaganda

What Mr. Frederick McKee says in his letter of November 19 is very true—but it just doesn't go far enough. It is the worst sort of delusion to believe that propaganda by itself, no matter how voluminous and skillful, suffices to win and hold friends. Propaganda is vital, but our propaganda will not succeed unless we realize that deeds, rather than words, are the most effective kind of propaganda. Mr. McKee and many others seem to think that all we have to do is "sell democracy" around the globe, as our hucksters so successfully sell toothpaste and cigarettes to us here at home.

Experts in the art of public relations know that words alone are not enough to turn those who are foes or neutrals into loyal, earnest friends. Our words will be effective only if we couple them with deeds that these people whose friendship we want and need will receive substantial personal benefits from.

Let us be specific. The Communists have taken China and apparently will shortly have Tibet. Their next target, obviously, is giant India. If the Kremlin and its Peiping partners can add India's hundreds of millions to the tremendous population masses they already rule, the Communists will be a long way forward in their drive to enslave all the world. Therefore, it is imperative that we move and move effectively to prevent India from going the way of China. And we must move awfully fast.

Will propaganda keep India from going down the wrong road? Will a great "campaign of truth" do it? Will words dealing with the merits of democracy and the free enterprise system make the least impression upon hundreds of millions of undernourished Indians? Not at all. Especially not when the Communists, in their war of words, promise full bellies. Of course, the Communists are lying, but what they offer, in their propaganda, has far more appeal to hungry people than what we are telling them when we describe representative government and our other glories.

What then would keep India out of Stalin's clutches? Very simple. If every American who is overweight would contribute one can of food daily and if our Government would contribute hundreds of tons of surplus foodstuffs jamming the warehouses, and if we then get that food into the bellies of the hungry common people of India, we would be making propaganda-of-the-deed that would be so effective as to nullify completely the appeal of Moscow's alluring and lying word propaganda.

We can provide hundreds of tons of surplus Government food and the citizens of the United States, if properly appealed to, would willingly contribute millions of cases of canned goods to keep India in our camp instead of letting her fall to the enemy, as China has done. We can send the stuff over in our own ships. And we must remember to see to it that what we give goes straight to the common people—is distributed by us, the United States, to them—and that they know who provided it.

Now, with such an action, which has tangible benefits for the little fellow, we have something to make propaganda about. Then words will have some effect. But words alone—even the "more and better" words recommended by Mr. McKee—cut little if any ice with these people in distant lands. Go in there and fill up their kids' bellies, and they'll all understand you—the man who can read and the illiterate alike. That one act is worth a million words that are not coupled with deeds.

With all due respect to President Truman, who has shown himself to be quite farsighted in many matters, the great campaign of truth which he advocates will fail utterly unless we remember to come through constantly with effective, friend-making deeds to go along with the dissemination of our democratic propaganda.

Caste Issue In Television

By Malvina Lindsay

Gadget Snobbery

THE FURORE over a recent television advertisement has emphasized the growing social force of the country's latest gadget. It has unveiled a caste issue that may have political implications.

Television snobs no doubt are elaborately classified in the new best seller on the fine points of American snobbery. But to the average observer two types stand out: those who feel superior to persons not owning television sets, and those who look down their noses at those who do own them. The first attitude affects children most directly; the second already is raising some storm signals for the welfare state.

The widely criticized advertisement brought into the open the power that caste and clique, based on material possessions, especially gadgets, hold on children and youth. It revealed the modern whip being held over parents' backs.

The advertisement pictured children feeling cheated and ostracized because they lacked television sets. Parents who objected to it said it placed them in a position of guilt. Yet many parents recognize the very real dilemma of the boy or girl most of whose playmates see television programs and constantly talk about them.

THE PARENTS also are in a dilemma. They may not be able to afford television. They may prefer other home activities for their children. Yet "everybody's doing it." Television is becoming a big part of the age in which their children are growing up.

Child psychologists tell them to compensate in other ways, to provide other social outlets, make home life more interesting. But it is hard for a busy and often tired parent to compete with Howdy Doody.

There is also the question: When will this thing end? Does Junior have to have every gadget his playmates have in their homes? How can he be disciplined for life if he never has to do without anything he wants?

Educators insist the need of keeping up with the Joneses' children has been exaggerated, and that parents who yield to it are merely strengthening the hold of gadget snobbery and laying up trouble for themselves and their children. Thus the already harassed parent struggles with another machine age problem.

But the television caste issue also crops up in the adult world. Here we have some snob subdivisions. There is (a) the esthete who regards all video owners as persons of low taste who spend their evenings looking at wrestlers and "hostesses" with plunging necklines, and (b) the solid citizen or outraged taxpayer who deplores the way in which those who live in shacks and tenements are buying television sets instead of groceries.

Then there is (c) the family in the low income group who feels that television sets are symbols of status. Social workers say that the status value of video ownership is especially great in many underprivileged groups.

THIS SITUATION has its political aspects. If the poor must have television sets and spend their last dollars to get them, why, it is being asked, should the taxpaying public supply housing, medical aid and even relief? And board members of charitable agencies are beginning to echo these questions.

Social workers admit that television has a strong hold on their clients. They regret the weakness and financial mismanagement that cause many families to do without adequate food and clothing in order to sit each night before a television screen. But at least, they point out, the children are off the streets and the family is having a good time together.

Moreover, the family in sordid surroundings with few social outlets is naturally drawn to this form of escape—and of social prestige. And persons who lack the training and self-discipline that background and education can give are more vulnerable to the idea that a few dollars down will almost instantly enlarge their visual world.

The social controversy over television recalls the early days of the motor car when there was widespread cry that it would wreck the home and the morals of youth. It did indeed cause social upsets—good and bad. So do all inventions that bring change in living habits.

An unfortunate current aspect of television is that its snobbery value is being emphasized. But every gadget has this to some extent. Remember the early snobbery over makes of radios and of motor cars? Ultimately the television set will make its way on its own, and not on the Joneses' appraisal.

Arlington Voters

By a handful of votes at the November 7 election the children of Arlington County lost a bond issue to build badly needed school facilities. Only if those parents who want to avoid half-day sessions for all the grades, only if all parents wake up to their responsibility to get registered to vote, may we hope to pass the bond issue when it comes up in a few months.

Why not add "poll tax receipts" to your Christmas shopping list for your children? In the long run wouldn't a vote for more schools be far better than a toy soon broken. You can mail your check for capitation taxes to the treasurer at the Arlington County Court House.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

What Are They Up To?

WHAT are the Chinese really up to in Korea?

There has never been a time when those experts who are supposed to have a ready answer to this sort of question have been more obviously puzzled and uncertain. The uncertainty springs from the contradiction between what the Chinese are doing and what they are saying.

Everything the Chinese Communists are saying points clearly to the conclusion that they are ready for a war with the United States. The Chinese leaders are quoted approvingly in the Moscow press as shouting that the "American interventionists" must be driven into the sea. The whole tone of the internal Chinese propaganda is that of a nation being prepared for all-out war.

Yet the evidence of the battlefield suggests just as clearly that the Chinese are by no means anxious for total war with this country. Since the first fierce attack, the Chinese have put up little real resistance. The Chinese could only seriously hope to defeat MacArthur's forces, which enjoy great superiority in airpower and firepower, by overwhelming manpower. Yet the estimated 60,000 or so Chinese troops in Korea, are enough only for a tentative holding action—and all the indications are that the 60,000 figure is very greatly inflated. Moreover, this Chinese force is now receiving only a thin trickle of reinforcements. Thus the contradiction between Chinese words and Chinese deeds.

ACCORDING to certain State Department officials (whose views are strongly supported by the British), both Chinese words and Chinese deeds indicate a real, and hysterical, panic in Peking, which is being sedulously cultivated by the Soviets. The Chinese Communists are utterly without past experience or present contact with the Western World, and they may actually be convinced that the fighting in Korea is a planned prelude to the invasion of China.

According to this school of thought, the best way to prevent the war from spreading—which is the universally agreed American objective—is to instruct MacArthur to hold his troops back 10 or 20 miles from the Chinese borders. The Chinese should also be offered a U. N.-administered buffer zone along the borders, and there should be no threats of bombing supply lines in China proper. Since what must be avoided is a convulsive, fear-motivated Chinese reaction.

A precisely contrary view is held in the Defense Department, and clearly by General MacArthur himself. This is that the way to discourage the Chinese from all-out intervention is to press on to the borders, at the same time making it clear to the Chinese that if they seriously challenge MacArthur in Korea they will have to pay the price of heavy bombing of their vital installations in Manchuria. Both these views have been presented to the National Security Council, and all the indications are that the second has prevailed.

It may be that, faced with a bold front, the Chinese will quietly back down, as the Russians have repeatedly done. Yet the fact is that hope of any real settlement with the Chinese is increasingly faint and flickering. It is significant, for example, that the chief of the Chinese delegation now on its way to Lake Success is the Russian-educated and Russian-speaking of Wu Hsiu-chuan. Wu is expected merely to repeat the fierce, familiar phrases of Russia's Malik and Vishinsky. It will be nothing short of miraculous if he shows the faintest inclination to negotiate seriously.

IT MAY BE that the Chinese, in their total isolation from all contact except with Moscow, really expect the United States and its allies to bow to the tentative show of force in Korea. Is so, they will, of course, be disappointed. And bar an unostentatious Chinese withdrawal from Korea, this brings a real war between this country and China very near indeed.

The United States could, if need be, fight a war of a sort with China, by establishing a defense line at the narrow neck of the Korean peninsula, bombing Chinese industry and supply lines, and actively supporting the half million or so anti-Communist guerillas in South China. For a time, perhaps, it may come to this. But the fact is that this kind of war is an essentially futile and impossible war—"a war between the shark and the tiger," as one of the experts put it. It would be insanity for this country to commit itself to a war which would be both endless and strategically meaningless. On this point again, there is universal agreement among responsible officials.

There is agreement on a further point. The question—what are the Chinese up to in Korea?—is really the wrong question. The real question is: What are the Russians up to in Asia? The answer to this question appears plainer every day. The Russians intend to engage American power indefinitely in Asia, while Russian power is left free to move elsewhere. This is an answer which, in the long run, this country cannot and will not accept.

Morse's Enemies

By Marquis Childs

Seniority And Foreign Relations

WHEN it comes time to select the new Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the GOP leaders in the Senate will have to make a choice that can have unhappy repercussions. It is a prize sought by several ambitious men and with the prize goes a voice in a forum heard around the world.

Childs

Recent news stories have represented the choice as being between Senator William F. Knowland of California and Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon. This is on the theory that since the West Coast is not represented on the committee, a seat should go to that great and swiftly growing region with its vital interest in Asia. On the basis of seniority, the seat must go to Morse, who has served in the Senate nine months longer than Knowland.

To break the seniority rule, as Republican bigwigs well know, is to violate a fundamental rule of party conduct. Moreover, in this instance it would serve as a proclamation that the GOP put obstructionism in foreign policy ahead of the sacrosanct seniority rule.

Such a move would bring fireworks from Morse, who is one of the most articulate men in the Senate. But it would place on the committee a spokesman for the cause of Nationalist China. Knowland, now visiting Formosa and Japan, would speak for the Asian policy of his great hero, General MacArthur.

THIS is the goal of leading Republicans such as Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire. Others, however, see the danger in precipitating this break, particularly in view of the letter sent to Morse by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who advised the Oregonian that the time had come to collect on his "IOU," for a a Foreign Relations seat.

They are likely to prevail with a compromise. Under that compromise neither Morse nor Knowland would get the coveted seat. Instead, it would go to a Republican Senator with seniority outranking both Knowland and Morse.

Morse would then have no grievance. He could merely observe that once again the West Coast had been ignored. Even this could be obviated if Morse's colleague from Oregon, Senator Guy Cordon, would agree to fill the vacancy. But Cordon would probably hesitate since such a maneuver would obviously be aimed at blocking Morse.

There is no doubt that a great many rich and powerful Republicans, who hate Morse more than they do any Democrat except possibly President Truman, are out to block him. In the Republican primary contest in the spring, Eastern Republicans sent generous contributions to Morse's opponent, Dave Hoover, a hitherto unknown dairy farmer. Among the contributors were Ernest T. Weir of Pittsburgh, chairman of the National Steel Corp.; Frederick C. Crawford of Cleveland, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Charles E. Merrill of New York, head of the brokerage firm of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

DEFEATED in the primary, Hoover came out for Howard Latourette, the Democrat running against Morse. On the night before the election Hoover delivered a radio attack against Morse concluding:

"The choice tomorrow is between a great Jeffersonian Democrat and this self-appointed superman who wears red underwear."

The attack is believed to have helped Morse, who got just under 75 percent of the total vote. While the foreign policy issue may have been blurred in other States, Morse sought to make it unmistakably clear in Oregon. He told audience after audience that he did not want a single isolationist vote, adding, "All the isolationist has to sell you is a war to be fought in a few years in which America will be without allies."

Many of Morse's colleagues were riled by his speech before the AFL convention in Houston, Tex., in September. In that speech he denounced as "political hypocrisy" the George-Millikin amendment postponing a decision on an excess profits law. He went on to say that the voters would have a chance to pass on those responsible for this move.

Some GOPers took this as an invitation to labor to defeat Senator Eugene Millikin in Colorado. Senator Hugh Butler of Nebraska wrote Morse a savage letter of denunciation. Butler is one of those who will decide on how the Foreign Relations Committee vacancy is to be filled.

The present mood of the Republican leadership is to avoid stirring up the animals (this does not apply, of course, to Democrats, who are to be goaded on every occasion). A relatively painless compromise looks, therefore, like the way out of an intraparty scrap.

Urban Traffic Jam Solutions Discussed at C. of C. Parley

Problems of American cities—how to clear traffic jams and reclaim "blighted" areas—were discussed by members of the United States Chamber of Commerce yesterday in the closing sessions of a two-day conference on "Creating Better Cities."

The solutions were many and varied, with C. of C. spokesmen from across the Nation proudly explaining how they worked.

One of the first was the Norfolk, Va., story, told by Mayor W. F. Duckworth. A five-man commission was appointed by the city government after it became apparent that "congestion was stifling business."

This group, after an eight-month study, "worked out a traffic plan calling for the extensive use of one-way streets, re-routing of the major bus lines, parking and truck delivery prohibitions during peak hours and several innovations." The result was a 3 to 10 mile-an-hour overall speedup in traffic and no rise in the accident rate.

Hagerstown Plan

Another Washington neighbor, Hagerstown, Md., found "immediate relief could be obtained by a system of one-way streets at practically no cost." E. Leiser Mobley, jr., president of the town's Retailers' Bureau, said the streets made a "great improvement" in movement of vehicular traffic.

In Atlanta, Ga., a more elaborate program has been started. It calls for a 40-million-dollar expressway system and five-million-dollar mercury vapor lighting system for business and arterial streets. This was described by Robert R. Snodgrass, vice president, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

A transit spokesman, Donald H. Walker of Fort Wayne, Ind., submitted a paper emphasizing the need for use of buses. "One bus with an average load of passengers contains more people than are contained in all of the crawling cars in a sizable city block. One individual carried over the streets in a private car requires seven times as much room as the same person carried in a transit vehicle," he argued.

Delivery Delays Costly

A St. Louis, Mo., speaker, Austin Knetzger of the city's Association of Team and Truck Owners, reminded conferees that delays in pickup and deliveries by trucks run from 6 to 10 cents per minute. "Industry must absorb this cost, whether productive or nonproductive, and eventually it is transmitted to the ultimate consumer," he declared.

Knetzger urged consolidation of outgoing freight, which is being followed in St. Louis, and has cut costs of load movements considerably.

Urban redevelopment programs in Indianapolis, Chicago, Nashville and Pittsburgh were described by officials of the cities.

The Pittsburgh plan followed institution of a smoke control program four years ago. Park H. Martin, executive director, Allegheny Conference on Community Development, said that since the drive began Pittsburgh's "Golden Triangle" has not been visited with a single smog.

Doctor Pleased by Reaction In Texas Sterilization Case

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 21 (AP).—Dr. J. M. Stephens said today he was pleased with public reaction in this Texas border town to his stand on a sterilization operation he was stopped from performing in a Catholic hospital.

The 36-year-old physician said he was "dismissed" last Friday from the staff of the Catholic Mercy Hospital here for sterilizing a maternity patient. He said he considered the operation necessary from a medical standpoint.

He said he was stopped from completing the operation by a sister who walked into the operating room while he was closing the incision. He said the sister ordered him to untie fallopian tubes he had closed in the sterilizing process. He complied.

Sister Mary Stanislaus, in charge of the hospital's third-floor operating room, denied that Dr. Stephens was dismissed.

"He has been denied the use of the hospital for violating a national code of ethics established for Catholic hospitals in regard to these matters," she told the Brownsville Herald.

Dr. Stephens first said he would carry the case to the State Board of Health. But today he changed his mind. He said he had received a number of calls commending his stand.

"The reaction has been so favorable that I will let the public carry the ball from now on," he said.

Dr. Stephens said he knew he violated the hospital rule, but he did what he thought was best for the patient.

Couple Beats Covenant

An Arlington Circuit Court order yesterday directed two county developers to permit an Arlington couple to build in their subdivision, despite a racial covenant.

In entering his order—which he said was agreeable to both parties—Judge Walter T. McCarthy told reporters he felt the racial issue "has nothing to do with" the decision.

The suit was brought by Sol Adelman and his wife, Mrs. Dorothy K. Adelman, both of 629 N. Illinois st., Arlington.

They asked that the developers, Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Behm of 212 S. Garfield st., permit the Adelmans to build on a lot they owned in the Shirley Woods development despite a covenant excluding "any person of the Semitic race."

Judge McCarthy explained that deeds in the development provided that all house plans and specifications be approved by Mr. and Mrs. Behm.

He said, however, that the developers had declined to approve plans submitted by the Adelmans. At the time, the Behms gave as their reason the racial covenant clause.

Judge McCarthy said the only issue he had to decide was whether the plans conformed to standards of the development. His order directed Mr. and Mrs. Behm to approve the plans and permit the Adelmans to build on the lot they own in the 4900 block of North Yorktown blvd.

Herb Doctors Balked In Federal Actions

Herb doctors, too, come under the watchful eye of Federal agents assigned to protect the public against fake "cures" for what ails you.

The Food and Drug Administration, here, reported that its activities last month included successes in Federal court actions to curb the shipment of worthless nostrums by an "Indian Herb Doctor" and an "African Herb Doctor."

The Indian was identified as Tom G. Sanders of Wanette, Okla., who was permanently enjoined on October 17 from further shipments of an unlabeled drug. The drug was falsely represented as a cure for cancer, diabetes, heart, stomach and kidney diseases, and other serious disorders, FDA officials said.

Ran Motor Court

Sanders operated a motor court, advertised in picture postcards as "the little community of cabins, cottages and stores around the cottage of Tom Sanders, known as the Indian Herb Doctor . . . sick and afflicted persons . . . come from all over United States in request of relief of their ailments."

What they got, the agents said, was an ineffective concoction of ground-up hoof, horn and other external animal growth, milk, water and a small amount of nitrates.

Sanders came under FDA scrutiny when he allegedly shipped the liquid—at $5 a quart—to patients in other States.

African Herb Doctor

The African Herb Doctor was identified as Samuel P. Shokunbi, of Memphis, Tenn. He called his products Tree of Life General Tonic, Asthma Aid, Hair Growing Aid, and Nervien, and had 23 agents selling them in the mid-South, the FDA officials said.

Testifying for the Government, Dr. David I. Macht, medical authority, of Baltimore, said the herb mixtures were "the most pernicious types of medical practice prevalent in the dark ages." The hair growth aid, he said, contained haircap moss, selected for the brew only because the moss resembles human hair.

Activities of the FDA in October included seizure of 125 shipments for violations of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Of these, the report noted, 83 contained unfit foods, and 26 involved various types of consumer cheats, such as short weight or other failures to meet professed standards.

The council also renewed a request that Prince Georges County commissioners furnish school bus service for children in northwest Hyattsville who attend University Park School. A previous bid was denied.

The council voted to renew comprehensive liability and workmen's compensation insurance for city employes with Alfred R. Keir Co. at an annual premium of $3210.50.

U. S. Output Hits New High During July-Sept. Period

By The Associated Press

The Commerce Department reported yesterday that the Nation's total output of goods and services during the July-September period hit an all-time high annual rate. It came close to President Truman's prediction of a 300-billion-dollar-a-year total by 1955.

But rising prices had a lot to do with the record upsurge, the department said.

And in that sense it was still far short of Mr. Truman's goal.

The department said consumer spending shot up by an unprecedented $13,200,000,000-a-year rate during the three-month period. This boosted the annual spending volume to a record total of $198,400,000,000.

In turn, this mass assault on retail counters figured in the increase in the so-called gross national product—the total output of goods and services—to reach an historic high of $284,300,000,000.

It came close to the 300-billion-dollar-a-year total output goal President Truman spoke last January of attaining "within five years," but there was a hitch in it.

The President said he meant 300 billion dollars worth of goods and services valued at the prices prevailing at the start of 1950. Much of the $30,500,000,000 a year rise since then has been due to increased prices.

The Commerce Department said, in fact, that one third of the $13,200,000,000 jump in consumer spending in the third quarter of this year, compared with the previous quarter, "stemmed from higher prices."

Purchases of greater quantities following the outbreak of the Korean war on June 25 accounted for the other two thirds of the increase, but the department saw a price angle in that, too.

Baptist Group Returns to Lay Control

The D. C. Baptist Convention was returned to lay control yesterday with the election of Herbert W. Ludwig, a retired Government employe, as president.

In a floor fight unprecedented in recent history, the three-term vice president was elevated by a 90-49 vote over the incumbent, the Rev. Frank B. Burress, pastor of Fountain Memorial Church.

His election reversed a tradition shattered last year when for the first time in the 74-year history of the convention, a minister was elected to succeed a minister. Prior to that the laity and clergy had alternated.

Nominating Committee Choice

Ludwig, a member of the Petworth Church, was named as the nominating committee's choice while Mr. Burress' candidacy came from the floor. Oldtimers could remember no previous open contest for the office.

Other officers—all elected unanimously—were: the Rev. Henry R. Osgood, of Hyattsville First Church, vice president; Clinton C. Hennings, of Takoma Park Church, secretary; Mrs. Herbert Keefer, of Metropolitan, assistant secretary; and Lee M. Clarke, of Brookland, treasurer.

A floor resolution by the Rev. Wilbur F. Ripley, pastor of Fairway Chapel, was unanimously adopted opposing appointment by the President of an official representative to the Vatican.

President Truman was also requested, in another motion, to set aside a day of prayer for world peace.

Next year's seventy-fifth anniversary meeting was voted for Second Baptist Church, 17th and E. Capitol sts. with the Rev. Herbert W. Baucom, jr., pastor of Takoma Park Church, as convention preacher. The Rev. Frank L. Squires was named as an alternate. The meeting this year was at Chevy Chase Church, 5671 Western ave. nw.

Cigarette Tax Opponents Hire Lawyer

Alexandria merchants are mapping a new fight against a 2-cents-per-pack cigarette tax adopted by the city council last June as an "emergency" revenue measure.

Officials of the Retail Merchants Association said yesterday they had engaged an attorney and were accumulating evidence which they hoped would convince the council that the tax is not necessary in 1951.

The cigarette levy was adopted by the council to offset a threatened deficit of $119,000. Instead, the city will end its calendar year with a surplus of more than $500,000, according to a tentative budget prepared by City Manager W. Guy Ancell.

Despite the surplus, the cigarette tax has been listed in the proposed new budget. According to Ancell, it will bring an estimated $150,000 in the new year.

Irvin M. Hufford, chairman of a retail merchants' committee in opposition to the tax, said yesterday the surplus in the tentative budget figure bore out the view of cigarette tax opponents that it was unnecessary.

The merchants' association is obtaining data from local retail stores to bolster its case. Hufford said cigarette smokers have gone outside the city to buy cigarettes. As a result he added, they have "changed their buying habits" and are patronizing outside stores for other goods as well.

He said the merchant's association will concentrate its fight on the tax at the annual budget hearings, to be held at an unannounced date.

Capital Transit Votes Another $1 Dividend

By S. Oliver Goodman

Directors of Capital Transit Co. yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share, payable December 20 to stock of record December 4.

This is the second successive $1 quarterly payment and will bring total dividends for this year to $3 a share, largest in the 17-year history of the transit firm. In the first two periods, 50 cents a share was paid.

A spokesman for Capital Transit said that estimated earnings for this year are more than adequate to cover the increased dividend requirements.

The company's earnings picture apparently has changed since 1948 when only one 50-cent dividend was paid for the entire year. Last year, $2 a share was distributed and a like amount was paid from 1943 through 1947.

New management has instituted sharp economies and obtained a fare increase since a group, headed by Louis E. Wolfson, bought stock control in mid-1949. Earnings have especially pointed upward since July 16, when the latest fare boost went into effect.

In the meantime, Capital Transit reported it has filed applications with the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Public Utilities Commission for authority to split its common stock four for one. The transit board recommended this step on October 25 and stockholders will vote at a special meeting December 12 on the proposal.

If approved by all concerned, the outstanding 240,000 shares of $100 par stock would be changed to 960,000 shares of $25 par stock.

EXTRA AND BONUS: Directors of the Bank of Commerce and Savings yesterday voted an extra dividend of $1 a share in addition to the regular quarterly of $2.50 a share. Also, a bonus of one month's salary was authorized to staff members. The extra dividend, payable December 30 to stock of record December 20, is the same as paid in June and brings this year's dividends to $12 a share. This is the same amount as paid last year, according to President Thomas J. Groom.

BANK MELON: American Security & Trust Co. voted an extra dividend of 25 cents a share, in addition to the regular quarterly of 25 cents, President Daniel W. Bell reported yesterday. Both dividends are payable December 26 to stock of record December 15 . . . National Mortgage & Investment Corp., Washington, declared a dividend of 30 cents a share on account of accrued dividends on the preferred stock, payable December 15 to stock of record November 30.

STATE BOND BID: An underwriting group managed by Union Securities Corp. yesterday submitted the apparent best bid received by the Maryland State Roads Commission for 25 million dollars of highway construction bonds. The bid named a net interest cost of 1.4505 percent to the commission for a combination of coupons. The syndicate is reoffering the bonds, subject to award, at prices to yield from 0.90 percent for those maturing Dec. 1, 1951, to 1.50 percent for those maturing Dec. 1, 1965.

BOOST VOTED: Stockholders of Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Washington yesterday approved an increase in capitalization to one million dollars from $600,000. This will be done by increasing outstanding 6000 shares of $100 par stock to 10,000 shares of $100 par. The additional 4000 shares will probably be distributed as a stock dividend. Aproval of the step will be sought from the District Insurance Department and the corporation counsel.

REGULARS VOTED: Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., yesterday reported regular quarterly dividends had been declared as follows: 37½ cents on common; 34¾ cents on 5½ percent preferred, and 28¼ cents on 4½ percent preferred. All dividends are payable December 30 to stock of record December 15.

DIVIDENDS: Directors of Lincoln Service Corp., Washington, yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share on the new common stock, placing it on a $1.20 annual basis. This is equivalent to $4.80 a share on the old stock, which recently was split four for one. Also the board of the small-loan firm voted an extra dividend of 75 cents a share on the 6 percent participating preferred stock in addition to the regular 37½-cent quarterly dividend. The usual quarterly of 87½ cents on the 7 percent preferred stock was declared. All dividends are payable December 12 to stock of record November 30.

BETTER TIMES: Eastern Air Lines declared a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable December 18 to stock of record December 1. This is the first dividend by the company since 1947. Said Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president and general manager: "The steady, healthy growth in gross revenues as well as net profits amply justify the resumption of dividends at this time."

ODD LOTS: Major security and commodity markets, including the Washington Stock Exchange, will be closed Thursday in observance of Thanksgiving Day . . . National Airlines reported October net profit of $171,455, against a net loss of $162,317 in same 1949 month . . . Preparations have been made to separate Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. into theater operating firm and a movie-making organization. Stocks of the two new companies will be delivered to RKO shareholders in exchange for presently outstanding stock . .

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

IT COMES UP Georgetown vs. George Washington on Saturday at Griffith Stadium, and those illegal but interesting football pools are saying it's even-money, a toss-up. That would be a heartening note for Georgetown's coach, Bob Margarita, save for the fact that he knows more about his football team than do the odds-makers.

The latest bit of intelligence gleaned by Margarita comes direct from the G. U. infirmary. He was advised yesterday that his fastest back, Dick Doyle, is a patient with a fractured vertebrae. Another back, Terry Murphy, is bedded down with a knee-cartilage operation. Guard Jack Schuster is out for the year. Halfback Bugs Thompson has an ankle limp.

POVICH

"We're hurt, but not hopeless," said Margarita bravely. "All season I've been marveling at my kids. They've never let me or themselves down yet. Somehow, maybe, we'll do all right against G. W."

Despite Georgetown's mere two victories this season, his lads have played good football, Margarita thinks. "When I rerun the pictures of our games, I work up a new admiration for our guys. I wouldn't be ashamed to show those pictures to anybody."

MARGARITA'S fondness for his Hoyas is understandable enough. He was talking about Thompson, who wasn't supposed to suit up for the Fordham game a couple weeks back because of a bad ankle. "The next thing I know, Thompson is in uniform and begging me to let him play," Margarita said.

"I asked him about the ankle, and he said, 'Shucks, it's only pain.' I let him go in there, and he gave us a 67-yard touchdown."

At this point in the season, Margarita also is hoping his Hoyas will get at least a little bit lucky. "We could use a few breaks. The only pass we've had intercepted for a touchdown in two years was by Villanova and it beat us.

"Against Fordham, the only game of the year in which kicking an extra point was important to us, Dick Haesler was unavailable. He'd been hurt during the week scrimmaging in a backfield that contained two guards and an assistant coach. Instead of Haesler, who has kicked 23 out of 24, we had to use an emergency kicker, and lost 14-13.

"I don't want this to sound as if I'm crying. But as long as you're asking, those are the facts. I'm not quitting on our guys, who have never quit on themselves or the coaches."

GEORGETOWN IS properly alerted to G. W.'s passing game, engineered chiefly by Andy Davis. "There may not be much style to Davis' passing, but he's always throwing and playing percentages. If he clicks on only three, they're liable to mean 21 points," said Margarita.

"And they're smart about throwing those long passes, too. When Davis gets one intercepted, they haven't lost much—it's as good as a punt. And they throw on any down, from any spot on the field."

Margarita's counter-weapon against Davis' passes is his good defensive back, Tom Hardiman, who has been hauling down everybody's passes all season. "Hardiman is a great football player," he says, "and the particular hero of my little boy, Jimmy.

"When his mother sent Jimmy off to bed the other night, she told him to ask, in his prayers, that God help us beat Holy Cross.

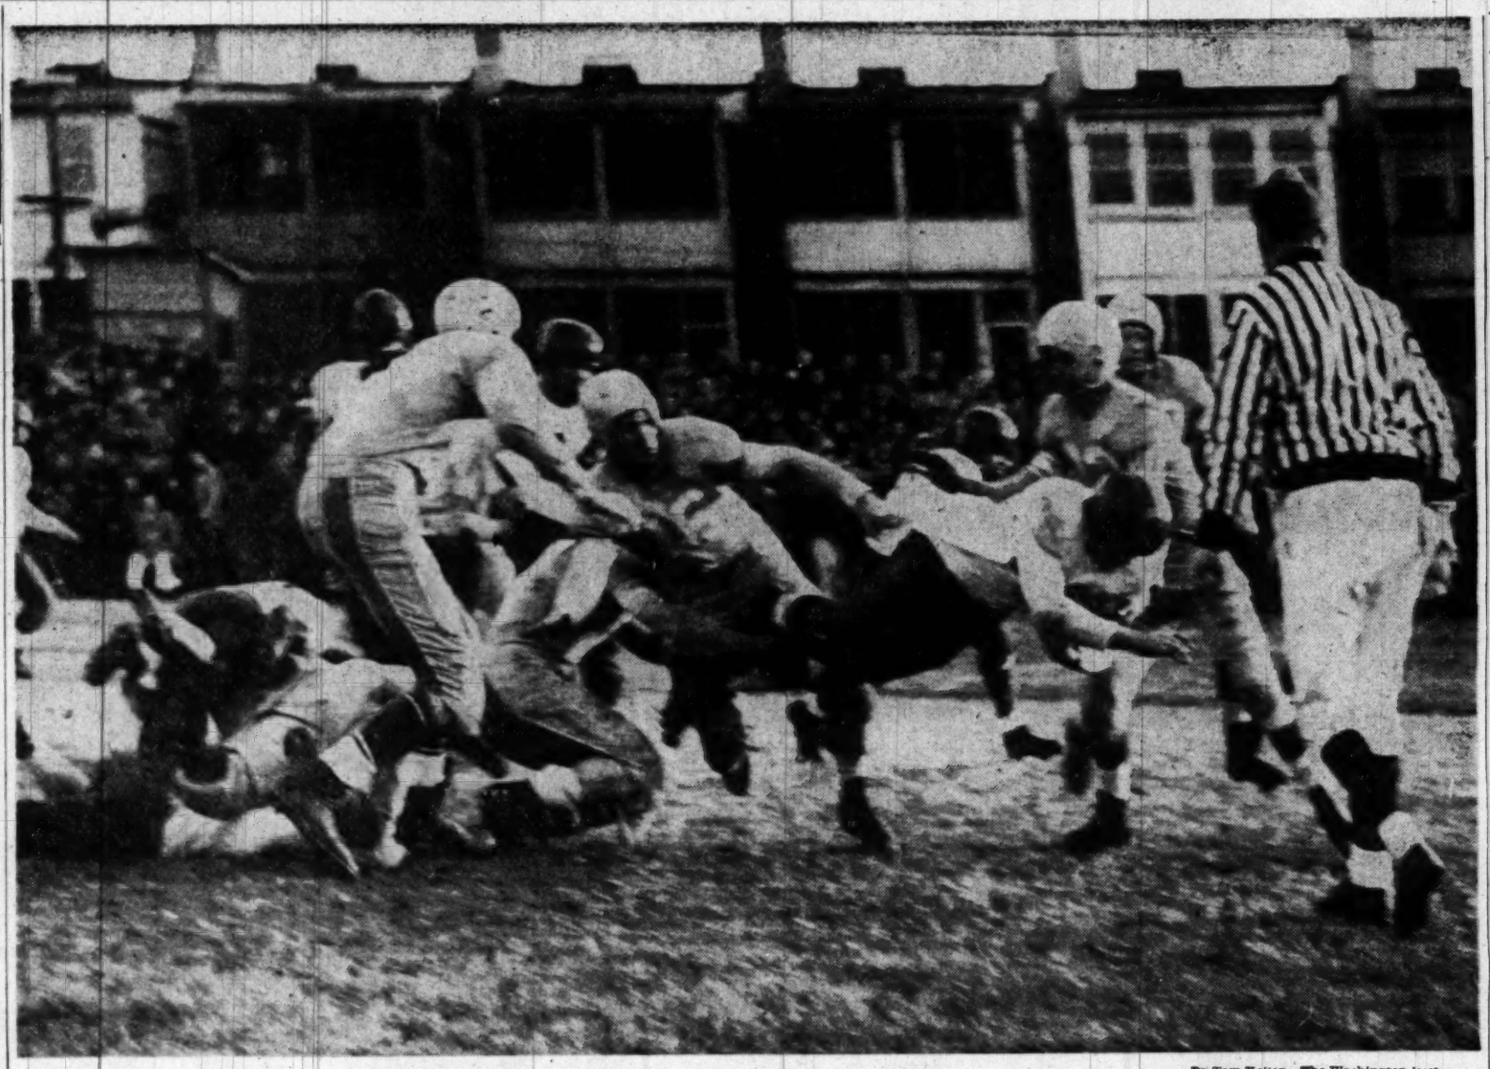
"Jimmy took her literally and prayed, 'Please, God, help us against Holy Cross, all except Tom Hardiman—he doesn't need it.'"

OVER AT George Washington, Coach Bo Rowland is hardly working up any pregame sympathy for Georgetown. He was up at Worcester last weekend with his assistants, watched the Hoyas run up a 21-7 lead at the half, and then sit on it to score an upset victory. He got a good look at Halfback Ralph Charney, of the Hoyas.

"They tell me Charney was operated on for an appendectomy earlier in the season," said Rowland. "What a recovery he must have made. I fear it was too successful for our good."

Rowland's team threw only four passes in grinding out a 28-7 win over Georgetown last season. In fact, Rowland has a record of his own to maintain. The Colonials scored their first win over G. U. in 58 years in his maiden season at G. W., and last year went on to a second straight victory.

Advised that Margarita had paid high compliment to the G. W. line "which I saw outplay Maryland's line earlier in the season," Rowland was gratified. "That is nice of Bob," said Bo, "and I hope that he really knows good line play and that ours is as good as he says."



KOBER CRASHES THROUGH—Anacostia was still in the thick of the fight for the Group I Interhigh Championship when Fullback Pat Kober slammed through the middle of Eastern't line for 9 yards in the third quarter of yesterday's playoff game at Anacostia. Eastern won, 3-2

Keys' 35-Yd. Field Goal Beats Out Anacostia

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Dave Keys kicked the first Interhigh field goal in 11 years yesterday and it lifted his Eastern team into the Championship Game against McKinley Tech Friday night at Griffith Stadium.

A tremendous 35-yard placement, made with the help of a stiff tailwind gave Eastern a 3-2 triumph over Anacostia in the Group I playoff game at Anacostia.

It came in the second quarter and provided the hard-hitting Ramblers with just enough cushion to stand off an Anacostia safety in the fourth quarter.

12	First Downs	12
155	Yards Gained Rushing	111
21	Yards Gained Passing	0
10	Passes Attempted	2
3	Passes Completed	0
0	Passes Intercepted	0
2	Number of Punts	6
35	Average Yards on Punts	26.6
2	Fumbles Lost	2
127	Yards Penalized	10

Not since Marvin Kogod kicked two field goals for Roosevelt in 1939 had an Interhigh player booted a three-pointer. But as far as his Eastern mates were concerned, Keys' good kick came just in time.

Keys conceded Anacostia its two points by grounding the ball in his end zone under orders from his coach, Dick Mentzer. It was a smart move because Eastern was backed to its one-yard line, and a punt wouldn't have carried far into a stiff headwind.

Indians Miss Goal

That safety occurred with three minutes left, and with a minute left, dogged Anacostia made its deepest penetration of the afternoon. With the help of a 15-yard interference penalty, the Indians speared to Eastern's 16.

Anacostia Coach Zuzu Stewart sent in Ed Laso, his placement artist to try to match Keys' field goal. Laso was standing in almost the same spot as Keys, but he never got his kick off the ground. Anacostia's usually reliable quarterback, Jimmy Matthews, who was to hold the ball for Laso, made a ghastly bobble, and it was Eastern's ball and game.

It was one of the most evenly played games of the year. Each team penetrated the other's 30-yard line twice, and the 20-yard line once.

The only time Eastern moved inside of Anacostia's 20, Keys stepped back and made his field goal. The time Anacostia slammed inside Eastern's 20, Laso didn't get his field goal off the ground. Neither team resorted much to passing because of the wind conditions, and the result was a bruising ground game. Tackling was fierce and blocking deadly.

Anacostia was defanged early in the first quarter when its star fullback, Dick Grimes, was knocked out trying to make a tackle, and he never returned. Bobby Chatlin, the Indians' prize tailback, was shaken up in the first quarter, too, and though he made a couple of last-ditch tackles, he wasn't as sharp as usual on offense.

Bob Murray and Phil Mulrenin, Eastern's 200-pound tackles, and End Jim Hunter, Richie Ward and Don Prinder were great on defense. Ward, however, watched the finish of the game from the bench, where he was sent by officials for slugging in the fourth quarter.

The first quarter was played between the 35-yard lines, and Eastern was backed to its own

Georgia Subs For Maryland In Cup Game

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

American Legion sponsors of the December 9 Presidential Cup Game switched signals last night and now hope to trot out the University of Georgia as the opponent of Texas A and M in the Byrd Stadium contest.

Georgia replaced the University of Maryland as the Legionnaires' No. 1 choice to play the thrice-beaten Aggies late yesterday when the Terp athletic board failed to reach a decision on Maryland's participation after a 3-hour meeting.

From Athens, Ga., last night, a spokesman for the University of Georgia told The Washington Post:

"If we do accept the invitation to play, it won't be until Wednesday morning."

Announcement Due Today

By a strange coincidence, Legion officials last night said, "We will announce the two teams this morning."

Barlow (Bones) Irvin, Texas A. and M. athletic director, spent the day with Legion officials here.

"We are willing and hope to play in the game," he said last night, "provided certain conditions are met, and I think they will be ironed out tomorrow morning."

Texans Seek Guarantee

Irvin did not say what the conditions were, but it was learned that the Aggies had asked the Legionnaires to post a cash guarantee in the bank for the Aggies' appearance.

The Texans, who must pay the Southwest Conference 25 percent of what they get for playing in the game, estimate it will cost them $8000 to bring a 44-man squad to Washington for three days.

Just what caused Maryland to balk at playing in the game was not revealed. Some sources said the Terps demanded the same guarantee the Aggies asked, while others believed the Terps preferred to sit out the December 9 game and gamble on their chances of landing a New Year's Day bowl invitation.

Georgia, which has lost but one game and tied three, beat Maryland, 27-7, in the season's opener September 23.

Coast Rider Phones He'll Race Monday

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

BOWIE, Nov. 21.—Willie Shoemaker and Joe Culmone will meet head-on at this track on Monday's program.

The West Coast jockey, tied with his East Coast rival with 333 winners, agreed by telephone today to fly east this weekend for the one-day stand.

Shoemaker told a representative of General Manager L. Ed O'Hara that he and his agent would make the trip providing suitable plane reservations could be made. These were obtained late today.

The Bowie management has agreed to pay all expenses for Shoemaker and Harry Silbert, his agent. Horsemen are being contacted to insure the El Paso, Texas, boy suitable mounts.

Silbert said, "We expect that bill will ride the full card. The people at the track and the newspaper racing writers have been swell and we're anxious to make the trip."

Nonchalant About It

Culmone received word that Shoemaker might come here with his usual nonchalance, shrugging his shoulders in a "so what?" manner. However, he confided to friends he would like to get head-and-head with Willie in the stretch.

Both boys are 19 years old. Culmone learned to ride plow horses in Sicily. Shoemaker received his first saddle experience on quarter-horses in Texas. Each was a sensation as an apprentice rider and both jumped the gap into journeyman booting without missing a beat.

They have never met and have never ridden at the same track before.

Monday is an off day at Hollywood Park and Shoemaker, according to the West Coast grapevine, was not keen about riding on Sunday programs at Mexico's Agua Caliente track, which might be a factor in his acceptance of the Bowie offer.

Culmone had his troubles here today. It was not until the eighth race that he reached the winner's circle, and then it was via a photo decision. At that, he put up a masterful ride on F. A. Piarulli's Alairne a $5.60 favorite, bearing out during the stretch run with

Army, Okla., Reportedly Set for Game

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 21 (AP).—A Louisville businessman who declined use of his name tonight said he had it on good authority that Army would play Oklahoma in a post-season football game for the benefit of the Red Cross.

He said a nationally-known radio and television sports announcer told him by telephone that he and another announcer saw President Truman about the proposed game and that "everything's set."

"We suggested to the President that it would be a good idea, with a war on, for Army to abandon its policy against post-season games and play one for some war agency such as the Red Cross.

"We named Oklahoma as the logical opponent. The President gave his O. K. for the Army to play. Then he picked up the telephone and called the president of Oklahoma. He (the Oklahoma president) gave his approval. Just like that.

Dr. George L. Cross, University of Oklahoma president, said in Norman he knew nothing of the proposal.

Caps Lose to Philadelphia, Play Tri-City Here Tonight

Blackhawks Beat Team In West

The Washington Caps meet the best in the West tonight when they tangle with the Western Division leading Tri-City Blackhawks in a NBA contest at Uline Arena.

The last time the Caps played the Hawks they ended up on the short end of a 85-81 score, mainly on the strength of a 10-point last half by Gene Vance, Hawk guard.

Vance flew into National Airport during the first half and reached the game in time to play through the courtesy of a special police escort from the airport to the arena.

Vance won't be with the Hawks on this trip because of an infected nose. Dwight Eddleman will be the visitors' ace.

Warriors Win, 83-78; Arizin Has 16

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—The revamped Philadelphia Warriors opened their season relations with the Washington Caps by registering a 83-78 National Basketball Association victory before 3500 here tonight.

After a tight first half, the Warriors broke up the contest with a third period suroc which saw them increase a two-point halftime bulge to 10 points. The Caps spent the last period fruitlessly trying to overtake the home team.

Paul Arizin, who was ousted on personals early in the last quarter, led the winners to their fifth win in eight starts with 16 points. For the losing Caps, Frank Kudelka was top man with 13.

It looked like the Warriors were sailing toward an easy win when they boosted their 37-35 halftime lead to 61-51 after three periods.

But the Warriors, hurt by the loss of Arizin in the last session, suddenly got wild in their play and the Caps started to dent the Philadelphia lead.

Three times at 74-71, 75-72 and 79-76, the Caps closed the gap on the Warriors. The Warriors held on to win.

Fifth Official Keeps Penetration Score, Finds Teams Even

Interhigh officials were prepared to declare a winner in yesterday's Eastern - Anacostia Group I football playoff even if it had ended in a tie instead of a 3-2 victory for Eastern.

A fifth official was assigned to keep track of each team's penetration of the other's territory. And if that turned out even, a coin would have been tossed.

The penetration score did turn out even, 11 to 11, and the coin would have been flipped. John Poston was the fifth official. He was in uniform, and walked along the sideline, carrying a clip-board. He credited three points when either team penetrated the other's 30-yard line, and five points when the drive carried to the 20.

Esleeck Reported On Way Out as Richmond Coach

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Times-Dispatch said tonight that Karl A. (Dick) Esleeck is on the way out as head football coach at the University of Richmond.

Chauncey Durden, Times-Dispatch sports editor, wrote that "what slim chance Esleeck had of remaining at Richmond was lost last Saturday in the Davidson debacle."

Durden said "Ed Merrick, the old Richmond center and highly successful Fork Union coach, is first man in line for the Richmond job." Richmond has a 2-6 record.

Maryland, Virginia Tie

Myers Quits Boston College

NEWTON, Mass., Nov. 21 (AP).—Acceptance of the resignation of Denny Myers as Boston College's head football coach, effective after the objective game with Holy Cross on December 2, was announced tonight by John P. Curley, Graduate Manager of Athletics.

Myers, who succeeded Frank Leahy in 1941, has a contract that ran through the 1951 season but he informed Rev. Maurice V. Dullea, S. J., the faculty moderator, last Saturday night he was willing "to step out" after his winless Eagles had lost their eighth straight game to Villanova, 29-7. They opened the season playing a 7-7 tie with Wake Forest.

Since then, Myers has intimated

Griff, Boudreau Talk Again But Nothing Happens

Clark Griffith pursued his attempts to sign Lou Boudreau with a telephone call to the former Cleveland shortstop yesterday, but it produced neither a "yes" or "no."

"Boudreau said he is biding his time and would let me know later," Griffith reported.

Meanwhile, the Washington club put in a claim for Boudreau whose name is on on the waiver list. It was a mere formality, with Boudreau entitled to ask his free-agency at any point within the next five days, if he does not choose to sign with a claiming team.

Reportedly still open is the possibilty that Boudreau will go to the Pirates as a manager. If not, he will weigh Washington's bid against those of the White Sox, Yankees and Red Sox who also are seeking to sign him.

Tucker Wins Contest, His Boys Get Trip

FOR HAVING A father like Andrew H. Tucker, two lucky Bethesda boys will take in the North Carolina-Duke game at Chapel Hill Saturday.

And they'll have the added thrill of going by plane to the game.

A. H. Tucker

Tucker, 4602 Chestnut st., Bethesda won The Washington Post's next-to-last Pick-the-Winners contest.

A real dad, Tucker's turning over his prize trip to sons Andrew, jr., 15, and Robert, 13.

The 45-year-old manager of Garrison's Toy and Novelty Co., 1215 E st. nw., won by calling the Princeton-Yale score practically on the nose. He predicted a 40-13 coount. Actually, it was 47-12.

Tucker correctly forecast Illinois, astonishing upset of Ohio State and missed only the Notre Dame-Iowa and Wake Forest-N. C. State ties and Mississippi State's victory over LSU.

Another identical 17-game winner was Mrs. Alfred Benner, R. D. 3, Alexandria, Va. But Mrs. Benner lost when she picked Princeton over Yale by only 20-7.

In addition to letting the boys see the Chapel Hill classic, Tucker also wants them to visit an aunt, Mrs. Katherine Peebles, of Raleigh, N. C., and two cousins about their own age.

Bobby, he says, is enthusiastic about flying. Andrew never has been in a plane. Bobby probably will be able to talk him into it. Fortunately, Bobby wasn't able to talk his father out of picking Illinois to win. He tried.

The 13-year-old has taken up a younger brother, Tommy, 6, on a sightseeing flight of Washington.

Tucker and his wife, Marguerita, also have a 2-year-old daughter, Patsy. Tucker's a native of Wilmington, N. C., but has been around Washington 21 years. As a freshman N. C. State, he played end on the football team.

Cincinnati in Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 21 (AP).—West Texas State and the University of Cincinnati said today they had accepted bids to play in the annual Sun Bowl football game here January 1.

West Texas State is champion of the Border Conference—a winner of six consecutive conference games. It has won eight games and lost one (to Trinity of San Antonio) this season. The Canyon, Texas, team has one more game, with the University of Corpus Christi next Saturday night.

Cincinnati still has one game to play, against Miami University of Ohio at Cincinnati Saturday. A win would give Cincinnati a nine won and two lost record

Big 10 Votes Michigan State Out of Cotton Bowl

Spartans Had Asked Rule Waiver

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Big Ten today refused to permit Michigan State College, its football member-in-name-only, to accept a bid to the Cotton Bowl game in Dallas, Texas, New Year's Day.

Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson said the Big Ten's faculty representatives denied a request by Michigan State College to waive a regulation banning post-season grid play in any game outside the Rose Bowl.

Although no official vote was announced, it was understood the ballot was overwhelming to reject the waiver which would have sent Michigan State into the Cotton Bowl.

As a non-championship conference member, Michigan State College is not eligible for the Rose Bowl until it enters the conference race in 1953.

Michigan State's Spartans were beaten only by Maryland in nine starts and hold decisions over three Big Ten members and Notre Dame.

Wilson said Michigan State Athletic Director Ralph Young yesterday had phoned his office to request the waiver of the conference rule.

At East Lansing, Mich., Dean L. C. Emmons, M.S.C. faculty representative in the Big Ten said:

"Michigan State received a bid from the Cotton Bowl and we were anxious to accept same.

At Dallas, Cotton Bowl President Joe C. Thompson, jr., emphasized Michigan State had not been invited formally.

Grimsley Picks Michigan Over Ohio State

By Will Grimsley

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP).—We're cured. This is a cantankerous, unruly old football season and that's the way she's going to be right down to the unpredictable end.

Notre Dame loses three and ties one. SMU and Ohio State drop a couple each. Stanford almost beats Army. Harvard wins one.

We tried to go respectable last week, stuck with favorites and got our nose bloodied to the tune of 14 misses, with 47 right and two ties. Not bad, but it didn't hike the season percentage any, which now stands at 417 correct, 115 wrong, 22 ties for a percentage of .783.

Our final gasp:

TENNESSEE OVER KENTUCKY: Gen. Bob Neyland brews a bone-rattling defense to stop Vito Parilli, the passing magician, and his Bowl-bound teammates.

OKLAHOMA OVER NEBRASKA: Wouldn't be surprised to see the Nebraskans, with climax runner Bob Reynolds, spring an upset, but the Sooners seem to be getting better with age and so get the nod.

MICHIGAN OVER OHIO STATE: One of the upset specials. The Wolverines are "up" and the Buckeyes suffer a letdown from last week's bruiser with Illinois.

CALIFORNIA OVER STANFORD: The Golden Bears roar into the Rose Bowl with another perfect season, but Stanford likely will be tougher than most people anticipate.

ILLINOIS OVER NORTHWESTERN: The fighting Illini have too much depth to fall on their face now that they're at Pasadena's door.

PRINCETON OVER DARTMOUTH: The Tigers clinch a share of the Ivy League championship and complete the season undefeated and untied.

THURSDAY

Arkansas over Tulsa, Bradley over California Poly, Columbia over Brown, Chattanooga over Dayton, Kansas over Missouri, Witchita over Nevada, Utah over Utah State, V.M.I. over Virginia Tech, Washington & Lee over Richmond, Wyoming over Denver.

FRIDAY NIGHT

SATURDAY

EAST—Colgate over Rutgers, George Washington over Georgetown, Fordham over NYU, Pittsburgh over Penn State, Holy Cross over Temple, Yale over Harvard, Penn, over Cornell.

MIDWEST—Indiana over Purdue, Oklahoma A & M over Kansas State, Wisconsin over Minnesota.

Apprentice Hartley Pilots Lois Cheer, $333 Shot, to Victory

CULMONE—F. Pg. 16

Shoemaker Invited to Race Culmone

Culmone desperately trying to keep him in and on top at the same time.

His victory ended an 11-race losing streak, six straight defeats yesterday and five in a row today. While Culmone's mounts received steady backing, they were not played in the 2-5 and 1-5 manner of yesterday's beaten choices.

Joe's nearest thing to a victory before the eighth race came in the second event when he appeared headed for first money with J. M. Cudone's Kit Bag, only to have Alan T. Clarke's Lillian Clarke get up to nip him in the final jump.

Shoemaker Catches Culmone at 333

By The Associated Press

Jockey Willie Shoemaker booted across two winners yesterday at Hollywood Park to tie Joe Culmone in their see-saw race for national riding honors. Culmone had only one winner at Bowie, Alairne ($5.60) in the eighth race.

The score now stands at 333 winners each.

Shoemaker started fast, winning on Factor ($25.40) in the first race

Here's how they fared today:

Shoemaker	8	2	1	2
Culmone	6	1	1	1

Stablemate Algasir Wins In Feature

By a Post Reporter

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21—Two winners—one paying $333.60 and the other returning $3.60—came out of the same stable to supply the highlights of a chilly day at the races.

H. A. Kimball, a New England trucking contractor who has turned to owning and training horses as a sideline, sent Lois Cheer to the post in the fourth race and the filly set record for win mutuels for the season in this State.

In addition to being 165-1 straight, Lois Cheer paid $90.60 to place and $30.60 to show, being all but completely ignored by the small crowd of 4673 customers.

In contrast to the longshot, Kimball's Algasir was in front most of the way to take the featured Piscataway Purse, the day's feature race.

The Sir Gallahad 3d, 4 year-old, sold at auction in New York last year for the highest price ever paid for a gelding, won by a length with William Ewing's Dark Favorite second and J. L. McKnight's Mr. Buster third in the field of six.

Algasir was clocked in 1:12 3/5 for the 6 furlongs over a track drying out, but still called "heavy" by the chartmaker.

While the polished Jockey Samuel Boulmetis rode Algasir to victory a youngster virtually unknown in this area was aboard Lois Cheer. Darrell Hartley, an apprentice from Canada who has ridden 50 winners thus far this year was aboard and put up a brilliant finish.

In fact, Lois Cheer, winner of two races at the Scarborough Downs (Maine) track for her only previous successes was bumped and appeared to be beaten when young Hartley jammed his way between horses to win by a nose over G. S. Moore's Doll Foot. Third money went to Brookfield Farm's Isgott. Lois Cher was clocked in 1:15 for the 6 furlongs.

HOLD HIM UP, MEN—As if by design, Wingback Gene Bowersox of Anacostia is propped up by Eastern players as they tackle him high and low in yesterday's playoff game for the Group I Interhigh Championship at Anacostia

by Tom Keller—The Washington Post

EASTERN—From Pg. 16

Keys' 35-Yard Goal, Safety Win Payoff for Eastern, 3-2

7-yard line by Gene Bowersox's 37-yard punt in the second period.

From that point Eastern launched a 76-yard drive which faltered at Anacostia's 17, and Keys kicked his field goal.

A hard off-tackle run by Danny O'Neill, 190-pound fullback, netted Eastern 35 yards on its scoring drive, and only a fine tackle by Chatlin prevented a touchdown.

With Grimes out and Chatlin bnieg stopped, Anacostia turned its running over to Fullback Pat Kober and No. 2 tailback Buddy King. They did pretty well in the third quarter with a 51-yard drive to Anacostia's 23. There, King fumbled and Hunter recovered for Eastern.

Another Bowersox boot put Eastern in trouble early in the fourth quarter. It rolled dead on the 11, and a penalty moved the ball to the one. Keys called time out, and ran over to the bench for a conference with Coach Mentzer. Then he came back onto the field, took the snap from center and touched it down in his end zone for a safety.

Keys' subsequent free kick was returned to Eastern's 42. Eastern's Ralph Sita interfered with Anacostia End Aubrey Southworth, trying to catch a Chatlin pass, and the Indians had a first down on Eastern's 19 with three minutes left. In three plays Anacostia could move only 3 yards, and then Matthews fumbled on the field goal attempt.

It was a heartbreaking loss, the only one this season, for Anacostia, which played Eastern to a 12-12 tie earlier in the year.

AT BOWIE

DEAR FOLKS:

The stewards have been presented with a problem by Apprentice Jockey Eddie McMullen. The youngster has only a couple of winners to go before he becomes a journeyman jockey and loses his weight allowance. Among his Pimlico winners was Bob's Birthday, later found to have been doped, the horse losing the purse. McMullen says he was not paid for a winner and should not be charged with a victory. Alan Clarke, former pitcher and now owner-trainer, is having the best season of his turf career. He gives a lot of credit for his success to the riding of the Mitchell boys, Don and Bobby. Henri Mora who has had a rough season with suspensions and accidents is back in the saddle again. "Get me live horses—I win 'em," says the popular Panama rider. See you on the rail.

Md. Suspends Latimer A Year

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21 (AP).—Horse Trainer John S. Latimer drew a one-year-suspension from the Maryland Racing Commission today after a hearing on charges that one of his thoroughbreds was doped November 13 at Pimlico.

The horse, Bob's Birthday, won a race by 6 lengths that day and paid $18.20 for $2.

Racing Steward Joseph Flanagan testified that tests later showed the horse had been stimulated with amphetamine, a drug of the benzedrine type.

Latimer, who lives at Broom's Island, Md., told the commission he knew nothing about the stimulation but he admitted he had bet $100 on Bob's Birthday to win.

The owner of the horse is H. L. Compton of Bethesda, Md.

Burial Friday

Buck Walsh, Crew Coach At Navy, Dies

Comdr. Charles S. (Buck) Walsh, whose name was synonymous with Navy crew, died early yesterday in Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Walsh, 49, succumbed to the back ailment which forced him into retirement last spring.

Funeral services will be in the Naval Academy Chapel this Friday at 10:30 a. m. Walsh will be buried with military honors in the Academy Cemetery.

For 20 years he had been coach of Naval Academy rowing. For seven seasons before that he had been as assistant and plebe coach.

His Blue and Gold shells won three championships at Poughkeepsie

The tall, leathery Commander was still "consultant on crew matters" at Annapolis when he died.

Walsh-trained Midshipmen never finished worse than fourth at Poughkeepsie. Last June, when the rowing classic was moved to Marietta, Ohio, the Navy ran farther behind. But even then Walsh was hospitalized.

He had entered Bethesda soon after the season opened. Ensign Perry Nelson, Captain of the Navy eight which delivered Walsh's last Poughkeepsie victory in 1947, filled in as coach.

Walsh regained strength after a sternal puncture operation, walking on crutches, he visited with old friends at the Academy. But the ailment was too severe. He was ordered back to Bethesda for treatment.

The medical report said death was caused by malignant tumors.

Walsh's all-time record at Navy, outside the Poughkeepsie Regattas, showed 24 triumphs in 40 dual races and 13 in 36 Triangular, Cup and other regattas.

Walsh was born in Washington but had long made his home in Annapolis. Survivors include the widow, the former Ann Guest; a son and a daughter. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Myers Quits As B. C. Coach

he expected some sort of a financial settlement to cancel his contract, said to call for a $12,000 annual salary.

"I have a family, you know," he explained.

But neither Curley nor Myers would comment about the details involved in the coach's agreement with Boston College.

Reports were, however, that Myers will be paid off in full for 1951.

Myers is understood to be considering a radio offer.

Myers' over-all Boston College record is 35 wins, 26 losses and four ties coming up to the 1950 Holy Cross finale a week hence.

Blair and B-CC Cool Off Year

Montgomery County school officials have ordered a year's cooling off period for the hot Bethesda-Chevy Chase Montgomery Blair High sports rivalry.

The principals of the two schools met before last Saturday's Blair-B-CC football game, and decided that a break in athletic relations would curb the annual outbreak of vandalism that occurs coincidental to their game.

Before last Saturday's game, paint was smeared on the steps at Blair and two trees on the Bethesda grounds were damaged. Blair upset B-CC, 13-6.

Principals William Pyles of B-CC and Darrel Shaw of Blair considered calling off the game. But after conference with student council representatives of both schools, they decided that plans had proceeded too far to cancel.

Blair and Bethesda will not play each other in basketball or track this season, and not in football next year. Relations may be resumed after that.

Tom Thumb Race Won by Selser

Wayne Selser of Omaha, Nebr., won the feature 25-lap auto race in the final night of "Tom Thumb" competition at Uline Arena last night before about a thousand spectators. Fred Hartley of Roanoke, Va., was second.

Colts' Head Now Willing To Step Out

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21 (AP).—Abe Watner, after proclaiming himself as sole owner of the Baltimore Colts today, later reversed his field and said he would step down as president of the National Football League Club if the stockholders wished.

"If they don't want me to run the team, I won't stand in their way," he told newsmen. "I'll turn my franchise over to whatever group they want to run the club and if they can't find anybody I'll run it again myself.

"I just want to keep pro football in Baltimore."

When Watner, whose fat pocketbook helped him get his foot in the door made the earlier announcement that he was sole owner, he got immediate backing from Bert Bell, commissioner of the league.

The professional team's board of directors, a group of civic boosters who bailed the Colts out of financial trouble last season, said Watner has no right to move in.

Watner served a 24-hour ultimatum on the directors Monday. Giving him the team, he said, or take over the losses he has promised to make good this season—$70,000 to $80,000 worth.

The directors ignore dthe ultimatum and called a meeting of the 202 stockholders for December 12

Williams F. Hilgenberg, chairman of the board, said of Watner's announcement:

"Our agreement is that he may operate the club through 1950, but it remains in the stockholders' hands and reverts to their control after December 31 if they still want it. The board's obligation is to its stockholders. Whatever they decide, we will comply with."

Watner, whose money comes from a cemetery company and a transfer firm in Baltimore, got to be president for 1950 by the expedient of guaranteeing to make up all Colt losses out of his own pocket.

Landon 120-Pounders Defeat St. Albans, 14-0, For First Victory

Landon School's 120-pounders came up with two last-half touchdowns to defeat the St. Alban's 120-pounders, 14-0, yesterday, on the St. Alban's varsity field, for their first victory of the season.

Halfback John Butcher scored both touchdowns on short charges at the St. Alban's line. He also scored both extra points, on running plays. Sullivan recently was promoted from the 100-pound team. Halfback Billy Miller was also a consistent ground gainer. Earlier in the season, the two teams had played a scoreless tie.

Hoyas' Margarita Coach of the Week

FOR KEEPING HIS New England slate clean and scoring a 21-14 victory over two-touchdown favored Holy Cross, Georgetown's Bob Margarita is The Washington Post's Coach of the Week.

Bob Margarita

Chances are the Hoyas' youthful mentor just as soon would skip the honor this week. He has George Washington coming up in their always bitter battle Saturday. That's the game in which Margarita would rather have his team merit the honor for him.

Be that as it may, hats are off to Robert for gaining a decision over the shrewd Dr. Eddie Anderson, veteran coach who piloted the College All-Stars to a victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The 29-year-old Margarita helped gain the Holy Cross triumph by going conservative. With the Hoyas holding a 21-7 halftime edge, he ordered them to stay on the ground.

Possibly Georgetown could have scored one or two more touchdowns—it did have a 63-yard scoring pass nullified, the only one it attempted in the second half. However, with only one victory all season, Margarita was playing it close to the vest. You can't criticize the strategy, it paid off.

After the game, Athletic Director Jack Hagerty told Margarita his defenses were perfect for high-scoring Holy Cross. It was something of an accomplishment to hold the Crusaders to two touchdowns.

Coaches Put Oklahoma in No. 1 Spot

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Oklahoma moved into the No. 1 spot in the United Press football ratings today, but the undefeated and United Sooners didn't have very much breathing space over three other perfect record teams—Army, Kentucky and California.

The 35 outstanding coaches from whose selections the ratings are compiled gave Oklahoma 16 first place votes and a total of 310 points in naming the Sooners the Nation's No. 1 team.

Army, on top a week ago, dropped down to second place with nine first place votes and 289 points. Kentucky and California, both of which received three first place ballots, finished third and fourth with 270 and 251 points, respectively.

Points are awarded on the basis of 10 for a first place vote, nine for a second and so on down to one for a tenth.

The top 10 this week was rounded out by Texas, Illinois, Princeton, Tennessee, Ohio State and Michigan State in that order.

Team	Points
1—Oklahoma (16)	310
2—Army (9)	289
3—Kentucky (3)	270
4—California (3)	251
5—Texas	189
6—Illinois	184
7—Princeton	129
8—Tennessee	95
9—Ohio State (1)	87
10—Michigan State (1)	46

Second 10—Pennsylvania (1), 25; Clemson, 21; Southern Methodist, 20; Washington, 19; Wyoming (1), 17; Miami, 4; Nebraska and Stanford, 3 each; Maryland and Vanderbilt, 2 each.
Others—Cornell, 1.

The Daily Mail:

Tech Builds Character On Its Team

JOHN W. ROPER, a local football official, writes The Washington Post the following letter concerning McKinley Tech, which opposes Eastern in the Interhigh Championship game at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

"I should like very much to share with you my knowledge of a concrete example of the kind of character that Coach Ed Solomon and his assistants are building at Tech High.

"In the Tech-Gonzaga game that was played on October 27, Tech was penalized for unnecessary roughness. The roughness penalty was called against Fred Maloney, one of the Tech backs. After the game, that high school youngster, of his own free will and accord, stopped Gonzaga Coach Joe Kozik as the teams were leaving the field and apologized for the roughness.

"He explained that it had not been intentional and he was sorry that it had happened. Then he apologized to me and to the Gonzaga player against whom the foul was committed.

"You can't help but admire youngsters like that and the men who help build that kind of character deserve our utmost respect and gratitude."

Senate Group Orders Study to Liberalize Retirement System

A study with a view toward liberalization of the Civil Service retirement system was ordered yesterday by the Senate Postoffice & Civil Service Committee.

Civil Service's retirement staff was directed to draft a bill to be accompanied with all pertinent data that would:

1. Raise the annuities of the more than 100,000 retirees an average of $300 annually, a cost-of-living boost;

2. Increase the benefits to survivors of Federal employes to bring them in line with the new Social Security system which will become effective on January 1, and,

3. Increase the annuities of persons who become disabled.

The Civil Service staff went to work immediately on the study, and a full report on it will be made to the committee in early January.

No employe under the retirement system can be benefited by it until he serves at least five years. Under the new Social Security system which will cover several hundred thousand temporary employes as of January 1, an employe could serve a few months and his family will receive liberal benefits in case of his death.

The Civil Service disability system is generally regarded as providing inadequate benefits for those persons who become disabled in the prime of their lives.

The retired employes organization is on record for larger annuities to meet higher living costs.

PER DIEM REVISION: The military agencies have agreed to a uniform salary rate system for their more than half a million per diem workers, of whom 30,000 are in the Washington area.

The Navy will put the new system in effect on January 1. The Army and Air Force have been given until April 1 to get it into operation. This is it:

Each of the per diem grades will have four different wage levels. Step 1 will be the recruiting rate; Step 2 will be the prevailing wage rate of the respective areas, and Steps 3 & 4 will be premium rates for meritorious work and long service.

Navy now has three steps in each grade; the Army and Air Force have five each.

The Navy, meantime, announced pay boosts for 7100 of its per diems in the Boston area that average 11 cents an hour, or 7 percent. A salary increase for the military per diems here and nearby is in the mill and it should be announced around December 15. Insiders expect the boost will be around 9 cents an hour.

DECENTRALIZATION: The Administration has about given up its hope to ask the "lame-duck" Congress to approve a decentralization-dispersal plan of Federal agencies here. Unless there's an unexpected burst of speed, the issue will go over and be recommended to the new Congress in January.

Budget Bureau officials said yesterday it will be another month before sufficient information on the project is gathered to satisfy Congress. By that time the "lame-duck" session will either be adjourned or on its last legs.

But the Budget Bureau presentation, when made, will go into great detail—such as specific agencies here that could be moved to other cities, and a list of the sensitive agencies here that should be dispersed to areas surrounding Washington. Cost figures on both projects also will be available at that time.

NOTES: Lewis H. Fisher, the "father of the Civil Service retirement system," died yesterday. He had retired several years ago as chief of the retirement system and had been practicing law here . . . The Budget Bureau won't get out its usual budget review this year. After each congressional session, the bureau analyzes the money bills . . . If you're one of the many Federal employes who are bewildered by the Whitten rider, new Civil Service regulations, etc., we'll try to explain them in a series of articles to begin on Friday.

New Civil Airport, More Radar Use Advocated

Official Committee Urges Installing Electronic Holding Facilities at 3 Points

Construction of a new civil airport and increased use of radar for air traffic control have been recommended for Greater Washington by the industry-Government airport use committee.

The committee, of which CAA Administrator D. W. Nyrop is chairman, was appointed last December after the November 1, 1949, plane crash here of an Eastern Air Lines DC-4 and a P-38 in which 55 persons were killed.

Its study of Washington air traffic problems is the tenth undertaken in the United States by the group. Since the committee was formed, Congress has approved a 14-million-dollar authorization for construction of a civil airport in Greater Washington, and has appropriated one million dollars for preliminary planning for the field.

Urges Speedy Construction

In its report, the committee urged that construction of the new airport be "expedited . . . in order to provide for civil aircraft which cannot be accommodated at Washington National because of the saturation of traffic facilities."

To alleviate some of the congestion caused by planes coming into Washington's crowded air patterns, the committee recommended installing electronic holding facilities at three intersection points away from Washington. These are the Shadyside, Huntington and Charlotte Hall intersections.

CAA officials pointed out that with these devices, Washington-bound planes as far away as 50 miles could be sent to the three holding stations, where they would go on radar beams within a specified area, then could be brought in for landing when traffic conditions permitted.

As an added safety factor for bad weather conditions and instrument flying, the report recommended that the Anacostia and Bolling Base airport traffic control towers be consolidated into a single unit.

Runway Closing Recommended

The report also strongly recommended that the new traffic control tower at the Washington National Airport be completed "at the earliest possible date."

At Washington National Airport, the committee wants the east-west runway closed to give additional aircraft parking facilities. The runway is now seldom used, CAA officials said, and only by smaller aircraft. It intersects with the main instrument runway.

On general air traffic conditions, the committee reported:

"Although considerable efforts have been made with some success to decrease congestion in the Washington area, a point has been reached where further efforts . . . will not result in substantial alleviation of traffic congestion. It is concluded that further attempts to physically relocate other units or activities from Anacostia or Bolling will not eliminate sufficient traffic congestion in the Washington area to warrant the considerable expense which would be involved."

On military flying, the Committee indorsed plans to move additional traffic to Andrews Air Force Base as facilities become available. It also recommended that the Washington National Airport permit military aircraft destined for Bolling or Anacostia to land under conditions of low visibility to avoid hazardous air traffic conditions.

During the past year, the Washington airport situation has been studied by a number of groups, all of which agreed with the Airport Use Committee's recommendations for a new airport. Among these were the CAA, the Washington Board of Trade; the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee; the Bureau of the Budget; Virginia's State Advisory Committee on Aviation. In the House, the second airport project was strongly indorsed by Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.).

U. S. School Funds Eyed By Arlington

County to Try to Tap New Source Following Bond Issue Defeat

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Arlington County's School Board will seek a slice of the 72 million-dollar Federal school aid designed for areas in which school enrollment has been swelled by an influx of Government workers, it was learned yesterday.

To qualify for the aid, the board will take its own "census" of the number of Government-worker parents who have children in county public schools.

The board acted after Arlington voters failed to pass a $7,450,000 school construction bond issue on November 7 by a slim margin of 380 votes.

At that time, School Board Chairman Mrs. Edmund Campbell warned that failure of the bonds would place 3000 Arlington school children on half-day sessions next September.

School Superintendent William A. Early said yesterday that every Arlington pupil will be given a card and a letter of explanation to take home to his parents on Monday or Tuesday.

The letter will ask parents to note their place of employment on the card and return it to the child's teacher the following day.

Letters, now being printed, will be headed "Dear Parents," and will express Early's belief that "Arlington can qualify for participation in these (Federal) funds."

Arlington has a chance to qualify for aid from two funds approved by Congress this fall. One, for $49,500,000, will aid school construction in Government-swollen areas.

The second measure provides $23,347,000 for school maintenance and operation in similar communities.

Failure of the Arlington school bond to pass killed school board plans to build six new schools, six school additions, to buy sites for future schools and to remodel 12 present buildings.

Electronic Language Teaching System Starts at Georgetown

The world's most modern system of language teaching—by electronics—was formally introduced yesterday into the curriculum at Georgetown University.

Bearing the appearance of a UN Assembly, the "Electronic Language Laboratory" was christened in Poulton Hall to enable some 1200 foreign-language students in the College of Arts and Sciences and the School of Foreign Service to learn languages better and faster.

The laboratory is equipped with 120 individual semisoundproof booths, each booth containing the IBM language selector switch used in the simultaneous interpretation system at the U. N.

Instead of studying the language silently from a textbook, the student clamps on earphones, listens to language drills and repeats them back aloud. Through the selector switch the student selects any one of six language tapes that are being played at any given time.

The system is based on the idea that the primary basis of learning a language is repetition and memorizing and that a language can be learned more quickly if spoken aloud and alive, rather than simply read from a book.

Presiding at the inauguration ceremonies was Leon Dostert, director of Georgetown University's Institute of Language and Linguistics. The system was introduced at the university proper after a successful tryout at the Institute.

Dead Woman Traffic Victim Is Identified

Mrs. Whittington Killed During Storm Here Monday Night

Washington's sixty-first traffic victim, a pedestrian struck during Monday night's rain storm, has been identified as Mrs. Lizzie Whittington, 54, of 1365 Half st. sw.

Mrs. Whittington was crossing at 3d and M sts. sw. about 6 p. m. Monday when she was struck by an automobile operated by Corpl. Wilbur D. Grover, 19, of 4201 S. Four Mile Run dr., Arlington, Va. Impact of the blow threw her into the path of a second car, which police said was driven by Albert E. Eschinger, 36, of 6229 Marlboro pike, Hillside, Md.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald said Mrs. Whittington died of a crushed chest and internal hemorrhages. An inquest into her death will be held but no date has been set. Mrs. Whittington was identified at the District Morgue yesterday by a son, Charles, of the same address.

Alexandria Calls Public Hearing On Record Budget

The Alexandria city council last night called a public hearing for December 1 on a proposed record 1951 budget of $4,981,322.

The budget hearing, to be held at 7:30 p. m., was set at a special meeting, called primarily for consideration of a retirement and pension system for the police and fire departments.

The budget, more than $700,000 in excess of this year's outlay, calls for a 15-cent reduction in the city's real estate tax of $2.75 per $100 valuation. It proposes retention of an emergency cigarette tax adopted last June.

In the retirement discussion, the council asked City Manager W. Guy Ancell to inquire if a separate pension plan for police and firemen would preclude other city employes from participating in Federal Social Security. The two departments want their own system to permit an earlier retirement age than is provided by the Social Security Act.

Proposed enabling legislation to qualify Virginia municipal employes for Social Security would allow cities to participate only if they have no other pension plan in effect, it was pointed out.

Spokesmen for both police and fire departments objected to a pension plan based on Social Security because it would provide retirement at 65.

Wider Power Sought on Auto Permits

District Traffic Director George E. Keneipp yesterday indorsed a proposal to give him more discretion in issuing restricted driver's permits to persons who suffer minor physical defects or who would be inconvenienced without a license.

The recommended regulation change was approved Monday night by the Commissioner's Traffic Advisory Board.

As explained by Keneipp, the present code authorizes the traffic director to issue restricted permits to amputees or persons with sub-standard vision.

The new proposal would broaden the director's discretion to issue permits to persons for business uses only, or for daylight driving only.

"There is a real need for the new regulation," said Keneipp yesterday, pointing out that most states already have a similar provision.

Nathan M. Lubar, chairman of the board commitee which brought in the report, said some people needed to drive for a living or were required to drive to and from the suburbs to work.

The restricted permits would indicate under what conditions the bearers could drive in the District.

In another action, the board voted to forget about the T-man plan—currently used in Dallas, Tex.—under which several hundred citizens would be enlisted to report traffic violators.

Fire in Vacant Dwelling Perils Crowded Theater

Twenty-four pieces of firefighting equipment were called out last night to douse a wind-whipped blaze in an abandoned alley dwelling which threatened to spread to the nearly-filled Republic Theater at 1343 U st. nw.

Pvt. Paul Mudd, 36, attached to No. 21 Engine Co., suffered a bruised right ankle when he was somersaulted 20 feet off a ladder by a high-pressure stream of water bouncing back off a wall. Mudd landed on his feet and remained on duty.

The whole interior of the two-story brick building behind 1332 V st. nw. was charred and much of the roof was burned away. Firemen were not immediately able to determine the fire's origin. Police said the building was not inhabited and was owned by the Federal Government.

30-Year Plan For District Revives Old Road Feuds

Through Highway Linking Downtown To Montgomery Seen Biggest Need

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Old highway disputes among planners have been renewed by publication this week of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission's 30-year plan for Greater Washington.

The commission's proposed regional thoroughfare plan, a key part of the master blueprint, failed to include the proposed extension of Rock Creek Parkway to the Maryland line. The plan calls for extending it from Connecticut ave. as far as Colorado and Blagden aves. on the east and to Linnean ave. on the west.

But Blair Lee 3d, vice chairman of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, declared that the highway plan "still reflects the national commission's ancient objection" to the through parkway. He said his agency "is convinced that the express parkway must go on to the District line and beyond—both for the convenience of suburban motorists and for the safety of Washingtonians in the event of an emergency evacuation."

Montgomery County, Md., badly needs through limited access highways with only a few—if any—stoplights en route downtown. Virginia has such a road in the Shirley Highway and Prince Georges has one in the Suitland Parkway and eventually will have another in the Baltimore-Washington Parkway if extensions are built to the heart of the city.

But Montgomery motorists have nothing to look forward to under the planning commission's 30-year draft but continued bucking of traffic on such crowded routes as Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Connecticut aves., Piney Branch rd., 13th st. and 16th st.

The Rock Creek Parkway idea, indorsed several years ago by an independent engineering survey made for the District government is one proposal to establish such an express highway. Lee said yesterday he hoped the commission would "reconsider" its rejection of the idea before it works out final details of the transportation plan.

NW Freeway Extension Planned

Another proposal to give Montgomery a through route downtown is the plan to bring the Northwest Freeway into the District to connect with MacArthur blvd. and/or Canal road and the Whitehurst Freeway. This highway is already under construction from Frederick, Md., south as a limited access divided four-lane road.

But the Maryland Roads Commission has not yet selected a route through the built-up suburban area. The regional thoroughfare plan shows the freeway coming south only to a point near Congressional Airport and Georgetown Prep School on Route 240 (Wisconsin ave.).

It appeared yesterday the Bureau of Public Roads, which controls Federal aid to Maryland for such highways, wants the freeway to come all the way to the District line. But the planning commission (in this case joined by the Maryland-National Capital group) has proposed a split route. One arm would run to Wisconsin ave., the other down to the Potomac River at Cabin John where it would feed autos (but not trucks) into the as yet unbuilt George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Parkway Link in Dispute

A third disagreement between Maryland and the national planners, and in this case the District as well, concerns a proposed link from the Baltimore-Washington Parkway at Riverdale, west across Queens Chapel and Ager rds. and then southwest through the Chillum area to the District line. Maryland planners are trying to hold open an adequate right-of-way.

But the national commission plan and District plans as well do not provide for this route as an express highway. The national plan calls for the road's connection to the long-planned Fort Drive, a circumferential ring within the District. However, it would be possible to connect the road, via Fort Totten Park, with extension of North Capitol st. through Soldiers Home.

Fort Drive, long a pet project of the national commission, has few admirers at the District Building. Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said this week the road will be built in sections as their individual construction is called for, if the road is ever built.

Fort Drive, is one of the three ring routes called for in the master 30-year plan. Another is a ring around the downtown area of Washington, about on the line of Florida ave., T st. and 3d st. nw., although the route is tentative. This would be a multi-million dollar project and it has no indorsement by the District.

A third ring route would circle around the District and Arlington County, Va. In general, it has the approval of both Maryland and Virginia planners and large portions of the right-of-way are still obtainable. But there appears to be no money to buy up the land before it is built up.

Six Visits Provide Thieves Good Start on Turkey Dinner

Police figured yesterday that local thieves were preparing for an extravagant Thanksgiving holiday.

Four break-ins, including two safe jobs, netted $1056 in cash, 18 cases of beer, 22 pounds of butter and 35 pounds of T-bone steak, as well as two BB guns with ammunition.

Charles B. Mayes, supervisor of the American Food Store at 2744 14th st. nw., said thieves cut into bars protecting the rear of his store between 6:30 p. m. Monday and 2:30 a. m. yesterday. They carted away a 400-pound safe containing $700 before the break-in was discovered by Tenth Precinct Pvt. D. J. Beckman.

Someone who apparently knew the combination of a big wall safe and a smaller safe inside the Gulf Oil station, 3130 Mount Pleasant st. nw., made off with $356 between 11 p. m. and 7 a. m., according to Manager Harry E. Copperthite.

George W. Stanford, owner of the Stanford Seafood Restaurant, 6 Municipal Fish Wharf, reported his place was entered between 1 a. m. and 8 a. m. yesterday. Missing were beer, butter and steak.

At the Capitol Lock & Hardware Co., 3653 Georgia ave., Owner Norman Abrams reported the second break-in within two weeks. He said thieves tore the screen from an upper window, then tossed a brick through the glass. They stole two B. B. guns and a case of B.B shot, he reported.

Women's Bar Luncheon

The Women's Bar Association of the District of Columbia will meet for lunch at the Raleigh Hotel today at 12:30 p. m.

John Adams Dedicated It

Today Is Washington's 150th Birthday as Capital

With quotes culled from contemporary newspapers and periodicals, this was the big news in Washington 150 years ago today:

President John Adams today dedicated the District of Columbia to the Federal service as the Nation's Capital.

In a speech to a joint session of the House and Senate in the Senate chambers, President Adams declared:

"May this territory be the residence of virtue and happiness In this city may that piety and virtue, that wisdom and magnanimity, that constance and self-government which adorned the great character whose name it bears, be held forever in veneration!

"Here, and throughout country, may simple manners, pure morals and true religion flourish forever.' "

The session of Congress today was the first convening of the Senators and Representatives held in Washington as the permanent seat of the Nation.

The 16 States of the Union were represented by 71 of the 107 House members and 18 of the 32 Senators.

Vice President Thomas Jefferson did not arrive to preside over the Senate.

The day was "chilly but cloudy." Traffic was heavy, although "the mud on Pennsylvania ave. was less troublesome than usual."

President Adams took cognizance of these difficulties.

He said accommodations "are not now as complete as might be wished." But he added that "there is great reason to believe that this inconvenience will cease with the present session."

On Pennsylvania ave., citizens placed logs and stepping stones so they would not muddy their apparel to watch the parade from the uncompleted Capitol to the President's House.

Military and community organizations participated, including "two splendid marching bands whose music did much to stimulate the citizens on a glorious occasion."

Escaped Virginia Convict Is Captured in District

Police last night surrounded a Northeast tourist house and captured Z. T. Kennedy, 20-year-old convict who escaped from a Virginia road gang early Monday.

Police said Kennedy, serving a three-year sentence for housebreaking, did not resist. Local police had been alerted by teletype from Augusta County, Va., that Kennedy might attempt to see his wife in Washington. She lives at 623 South Carolina ave. se.

Kennedy was located by Pvt. W. J. Sartain and Probationary Sergt. J. J. Wolf at the Lee Tourist Home, 105 D st. ne. The two officers summoned aid and surrounded the house before they went in. Kennedy's wife was with him in the house when he was arrested.

Kennedy was dressed in blue dungarees and prison clothes. He told police he had hidden a gun in southeast Washington earlier yesterday. He said he arrived here early Tuesday.

Police said they did not think Kennedy has any connection with the rape of a 17-year-old girl Monday night in the 1300 block of Sheridan st. nw. Kennedy was held on an open charge.

Arlington Merchant Finds Wife a Suicide

Mrs. Mary Grant Whitman, 26-year-old wife of an Arlington market owner, died yesterday of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, police reported.

She was found by her husband, Merrill Edward Whitman, 508 Sleepy Hollow rd., Fairfax County, after he received an urgent call from her to return home within 15 minutes after he reported to work at 7 a. m. at the Virginia Garden Market, 2427 Lee hwy.

Whitman told police he found his wife lying on the bathroom floor of their home, a .410-gauge shotgun at her side and a wound in the chest. He called police, who summoned the Dunn Loring Rescue Squad ambulance. Mrs. Whitman was pronounced dead at Arlington Hospital. Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

The Whitman's two children, Betty Jo, 5, and Carol Ann, 6 months, were in the house at the time of the shooting.

The husband told police his wife had been despondent for about a year and had consulted a psychiatrist in recent weeks.

Other survivors include Mrs. Whitman's mother, Mrs. Gladys S. Grant; her father, Robert L. Grant; a brother, Robert L. Grant, jr., and a sister, Mrs. Roberta Kohlhaal, all of Arlington.

Sanitarium Patient
A Suicide at Rockville

Jerry T. Abelson, 31, a Chicago advertising man and a patient at the Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium, Rockville, Md., died at Bethesda Suburban Hospital shortly before 2 p. m. yesterday from a bullet wound in the temple.

Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County Medical Examiner, issued a certificate of suicide. Police said Abelson left several notes. One, they said, was addressed to his wife and told her he was taking his life because he knew he wouldn't get well.

A mental patient at the Sanitarium, Abelson had been permitted to go out. Police said he bought a .22-calibre rifle in Rockville yesterday. At about 11 a. m. he was found by the side of the highway at Falls and Seven Locks roads between Rockville and Potomac with the rifle beside him.

Abelson was assistant advertising manager for the Maremont Automotive Co. in Chicago. His widow, Shirley, 27, said he had a nervous breakdown and went to the sanitarium three months ago. He also is survived by two children, Nancy, 6 and Scotty, 2.

Pay Raises For Police Are Adopted

Annual pay raises averaging about $300 per man were voted for Prince Georges County policemen yesterday by the County Commissioners.

However, the commissioners failed to act on a broader resolution prepared by County Attorney Jerrold V. Powers which would have reorganized the departmental structure of the force.

They felt, in the words of Commissioner T. Hammond Welsh, that "it is best to leave this matter to the incoming commissioners."

They also took no action on appointment of additional policemen, as recommended by the same committee that proposed the new scales. An increase of 16 officers was recommended.

The new pay scales, effective December 1, provide a salary of $2400 a year for privates during their probationary year and a range of $3000 to $3200 thereafter. A new classification of private, first class, bears a flat $3300 salary.

Corporals will receive $3400 to $3600; sergeants, $3700 to $3900; lieutenants, $4000 to $4400, and the superintendent, $4500 to $5000. Desk clerks will be paid the same salaries as privates and detectives in the sergeant classification.

One private, Adam Lindsey, of the Hyattsville station, was advanced to private first class. Lindsey was the senior private on the force.

Advances within grade will be made on the recommendation of the superintendent instead of automatically on length of service, as at present.

Mrs. Betty Tayman, clerk to the board of police commissioners, announced that 46 of 52 candidates for police appointments passed the examination given last Wednesday. Two vacancies exist at present.

The commissioners, in another action, appropriated an additional $9000 to the Board of Education for purchase of a school site in the Berwyn area. Director of School Planning Thomas S. Gwynn, jr., told them the site planned for purchase from T. Raymond Burch for $18,000 would require drainage costing about $48,000. Burch agreed to sell an alternate site at Rhode Island ave. and Edgewood rd. for $27,000.

Md. Plans Better Teacher College Setup

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21 (AP). State School Superintendent Thomas G. Pullen, jr., said today Maryland needs more elementary school teachers and he outlined a program calling for nearly 12 million dollars in construction at the State's five teacher colleges.

He said about two million dollars worth already is underway, but that another 10 million in capital improvements is needed.

The plan placed before the State Planning Commission asked for these construction funds:

Bowie State Teachers College, $2,197,500; Coppin, $1,362,500; Frostburg, $1,220,600; Salisbury $1,788,000, and Towson, $3,267,000.

Pullen said more elementary teachers are needed because enrollment in such schools has climbed sharply during the past five years. He said an increase of 115,679 is expected within the next seven years.

Maryland's teacher training schools now have an enrollment of about 2$00 but Pullen said an enrollment of about 3000 is needed.

All of the colleges are badly overcrowded, he said.

All projects outlined by the superintendent were listed as immediate needs. They include dormitories, demonstration schools, libraries, gymnasium, staff housing facilities and utilities.

Pullen said the institutions are "bursting at the seams" anid even if the work was authorized now it would take more than a year to complete.

O'Connor Gets Shrine Post at Catholic U.

Appointment of the Right Rev. Patrick J. O'Connor, assistant professor of sacred eloquence at Catholic University, as director of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at the university was announced yesterday.

Msgr. O'Connor

Announcement was made by the Most Rev. P. J. McCormick, university rector. Msgr. O'Connor has been serving as acting director of the Shrine since February 15 succeeding the Right Rev. John J. Reilly, recalled to his diocese in Hartford, Conn.

While acting director of the shrine Msgr. O'Connor was appointed domestic prelate with the title of right reverend monsignor. Since 1936 he has been a member of the faculty of Catholic University, where he is director of the national alumni association.

He came to this country as a priest in the San Francisco archdiocese. He received his master's and doctorate degrees at Catholic University, the latter in 1939, before joining the teaching staff in 1940.

Father Arbez, a native of Paris, came here in 1901 after preliminary studies in France. From 1904 to 1928 he taught in California, returning in 1932 to Catholic University, where he is now head of the Department of Semitic and Egyptian Languages of the graduate school of arts and sciences.

Professor Spiegel came to the university in 1943, when he joined the Department of Economics in the graduate school of social science. He was graduated in Berlin, where he was born.

Ideal Time to Correct Vision Put at Age 6 Months to 1 Year

The ideal time to fit glasses to youngsters with subnormal vision is when they are six months to a year old, according to a Chicago eye specialist.

Dr. George P. Guibor passes on that advice to parents in the current issue of The Crippled Child, magazine of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Eye specialists, he points out, can determine vision defects by means of a light when the patient is still a baby, and prescribe proper glasses if they are needed.

In the case of crossed eyes, glasses and other non-surgical treatment may improve the condition so the glasses eventually may be discarded or at least needed only part-time, said Dr. Guibor. Other forms of treatment include eye drops, covering the stronger eye to strengthen the weaker one, and eye movement exercises.

Dr. Guibor is a member of the staffs of both Children's Memorial and St. Luke's Hospitals, and a consultant at Children's Hospital School, all in Chicago.

In his article, he cited the dramatic case of a six-month-old girl whose vision was less than 10 percent of normal. Following treatment begun at that early age, she progressed until, at the age of seven, she had 20-20 or perfect vision, and her tendency to crossed eyes had almost disappeared. The tendency recurred only when the child became very tired, he reported.

Concerning the possibility of infants breaking their glasses, Dr. Guibor pointed out that there are special plastic lenses available which do not break.

Commuters Battle Rail Fare Boost

Spokesmen for large commuter groups yesterday added their protests to those already registered against proposed rate increases on rail service between Baltimore and Washington.

Their testimony wound up a two-day hearing by the Interstate Commerce Commission on increases averaging from 14 to 16 percent asked by the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroads.

William H. Ruby, Baltimore, speaking for 500 fellow workers at the Navy Yard here, said if the rate hikes are granted, more commuters will shift from trains to autos. Ruby said the installation is already having trouble getting workers because of travel costs and a housing shortage in Washington.

Ruby told Examiner Burton Fuller that his take-home pay averages about $55 a week. This is not enough to cover $35 a month in commuting costs, he declared.

Another witness, George L. Engle of Baltimore, speaking for about 100 commuters who travel to the Chemical Corps School, Edgewood, Md., said the Pennsylvania commuter train equipment is in poor condition. Another Edgewood employe, Mrs. Katharine S. Ilk of Baltimore, seconded this view.

Whitney W. Irons of Seabrook, Md., who described himself as a commuter and Pennsylvania Railroad shareholder, said he favored the increase as a way of keeping up commuter service.

If service were improved, Paul J. Hughey of Gambrills, Md., said he would have no objection to a fare increase.

The proposed increases have been tabled by the ICC until April 14. A decision on the matter is expected before then.

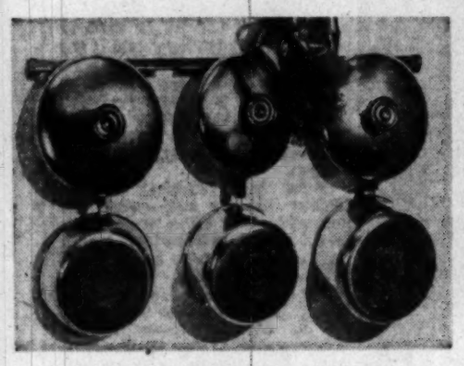
Christmas Gifts for the Home Hit the Jackpot

By Dorothea Cruzer

WHAT TO GIVE for Christmas? This query should have long ago been doubled from the $64 to the $128 question, to judge from the mental anguish it causes most people ere December comes around. But here's a first clue for part of the jackpot . . . you can't go too far wrong with things for the home. From useful pots and pans to the more decorative trays pictured here, home gifts are one good answer to the Christmas dilemma

TIN TYPES—These faithful reproductions of Pennsylvania Dutch tinware, painted by a former Washingtonian, are being sold locally. The coffee pot shown here is an exact duplicate of one in a museum in Hershey, Pa., and is made to order at $14. The trays, which are suitable for hors d'oeuvers, candies, mints, as well as decorative purposes are $2.50 while the scoop is $1.25. The work of Patric Claiborne, they are sold at House Unique, 1136 18th st. nw.



HOME ON THE RANGE—A Starter set of Revere ware will behave on any kitchen range and will look well hanging on the stove. A set of 3 pieces of copper clad steel with hanging wall rack is $13.95, and includes 1 and 1½ quart saucepans with covers, and 6-inch French skillet and cover. At Kann's

FOR DINNER WARE—Practical, and surprisingly inexpensive gift for homemakers, especially newly-wedded ones, is this place setting of pristine white porcelain from Bavaria. Set includes salad plate, dinner plate, cup and saucer (not shown), cream and sugar, at $5.55. Extra pieces, from tureen to pickle dish, all in simple, classic design, are available in open stock. At Ursell's in Georgetown

Mayflower Descendants Mark Signing of 1620 Compact

The Society of Mayflower Descendants of the District celebrated its annual Compact Day dinner at the Broadmoor Hotel last night.

Over 100 members and guests attended the dinner commemorating the signing of the compact on the Mayflower on November 21, 1620. Leigh L. Nettleton, governor of the Society, presided at the meeting.

Former Senator Henry Fountain Ashurst of Arizona told the Society members that "we of the present time should follow the noble example" of the Pilgrims. They always took council of courage, he said.

Historians of the future, the former Senator said, will refer to our mid-century era as the age of fear and this fear is unreasoning. In truth, he continued, these explosive forces and weapons of war, such as the A-Bomb and the H-bomb will within 25 years be the selfsame forces that illuminate and heat man's habitations, transport him and his commerce and heal and relieve many of his ills and agonies.

"Every invention ever brought forth," he said, "has caused fear, but happily mankind possesses the self-direction and moral goverance which enable him to say to what use any inventions shall be put."

The Community Chest drive will continue for three more weeks. See that the quota is reached. Give today.

Bride Asks How to Please Mother's Sisters, Always Critical of Mother's Poverty-Ridden Married Life; Girl Has Married Well, But Aunts Remain Unbending

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My problem involves my mother's family—her brothers and sisters and their attitude toward her and us children. When I was a little girl, my aunts, then unmarried, would openly berate mother. For example, they would ask why she didn't buy new linoleum for her kitchen, the old one being worn in spots. She would say nothing.

We were very poor, all our money went for food and I would wonder why my aunts would openly embarrass mother, when they knew the situation as well as I did. I often stayed overnight with my aunts; and it seemed to me they would all get together with my grandmother and talk unkindly about my mother. They often said how the dust collected on her furniture. She had six children, one a baby, and we were kindly cared for; so what did it matter if a little dust collected?

One aunt in particular puzzles me. She seems to pick on me. I was married recently and in time went to visit her. She is married now and has four children. As she invited me in, she looked me up and down with a critical stare, but I was polite to her.

It was mid-afternoon but her breakfast dishes were undone, and I noticed too that her beds were unmade, and there was considerable dust around; also a worn spot on the kitchen floor. And her children were dirty.

She continued to give me a critical stare, although I was dressed very neatly and plainly. We talked of various things and then I mentioned that my husband had given me a sewing machine, of which I was very proud. (Mother never had a sewing machine, and us children often wore torn clothes.) When I spoke of the sewing machine, Aunt Kit laughed very loud and long in my face, as if to say, "Why do you try? You'll never have anything or be anybody." Looking back on our conversation, I wonder why things are like this. Can you shed any light on the situation?

INCIDENTALLY, John and I had a simple church wedding. I wore a suit and had one attendant. John paid for everything except my clothes, and after the ceremony we had our own home waiting. None of my aunts had this when they married; in fact, none of my relatives has any money to speak of. I would like to be on better terms with all the relatives on my mother's side, but there seems to be a wall or something, that blocks even the slightest friendly gesture. Please discuss the problem. E. P.

DEAR E. P.: It is probable that the aunt who "seems to pick on" you was also the most actively unfriendly critic of your mother during your childhood,—the relative most vocal and persistent in taunting her face-to-face, and in agitating unkind chatter about her behind her back, but in your hearing. And in those years, perhaps this Aunt Kit perceived your sensitive, reproachful and possibly mutely defiant reaction to her loud-mouthed hostility to your mother.

Thus a sense of sworn enmity may have developed between you, subjectively, that never has been put into words, or brought into the open and fought out bluntly. And you, at least, may not be conscious of this emotional strife, because ingrained fear of her hateful disposition probably inhibits your vengeful dislike of her.

It seems apparent that in relation to Aunt Kit, you unconsciously identify yourself with your mother, as the meekly helpless victim of Kit's clawing, and at the same time you feel compulsively driven to avenge the injustice.

These dual feelings, of being defensive victim and would-be vindicator, operate outside your awareness; that is, they are "unconscious" with you; so that you think you approach Aunt Kit in a spirit of open good will. But it seems she has a neurotic's canny insight into your reflexes; and thus armed, she knowingly maneuvers for hateful supremacy when you appear. This construction of the situation is suggested by the implicit purpose of your post-marital visit to her, and the aggressively knowing way in which she blocked and mocked your aim.

AS I GET THE PITCH, there were mixed motives for your visit. There was a wistful hope of making a hit on your aunt at last, with your nice clothes, new prosperity, etc., thus figuratively elevating your mother too. Also there was a latent intent to look down your nose at Kit's squalid domesticity, as pay-off for the snide treatment she dealt your mother in the old days. But Kit, in malice and envy, was militantly prepared against being "impressed" or delicately needled. That's the meaning of her critical stare, and sneering laugh at your reference to good fortune.

You are definitely "somebody" in the gentle dignity of your personality; and you already have a great deal else, from the world's viewpoint, in your good marriage and the solid fact of owning your home. So don't let Kit's sneers blind you to your true worth and blessings.

Your only drawback is an inferiority complex, that she helped pin on you,—which keeps you from appreciating your many fine qualities and expressing them happily. My advice is, let go of your churlish kin psychologically, don't sue "acceptance" from them; and seek satisfactions of the heart with kindly friends who have social interests sympathetic to yours. M. H.

D. C. Norwegians Meet Royalty

By Marie McNair

NORWAY'S FUTURE RULERS, Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha, met some hundred or more of their compatriots at the cocktail hour yesterday at a reception given by the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne.

The fete followed a luncheon at the Swedish Embassy with Ambassador and Mme. Boheman hosts to a company of about a dozen, and preceded a dinner given by former United States Ambassador to Moscow and Mrs. Joseph Davies.

Looking like any average couple in the U. S. A., the prince and princess stood in the receiving line, he with a cigarette almost constantly dangling from his lips. Crown Princess Martha, whose hair has grayed since she lived in Washington during war days, is as charming as her ruddy-cheeked husband. Yesterday she wore a black taffeta frock with a side draped pouff, a single diamond pin at her shoulder and a double strand of pearls. Mme. Morgenstierne's black frock of taffeta had an overlay of lace and a pearl necklace with diamond rondels was about her throat.

The hundred or more guests asked to meet the heirs to Norway's throne included members of the embassy staff and their wives, and the three Norwegian Societies of Washington—Sons of Norway, the Norwegian Society and the Norwegian Ladies Aid. In addition, Charles Ulric Bay, United States Ambassador to Norway, who is home on leave, was there with Mrs. Bay.

The Ambassador and Mrs. Bay will return to their home in New York today to be with the three Norwegian children they have adopted—the eldest a boy of 6.

YES, WASHINGTON has changed, Crown Princess Martha has found in her first visit back since she lived at the Merle Thorpe's country place, Pooks Hill on the Rockville Pike. A drive to the former estate was a surprise to their royal highnesses who discovered that the sweeping park is now an apartment development, although the house that the crown princess and her children occupied still remains.

They noticed, too, the trees that once lined Washington's streets and avenues have in many instances been removed in the march of progress. But they still find the city beautiful.

It's been five years since the crown princess was in Washington, although she came to this country three years ago for an operation on her back performed successfully in Boston. "I'm a hundred percent now" she said yesterday with a smile.

CLIMAXING A BUSY day yesterday, their Royal Highnesses and the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne whisked off later to Tregaron, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies' estate on Klingle rd.

The 26 guests sat down at a table decorated with tiny vanda orchids and gardenias and ate from the exquisite turquoise blue Sevres service. After dinner there was a movie, one of the new musical films.

MRS. ROBERT GUGGENHEIM was hostess at luncheon yesterday at Firenze House, her estate on Broad Branch rd., in honor of Mrs. Myron Cowen, wife of our Ambassador to the Philippines.

The Ambassador and Mrs. Cowen have been in this country several weeks on leave and by telephone yesterday Mrs. Cowen assured their 15-year-oold daughter in Manila that her parents would be home by Christmas. Miss Cowen will celebrate her birthday today.

MR. AND MRS. GUY MARTIN—she was Edith Kingdon Gould—asked their friends for cocktails yesterday to meet Mrs. Martin's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Maughan Gould, newcomers to Washington.

Mrs. Martin, who's pretty, with dark hair waved almost to her shoulders, wore a gown of gold and beige metallic tissue and Mrs. Gould, next to her in the receiving line, had chosen stiff black taffeta with purple orchids fastened at the off-shoulder neckline.

Guests were in a constant stream some having been, or just on the way to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morrison's party for Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gardner.

The Ceylonese Ambassador and Mme. Corea were there, she in a bright sari with a gold and emerald chain with matching earrings, which she confided was costume jewelry bought in Washington, and which intrigued friends in Ceylon on her recent visit there.

PLANTING TULIPS—Scattered at the feet of Mme. van Roijen, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, lie 1000 tulip bulbs. Hansen, the gardener, a native of Holland, has been planting bulbs for 20 years. Each one is placed in a hole eight inches deep, to be gone 'til spring. When it's tulip time on S st., there'll be a riot of color in lavender, pink, yellow and white

Diplomats Meet the First Lady

By Elizabeth Maguire

DIPLOMATS AND THEIR WIVES who have recently come to Washington were received yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Truman at Blair House. The gathering was small, numbering 29 in all, and unlike diplomatic receptions at the White House, it was very informal.

Since the White House has been under repair, the annual diplomatic reception, probably the season's most brilliant function in past years, has been discontinued until the First Family again takes up residence at the White House.

Yesterday's guests for the most part were those who have not yet had an opportunity to meet Mrs. Truman. The new Ambassador of Costa Rica, J. Rafael Oreamuno, who presented his credentials to the President earlier Tuesday, attended with Senora de Oreamuno.

THE AMBASSADOR of the Netherlands and Mme. van Roijen, the Ambassador of Greece Athanase G. Politis, and the Ambassador of Portugal and Senora de Esteves Fernandes were among other recently arrived diplomats in the gathering.

The Ambassador of Yugoslavia and Mme. Popovic were guests, as were the Ambassador of Ireland and Mrs. Hearne, the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Herbruger, the Ambassador of Indonesia and Mme. Sastroamidjojo, the Ambassador of Guatemala and Mme. Goubaud-Carrera, the Ambassador of Haiti, Gustave Laraque, and the Ambassador of Israel and Mrs. Eban.

Mrs. Jooste, wife of the Ambassador of the Union of South Africa, attended alone, as the Ambassador is in New York at United Nations. James Barrington, Ambassador of Burma, came without Mrs. Barrington, who is not expected in Washington until the middle of December.

THE SERVICE SET

FOREIGN AIR ATTACHES and their wives were guests at a reception given last evening by the Director of Intelligence, Maj. Gen. Charles P. Cabell, USAF, and Mrs. Cabell for Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, and Mrs. Vandenberg. The party to introduce foreign Air Attaches to General Vandenberg is given annually by General Cabell, but this is the first one to which ladies have been invited.

Standing in the receiving line with General and Mrs. Cabell and General and Mrs. Vandenberg were Gen. Mathew Twining, Deputy Chief of Staff for Air; Gen. Idwal H. Edwards, Lieut. Gen. Howard A. Craig, Lieut. Gen. Edwin W. Rawlings, Lieut. Gen. Kenneth B. Wolfe, Maj. Gen. Richard R. Nugent and Maj. Gen. Gordon Saville.

The party was held at the Bolling Air Force Base Officers Club, from 7 to 9 p. m. Supper was served from a long buffet, and music was furnished by the Air Force orchestra. Mrs. Cabell received in a black velvet cocktail frock, and Mrs. Vandenberg was in black, fashioned with the new trumpet silhouette. Both ladies carried yellow orchids.

Among the guests attending were Gen. and Mrs. Omar N. Bradley, Gen. and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, Gen. and Mrs. Lauris Norstad, Gen. and Mrs. Hubert Harmon, the Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Forrest P. Sherman and Mrs. Sherman, Admiral and Mrs. Felix Johnson, Capt. and Mrs. Floyd F. Ferris, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Alexander R. Bolling and Col. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle.

REAR ADMIRAL AND MRS. H. B. FARNCOMB, who are sailing soon for Australia, were honored last evening at a dinner given by the Ambassador of Australia and Mrs. Makin. The admiral has served at the embassy here as Naval Attache, and with Mrs. Francomb he is leaving December 8 to do service in Australia. The couple are sailing on the Parthia, going back by way of England.

At last night's dinner guests were the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Forrest P. Sherman, the Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. Dan A. Kimball, the Military Attache of Australia Brig. L. G. H. Dyke and Mrs. Dyke, the Assistant Naval Attache of Australia Capt. J. C. Morrow and Mrs. Morrow and Admiral and Mrs. Arthur S. Carpender, USN.

ALONG EMBASSY ROW

BULBS WENT UNDERGROUND yesterday at the Netherlands Embassy. And they won't be seen again till tuliptime. Then there'll be a riot of color in pink, blue, yellow, lavender, black, white, even red.

Mme. van Roijen, wife of the new Netherlands Ambassador, was on hand yesterday to see the plantings of a thousand or more in the garden of the embassy residence. Hansen, a landscape gardener from Holland, planted each 8 inches deep. "It's no trouble," he scoffs. And he confides Americans haven't the same luck his countrymen have with tulips.

Hanson is a specialist in his field, having worked with flowers for 20 years. Tulip bulbs are good for three seasons, he says. After blooming in May their leaves are left standing, to give food to the bulbs. When the leaves start to die, about two months later, the plants are cut half way and each bulb uprooted to be stored in a cool room for the summer. In fall the bulbs are planted again.

Mme. van Roijen exclaimed yesterday at the abundance of bulbs placed in the ground. "At home," she laughed, "I plant them farther apart for economy." It seems traditional at the Netherlands Embassy to have a pretty Ambassadress. Mme. Loudon and Mme van Kleffens, who proceeded Mme. van Roijen at the post, were popular. And now Mme van Roijen is winning Washington.

THE AMBASSADOR OF MEXICO and Senora de la Colina were honor guests at a dinner given last evening at the United Nations Club. Following dinner two Mexican films were shown with a short introductory speech by the Ambassador.

PARTY PARADE

A PARTY FOR Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Webb Gardner was given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson Morrison at their home from 6 to 8 p. m. Mrs. Morrison is president of the Women's National Democratic Club, and her honor guests are the son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. O. Max Gardner, widow of the late United States Ambassador-designate to London.

Mrs. O. Max Gardner came down from New York for the party with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Burgess of New York, and Mrs. J. D. Lineberger of Shelby, N. C.

The Associate Justice and Mrs. Tom Clark were guests, as well as the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, the United States Ambassador to Nicaragua Capus Waynick, the United States Ambassador to Norway Charles Bay and Mrs. Bay, Mr. and Mrs. David Stowe and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Pauley of Los Angeles, Calif.

Assistants at the party were Mrs. Stowe, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. Brannan, Mrs. Charles Murphy, Mrs. Braxton Jones, Mrs. Paul A. Porter, Mrs. Lindsay C. Warren and Mrs. Mastin White. Yellow mums and yellow roses mixed with white mums decorated the dining room and recreation room where buffet supper was served, and Barnee furnished the music.

The honor guests were married in California in September. This is their first visit to Washington since their wedding.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

ABDUL RAHMAN AZZAM PASHA, secretary-general of the Arab League, was the guest in whose honor the Undersecretary of State, James E. Webb, entertained yesterday at a luncheon at Prospect House.

Other guests were the Ambassador of Pakistan, M. A. H. Ispahani; the Minister of Syria, Faiz El-Khouri; the Minister of the Hashemite Kingdom of the Jordan, Dr. Yusuf Haikal; the Charge d'Affaires of Egypt, Dr. M. B. Chiati; Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup; Assistant Secretary of State George C. McGhee; Burton Berry, deputy Assistant Secretary of State; G. Lewis Jones of the State Department; Maj. Gen. J. H. Burnes of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, and Samuel Kopper of the State Department.

CLOVIS McSOUD entertained at a reception yesterday for Mahmoud Sadaka Abdelkhalik of Lebanon, publisher of the Lebanese newspaper Al-Bayan.

Gen. Marshall to Be Speaker

THE WOMEN'S NATIONAL PRESS CLUB will hear an address by Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall at a 12:45 p. m. luncheon November 28 in the Presidential Room of the Statler Hotel. New Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg will make a brief maiden speech at this luncheon.

Ask Anne

There's a First Time for All Noble Experiments; Including That Of Roasting the Festive Bird

WITH TURKEY DAY tomorrow, kitchen interest is centering on preparation of the feast. It's a task approached with anxiety by the novice cook, but there's nothing like the happy glow she'll feel once it's served —and praised!

DEAR ANNE:

I am cooking Thanksgiving dinner at home for the first time this year. This means baking a turkey and I would like to ask some questions. How much stuffing will I need? Can I stuff the turkey ahead of time? Should I baste it? How many minutes of roasting to the pound?

T. P. W., Washington.

Yes, you can stuff the bird ahead of time and store it in the refrigerator. Take it out and let warm to room temperature before cooking, though, or else add 1½ hours to roasting time.

Allow 1 to 1¼ cups dressing to the pound. Baste occasionally. Or cover with fat-moistened cheesecloth and baste only in fat dries out. Remove cloth toward end of roasting if more brown is desired.

The following timetable is for stuffed weight of bird. This is about the same weight before being drawn. If you buy a ready-to-cook bird, remember that stuffing adds about 3 pounds to weight.

STUFFED WEIGHT	OVEN TEMP.	TOTAL COOKING TIME HOURS
8 to 10	325 degrees F.	3 to 3½
10 to 14	325 degrees F.	3½ to 4
14 to 18	300 degrees F.	4 to 4½
18	300 degrees F.	4½ to 5
20	300 degrees F.	5 to 6

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me how many loaves of bread I will need to buy to stuff a 16-pound turkey? Is fresh bread best?

Ethel T. Colton, Arlington, Va.

Bread which is a day or two old is best for stuffing. Removing the crusts and cutting the bread into cubes is a good way to prepare it. A 1-pound loaf of bread will yield about 8 cups of bread cubes (2 quarts). For a 16-pound turkey, you'll want around 4 quarts, therefore, 2 loaves of bread.

Incidentally, have you thought of using a ready-prepared stuffing mix? This has herbs, spices and egg yolks already blended into the crumbs. All you need to do is add shortening melted in boiling water. Saves a lot of trouble! You'll want at least two 8-ounce bags for your turkey, three if you're very fond of dressing.

DEAR ANNE:

My gravy is seldom a success and I would like some suggestions about making it before I tackle the Thanksgiving turkey. What is the best way to add flour so that there won't be lumps? And how can I make it good and brown, with real flavor?

L. P. B., Bethesda, Md.

After your turkey is roasted, remove it from the pan and utilize the drippings—including the delicious little brown bits—in your gravy. Put turkey on platter or in roaster top and keep in warm place until served.

Measure out as much of the rich drippings as you need into a skillet. To make 6 cups of gravy, use ¾ cup drippings and ¾ cup flour. Add flour and mix well. Brown flour slightly.

Meanwhile, put 2 cups of either the water in which giblets were cooked or milk into the roaster, from which drippings have been poured. With this, you can cook up all the little bits left in the pan. Gradually add this and 4 more cups of milk or stock from giblets to the mixture in skillet. (To add flavor, mushroom soup can be used in place of part of milk.) Stir constantly with pancake turner to make smooth gravy. Add 1 tablespoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper, chopped cooked giblets, and a little "poultry seasoning" if desired. Cook 10 minutes to improve flavor.

Keeping Your Chin Up Does Wonders to Preserve Youth

By Ida Jean Kain

IN HOLLYWOOD it's no secret that the most difficult spot to camouflage is that line from the dimple in the chin to the base of the throat. And that is the reason the glamorous stars take every means to keep the throatline young and beautiful.

On this score, milady quickly thinks of chin straps, muscle oils and bracing astringents. But these are only the finishing touches. Actually, beauty aids are not in it with resistance exercise and perfect head carriage.

It's muscle tone or lack of it that makes or breaks the throatline. Correct head posture—head high with chin level—discourages the throat muscles from falling down on the job. Still, once past young middle-age, it can't all be left to head carriage!

THE "FULL TREATMENT" for keeping the throatline young and beautiful includes good nutrition, beauty creams and resistance exercise . . . braced by good head carriage. We don't think of diet as having much to do with the chinline . . . ah, but it does. On a too-fast reducing diet and one that is lacking in essential tissue-building nutrients, the chinline goes down hill in a hurry.

The beauty of cream and warm oils is that they help keep the skin pliable, which wards off wrinkles. In smoothing on cream or oil, be careful not to stretch the skin. Massage gently, following the muscle structure. Begin at the base of the throat and stroke upward to counteract gravity.

While the cream is on, take an exercise. Resistance exercise works the muscles without pulling the skin and works them harder because of the resistance offered by opposing muscles. Here is one worth doing . . . it will take up the sag and help banish a double chin. Don't overdo, but take it daily.

THIS EXERCISE WORKS directly on the platysma, which is a thin sheet of muscle that contracts the skin under the chin. Cup chin in hand, and resisting with the hand, push your head slowly downward. Relax for a second, then resist with neck muscles and push up until chin is just level. Repeat three times, slowly.

Probably the real reason actresses keep young-looking throatlines, birthdays to the contrary, is the continual practice of beautiful head carriage. It's their stock in trade.

Religion 40 Years Behind Times, Pastor Says

Religion is generally lagging 40 years behind in dealing with problems of the day, a nationally known Congregational minister and author charged yesterday.

The Rev. Frederick K. Stamm urged ministers of area Congregational Christian churches at their annual meeting at Christ Church, Silver Spring, to "apply the Bible to everyday life."

"Christianity is not an essential force in our community life because it hasn't been vitalized at the grassroots level," he asserted.

"Ministers generally are afraid of problems along racial, capital and labor and international lines.

"But," Dr. Stamm said, "their approach to the crucial problems of today is the same as four decades ago, an emotional orgy of pure evangelism."

John Halko, director of research and church planning for the Washington Federation of Churches, reported area Congregationalism had increased 41.6 percent in the last decade to a membership of 5729 in 11 churches.

Halko said the denomination in that period spent $615,000 for new buildings, enlarging and remodeling, and predicted that "close to $500,000 would be spent by the church in the next decade."

The association elected as moderator Dr. Walter G. Daniel, a lay member of the Plymouth Congregational Church and professor of education at Howard University.

The Rev. J. Fred Zimmerman, First Congregational Church, Frostburg, Md., was elected associate moderator; the Rev. Alfred Hurst, Cleveland Park Congregational Church, secretary; John Daiker, lay member of Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, auditor; and Clifford Armhold, lay member of Ingram Memorial Church, the Rev. Philip Gordon Scott, Westmoreland Congregational Church, and Mrs. Armond W. Scott, lay member of Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, trustees.

GOLDEN TEXT: Psalms 107: 21,22. Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving and declare his works with rejoicing.

One On the Aisle

A Scottish Castle Looms for 14th St.

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT THE TOWN: Any minute now you'll be seeing a Scottish castle rising on 14th st. . . . This will be the brain child of Vincent Iorio, the oh-so-sincere manager of the Trans-Lux whose greatest joy in life comes dreaming up those facades that are seen to best advantage as your trolley slides down 14th st. . . . Vincent's been cooking his castle ever since he learned that his theater's Thanksgiving Day epic is to be Orson Welles' version of "Macbeth," a treat completed some years ago but held up while Republic ironed out the burrs, which early audiences had found utterly unintelligible . . . This cavernous facade on 14th st. will set the management back something like 400 bucks; this is a bit steeper than the bill usually runs, but the T-L people have faith in Orson's Shakespeare . . . Vince draws out his ideas to scale and 14th street's E. R. McCurdy executes his plans; they're usually put up by overtime usher help, a crew that sometimes works till 6 in the morning . . . Fronts that most impressed the general public as well as Vince's New York bosses (who see pictures of them if they don't pay an in-person call) were for "Portrait of Jenny," which was a dignified job emphasizing lettering; "Forbidden Street," which had a lamppost in the street to canine consternation; and last summer's "Destination Moon," in which the Navy cooperated by showing you what it is considering about astral visits . . . Many organizations, governmental or otherwise, always are pleased to cooperate in lending materials for the facades; the National Guard's half-track and trailers, for instance, got whipped up about "Home of the Brave." . . . No other theater in the city goes in for such flossy fronts and only New York's Rivoli, the T-L people believe, can top Vince's eye-whoppers.

PVT. BRIDWELL, of the Press Building's well-guarded sixth floor, is a happy, happy man this week. . . . June Haver arrives at the Capitol in "I'll Get By" and the Bridwell uniform is stuffed with reviews from the West Coast with which to impress hardened reviewers that Miss Haver is the finest little lady on the screen.

NIGEL PATRICK'S accent as Kelada, "Mr. Knowall" of the Playhouse's "Trio," has brought some questions, "or," as one correspondent puts it, "is that really his accent?" . . . Anything but, mes amis; Patrick, who happens to be one of my best friends, is a London stage actor with a naturally clipped, bright British accent, but his shrewd ear has served him well for many character roles since his pretty boy juvenile days. . . . For Mr. Kelada he seems to have been remembering his Army career as a colonel in the Levant. . . . I knew Nigel out there, where I was a sergeant, hobnobbing, to the distress of my superiors, with a snappy colonel who used to delight in embarrassing me, a Stars and Stripes correspondent, by having me paged in "Officers Only" spots as "Sergeant Coe." . . . When I visited him in London last year, our theater-going was constantly punctuated by autograph seekers, and I doted on the reflected glory. . . . I'm sure you'll agree with me that Patrick's splendid, as "Mr. Knowall"; he's even more dynamic as himself.

ANN CHODOFF, who's so delightful as Kate in "The Taming of the Shrew" at Arena Stage, can afford to be arch when anyone asks her if she believes her final lines of a wife's treatment to her husband . . . "I haven't heard my husband complain lately," she says . . . Lately her homely duties have included running a big house and looking after three youngsters . . . Before her Arena bow, blond Ann came to your living room as Kathleen in the Aldrich family radio show and had a turn in "Pal Joey" with Gene Kelly . . . What counts is that she's giving a fine, witty performance in that exuberant revival.

DONALD PIMM, of the Mount Vernon Players, is immensely proud of his group's production of "All the King's Men" . . . Before he wrote it as a novel, which inspired the hit screen play, Robert Penn Warren wrote it as a verse play titled "Proud Flesh," presented at the University of Minnesota, which prompted highbrow Eric Bentley to proclaim: "Warren potentially is as much a playwright as he is a poet and novelist . . . I know of no single fact which gives me more hope for American drama" . . . Warren has since revised his first version and it is this which will be played in the intimate Undercroft Auditorium early in January.

RICHARD DIRKSEN, assistant master of the choristers of Washington Cathedral, and Stanley Smith, director of Ft. Belvoir's hundred-year-old drama group, "Essayons," will direct Kurt Weill's "Down in the Valley" for the Agriculture Choristers, which will present this folk opera in the Jefferson Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday nights, November 29 and 30. John O'Beirne, who appeared in the Mt. Vernon production last year, will have one of the leads; Evelyn Lear, Don Philip Crane and Lou Aiken are the other principals. . . . Seats now at the Stabler agency in Brentano's.

BOB WATERS, a 19-year-old sophomore, gets the leading role in Christopher Fry's "Thor, with Angels," which will open a two-week run at Catholic University December 2. . . . The lad won the New Jersey championship in the National Forensic League contest in '49 and wound up in second place in the area competition. . . . The role will mark his first at C. U.

BILLIE DAWN DAWNS: Judy Holliday plays the former chorine, Billie Dawn, who educates herself in Washington. In this scene from the Gayety's comedy hit by Garson Kanin are Larry Oliver, as the seated senator, and Otto Hulett, the junkman's puzzled pal. Miss Holliday's playing of Billie is a welcome, if belated highlight for the Washington stage.

Dollar Raise Averts Strike By Pie Bakery Route Drivers

Union route men last night voted to accept a $1-a-week raise in base pay offered by Washington's pie manufacturers.

Robert Lester, secretary and business agent of Bakery Drivers, said the raise, which brings the Local 33, AFL Teamsters Union, route men's base pay up to $52 per week, will be retroactive to last June 30, and effective until June 30, 1951.

The 70 union members affected, who receive commissions on sales as well as base pay, had asked a $3 raise, under threat of striking. Last year the route men conducted a six-week strike against the pie makers.

The acceptance followed the dissolution of another stalemate in which the pie manufacturers narrowly averted a strike by 180 union bakers and helpers.

On Saturday night, only a few minutes before a midnight strike deadline, the pie manufacturers—Colonial Bakery, Connecticut Pie Co. and Crusty Pie—agreed to a 10-cent-an-hour raise demanded by Local 118 of the AFL Bakers Union, retroactive to May.

Hutchins Deplores 'Thought Control' At Universities

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (NYHT). External control of American universities through loyalty oaths and other means prevents the university from exercising its vital role as a center of free and independent thought, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, said tonight at Columbia University.

Dr. Hutchins delivered the first in a series of lectures at Columbia sponsored by the Sidney Hillman Foundation.

Warning that free thought centers are indispensable to the progress and security of the Nation, Dr. Hutchins assailed "misguided" individuals who seek to force conformity on academic bodies. "University professors," he said, "whether or not they have tenure, are silenced by the general atmosphere of repression that now prevails."

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

THANKSGIVING is a time to choose a restaurant that simply specializes in food, and just spend several hours enjoying yourself.

Outstanding hereabouts is Normandy Farm, the old estate near Potomac which Marjory Hendricks has made into a superb eating place in the French provincial manner. The food has that touch of perfection, the menu includes everything Miss Hendricks can think of to please her guests, and the fireplaces are enormous, the countryside beautiful. Water Gate Inn, Miss Hendricks' other restaurant, is right downtown—on the Potomac.

Its dinner will be somewhat different, because Pennsylvania Dutch cooking reigns here. The Pennsylvania Dutch are fabled eaters, however, so the Thanksgiving gourmet will fare well.

Lebanon baked hickory smoked ham, with spiced red cherry glaze, is smoked in the Mennonite way. Roast tom turkey and roast beef will be the same. Dinner will begin with little fruit baskets carved out of oranges. Then will come Tzvviville soup, unprounceable but actually just the Mennonite form of onion soup. The Pennsylvania Dutch favorites of Dutch apple-cheese pie, brandied mince meat pie, yum yum spice cake and pumpkin pie will complete the dinner.

Allison's Little Tea House, 15 minutes out of Washington on South Arlington Ridge rd., has service, surroundings and cooking of the same caliber. In a sprawling house overlooking Washington, filled with antiques, it will serve an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner at 1, 3 and 6. By reservation only.

The Colony, across from the Mayflower, is beautifully appointed in a Grecian motif. The dining room has excellent service and food, and there's an air of well-planned restfulness and leisure about it.

Across the street, on 18th st., the New Orleans Room of the Old New Orleans night club should not be overlooked. The main floor dining room is quiet and stately, with high ceilings and enormous murals of historical New Orleans. The food is excellent.

Napoleon's, on Connecticut ave., provides good surroundings in the Flemish Room, and the food is good. The Iron Gate, on N st., is the old stable of a famous general. There will be autumn flowers and a roaring fire to give more coziness to the quaint stalls, made over into booths. Brook Farm, in Chevy Chase, also has paneled walls, colorful decorations and fireplaces to go with its Thanksgiving dinner.

California Narcotics Problem Told to Kefauver Committee

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—California's attorney general-elect told the United States Senate Crime committee today that the narcotics traffic was Northern California's "biggest problem."

Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, San Francisco district attorney and his assistant, Thomas Lynch, were the only two witnesses to appear at the morning session of the two-day San Francisco committee hearings.

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) told reporters after the closed morning session that the bookmaking racing wire, tossed out of California two years ago, was still worth $500 a week to a local former operator of the race information service.

Kefauver said records from Chicago indicated that Stanley Cohen, former operator of the Pioneer News Service, pays that amount each week to the General News Service of Chicago, a subsidiary of the Continental News Service.

Without further elaboration Kefauver also said testimony to the committee by an undisclosed source indicated that Northern California bookmakers were getting horse race information, possibly through a radio and telephone linkup between San Mateo County and a radio station at Tiajuana, Mexico.

Kefauver said the opening session did not touch upon charges by the California Crime Commission that certain big-time gamblers had escaped income prosecution by purchasing stock in worthless Nevada mining corporations and other tieups with Internal Revenue officials.

The committee chairman said that Brown and Lynch also said that the 1947 slaying of Chicago gangster Nick DeJohn in San Francisco was tied in with the notorious Mafia.

Kefauver said San Francisco official told the committee the Mafia has "terrorized and blackmailed" immigrant Italian merchants.

Indictment of Sheriff At Miami Is Voided

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Florida Supreme Court today ruled Sheriff Jimmy Sullivan's indictment by a Dade County (Miami) grand jury for non-enforcement of gambling laws "void and ineffective."

The court said the indictment failed to charge Sullivan, now under suspension, "with the commission of any crime against the laws of Florida."

The court ruled the count against Sullivan charging non-enforcement of gambling laws did not "charge that petitioner wilfully or corruptly failed to perform any duty imposed on him by law or that he acted corruptly."

The court's ruling was not on Sullivan's suspension which can be lifted only by the Governor or the State Senate.

Ex-Klan Head Wins Extradition Skirmish

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 21 (AP).—D. C. Stephenson, the former head of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, today was granted a writ of habeas corpus in his fight against being returned to Indiana as a parole violater.

District Judge Frank E. Reed set December 15 as the date when Indiana authorities must present reasons why Stephenson should be returned to the State.

Postlude

Philadelphia Orchestra Magnificent

By Paul Hume

A Washington premiere of an important new American work plus a seldom heard suite by Ravel opened last night's Philadelphia Orchestra concert in Constitution Hall.

But the great moments, almost with the force of a major novelty, came in the second half when Rudolf Serkin joined Eugene Ormandy and the orchestra in Beethoven's fifth and final piano concerto in E Flat.

Few concertos are played as often as this one. Young pianists seem over eager to take a crack at it. Small orchestras program it with amateur pianists, as if Beethoven's era, with its relatively small orchestra, made it a vehicle for lesser groups.

Seldom is it heard with the magnificent clarity Serkin gave it last night. Seldom does any pianist command in such equal degrees Serkin's consummately scaled dynamics, and his controlled power.

The evening's premiere was the third symphony by Paul Creston. The new work is in three movements, with sub-titles: The Nativity, The Crucifixion and The Resurrection.

In Ormandy's intense reading, it won a warm reception from the filled auditorium. It deserves the approval.

The cello solo against low brasses in the second movement, and the violent plucking of the strings against winds later in the same section, make it an opposite approximation in sound of the scene from which it derives.

All three movements proceed logically to their climaxes, with the second dying away in a unique and touching finale. The whole was played in the best Philadepphia tradition. No composer or audience could ask more.

Making his program an unalloyed Joy, Ormandy opened with Ravel's homage to Couperin. The delicacy of his reading was reflected in the playing of the entire band, but especially in the winds of Tabuteau and Kincaid. Here is French creative genius at its summit.

Illness Prevents Appearance of Arrau

The National Symphony Orchestra announces that Claudio Arrau, who was to have played Mozart and Liszt with the orchestra tonight is ill and cannot appear. In his place the orchestra will play the D Minor Symphony of Franck.

Charterites Name 10 New Directors

The Montgomery County Charter Committee named six new directors last night for three-year terms and two to fill vacancies for two- and one-year terms.

At its first meeting since sweeping its ticket into office at the November 7 general election, the committee elected Thomas C. Kelley and Mrs. Dorothy Himstead, both victorious County Council candidates, along with Donald A. DeLashmutt, W. H. McClenon, Charles W. Fritz, and Charles K. Davies for three-year terms.

John C. Reid, also named to the council, was chosen for the two-year term, while Dr. H. B. Morris will serve for one year.

A feature of the meeting, attended by 250 persons at Montgomery Junior College in Takoma Park, was an analysis of the recent election by Herman C. Loeffler.

He said there is evidence of "a growing Republican trend in Montgomery County, despite an overwhelming Democratic registration majority of two to one."

Loeffler attributed the Charter committee's election victory largely to the heavy margin gained in the 18 precincts of Bethesda and Chevy Chase.

Canadian Train Wreck Kills Ten Soldiers

EDMONTON, Alta, Nov. 21 (AP).—A late running troop train collided head-on today with a transcontinental passenger train on a mountain hillside, killing 10 Canadian soldiers and injuring 44 other persons.

In addition, four members of the crew—the engineer and fireman of both locomotives—were reported missing. The train was carrying Canadian soldiers to Fort Lewis, Wash., for training as part of the United Nations forces fighting in Korea.

Lano Answers 3 Warrants On Pinballs

Sam Lano, who once operated slot machines in Prince Georges County, yesterday voluntarily turned up in Arlington County Court to answer three warrants in connection with his current Arlington pinball operations.

Warrants were issued Monday night accusing Lano of operating his business, the Arlington Music Corp., 2030 N. 16th st., without a State license and renting or leasing illegal "free play" pinball machines in Arlington.

Trial Justice Hugh Reid set Lano's preliminary County Court hearing for 1:30 p. m. November 28.

Flanked by his attorneys, Alfred W. Trueax and William C. Nemeth, Lano had no comment for reporters on the warrants. But Trueax said: "He's got nothing to hide."

On Monday, three "free play" pinball machines owned by Lano were confiscated by county police, who nabbed five more last month in "raids" on Arlington stores.

Lano told reporters he lives at 820 Allan st. in Falls Church.

Rapist Sought By Sex Squad Special Detail

A special Sex Squad detail yesterday pursued a promising lead in the Monday night rape of a 17-year-old girl near her northwest home after a woman neighbor described a man who exposed himself 45 minutes earlier, less than a block away.

Numerous tips from neighbors in the 1300 block of Sheridan rd. nw., where the attractive candy store clerk was beaten and raped en route from work about 8:30 p. m., brought the arrest of two suspects. They were released, however, after police checked their stories.

The special detail, working with Sixth Precinct police, said a woman resident of the 1300 block of Rittenhouse st. nw. reported being approached in an alley behind her home by a man who inquired the way to 16th st. about 7:45 p. m. Monday.

She gave him the directions, whereupon he exposed himself indecently, turned away and headed toward 14th st. nw., the woman reported.

The man was described as being between 20 and 25 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 155 pounds, with blond hair, having a slender physique with scars on his chin and wearing a tan or gray sweater.

The rape victim, who was recovering at her home yesterday after being treated Monday night at Gallinger Hospital, told police she never saw her assailant. He came up behind her, grabbed her by the throat and knocked her unconscious, she reported.

A woman passing by later saw the girl lying on the grass between the street and sidewalk and ran into a nearby house to phone police. Meanwhile, the girl regained consciousness and staggered toward her home, several doors away, just as her mother set out into the windy, rainy night to learn why she was late returning from work.

The girl's coat had been ripped open and her clothes were blood-stained and torn.

French to Increase Funds for Defense

PARIS, Nov. 21 (AP).—Premier Rene Pleven will ask the French Parliament for 580 billion francs (about $1,370,000,000) for the armed forces of France in 1951, official sources said tonight.

This would be an increase of 160 billion francs (about 450 million dollars) over 1950. United States aid is expected to yield the equivalent of an additional 340 million dollars.

When Pleven took office in July he pledged a 20 percent increase in arms spending. Today's figure makes the boost nearly 28 percent. It includes appropriations for fighting the Communist-directed Viet Minh forces in Indo-China.

Walter Winchell . . . In New York

White Light Night

Celebs About Town: Sylvia Sidney, the star, confirming the divorce talk and that actor Romney Brent will be her next. Breaking Gina Malo's heart . . . Rudy Vallee being served with a summons near the Essex House on 59th—in the Shuberts' $1,500,000 action . . . Temperamental Marquis de Cuevas wringing his hands and exclaiming: "When the ballet closes—I die!" . . . The Maharanee of Baroda (she's a cigar smoker) sampling pipes in a Fifth Avenue store—while shoppers giggle . . . The Mutual Life Insurance President and Veep, whose names are Washington and Lincoln . . . British Consul Sir Francis Evans taking subtle slaps at the Irish at the chi-chi party for him on the Starlight Roof . . . Elise Rhodes of the "Peep Show" choir, who discourages Stage Door Johns with her address, New Haven, Conn., to where she choo-choos after the show . . . The new Mayor's top exec, Frank Sampson—who used to be in the box-office at the Erlanger.

Sallies in Our Alley: Jerry Bergen, star comic at The Old Knick Music Hall, is about 4 ft. tall . . . Milton Berle, who is 6 ft. 1, heckled: "I see you have a minimum on stage, too!" . . . "Stand up if you're a man," the demitasse snapped, "and I'll blacken both your knees!" . . . Groucho Marx's snapper: "If I had a huff, Id leave you in it!"

Midtown Vignette: Tennessee Williams, the playwright, is a simple guy . . . His press staff has no photos of him, except informal poses . . . The other matinee they sent the N. Y. Times one of his likenesses to go with the announcement of his new play, "Rose Tattoo" . . . The Times man phoned that he couldn't publish a picture of a Pulitzer Prize Winner in his shirt sleeves . . . "Sorry," said the press-agent, "but there are no other photos of him" . . . The paper published it, anyhow . . . After painting a coat on him.

Memos of a Midnighter: Nancy Oakes, the heiress to all those millions, is seeking mater's permission to wed again. Won't reveal his name . . . Most interested bystander in the Johnny Johnston-Kathryn Grayson crash is Beverly Tyler . . . The newspapers recording the drowning of Mrs. Frederick Ecker, wife of the Met Life chairman, didn't mention she was once French tennis champ . . . The Berle rehearsal studio was the scene for a furious fist-fight between brothers . . . Lady Esther's top man married Suzette Burns, an attractive English lass from Bombay. Montgomery Votes Theater Exemption Amendment of the Montgomery County zoning ordinance to permit exemptions for summer theaters in residential areas was voted yesterday by the Montgomery County Council at its meeting in Rockville.

The council said it acted because of the Olney Theater, but that the amendment is not designed for its sole benefit. Several other summer theaters have encountered zoning difficulties, it was pointed out.

The new amendment will permit summer theaters to apply to the Board of Zoning Appeals for a permit. A minimum area of 5 acres with a 300-foot frontage, a minimum 50-foot setback and parking area for guests and employes would be required. The board also must determine that such use will not constitute a nuisance because of traffic, noise and number of patrons and would not adversely affect the character and future development of the surrounding area.

A-Bomb Seen As Outmoding Building Codes

Modern architecture and the fire-spreading hazards of atom bomb attacks point up the need of new building regulations, a building code official said yesterday.

Emil J. Szendry of New York, technical director of that State's Building Code Commission, stressed the need, particularly in regard to the trend to multi-windowed office buildings and other nonresistant structures.

He spoke at a special conference on "Fire Resistance of Exterior Non-Load-Bearing Walls," sponsored by the National Research Council. Some 100 building engineers and safety officials attended the one-day parley at the National Academy of Sciences.

The United States, said the speaker, has been "fortunate" in recent years in not having had major "group fires" in congested parts of its cities.

Solid masonry walls of old-style buildings, he pointed out, were effective barriers to the spread of fires from building to building in the past. Today's trend however, to more open facings and exterior walls which are supported by rather than which help to support the building are inadequate defense against fire's spread he said.

Hooded Men Lash Worker, Cut Wife's Hair as 'Lesson'

FAIRFAX, Ala., Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Eight men wearing flour-sack hoods lashed a textile worker Sunday night, cropped his wife's hair and said, "We'll teach you to beat children," the victims reported today.

Lucius Singleton, 48, displaying a black eye and raw welts, reported the first violation of the Alabama antimasking law enacted after a wave of floggings around Birmingham 20 months ago.

He and his wife, he told Sheriff J. A. Abney, were attacked as they slept in their bedroom in this textile town. They accused him and his wife of beating and overworking children.

It was brought out that 10 days ago Singleton's 8-year-old daughter by his first wife, Mary Joe, was reported missing for 24 hours. The child was finally found in a cemetery near the grave of her mother. She pleaded with National Guardsmen who found her not to "take me back to my daddy." The child, however, has returned home.

D. C. Troupers Plan Show at Hudson's Bay

The Military District of Washington's contribution to the Thanksgiving "menu" of GI's stationed in Eskimoland—a score of entertainers—will take off tonight from National Airport for Canada's Hudson Bay.

The troupe, which includes several professionals from the Washington entertainment world, varies from an acrobat to a girl who does Hawaiian dances calculated to thaw the ice on Hudson Bay.

The performers will stay in the Far North until Sunday night, bringing cheer and entertainment to American soldiers who "see few women and no entertainment," as the Army pointed out.

Mildred Harvey, local chanteuse, will head the troupe. She has organized the Washington entertainers for this fifth in the series of shows staged for the ice-bound troops.

The Hawaiian dances will be provided by Doris Potts, who works in a Washington doctor's office when not dancing.

Also featured will be the comedy team of Miss Harvey and Naomi Roberts, a Government girl who saves up her annual leave so she can entertain the GIs.

Others dressing in parkas and furs to make the trip will include Doris Cumberland, singer of classical songs; Henry and Carl Koenig, who do a saber dance; Nadine Ames, acrobatic dancer; Glenn Bunch, television entertainer, and Lorraine DuBois, who will dance "Turkey in the Straw" in the northlands.

One Solution

Firm Finds Out How To Make FM Pay

By Lawrence N. Eldred

CHICAGO (AP).—One solution has been found for the puzzle of how to make Frequency Modulation broadcasting profitable.

A young concern here called Functional Music, Inc., turned the corner to profits after its first four months of operation. Howard Lane, its youthful president, says it hasn't shown a loss since.

The company is a unit of Field Enterprises, Inc., a holding company for the various interests of Marshall Field, publisher of the Chicago Sun-Times. The firm has a three-ply operation:

1. IT DISTRIBUTES FM music from its own station, WFMF, to mass private subscribers, including stores, factories, offices, banks, cocktail lounges and restaurants. Background entertainment is the prime use in the latter two classes of subscribers, and to some extent in stores. In the other locations, however, the chief purpose is to build up employe productivity and morale.

2. Functional makes its own FM receivers in two sizes for leasing to subscribers. The company has four plants in Chicago making the sets. One model carries up to 15 speakers, the other 35 to 40. Each set has a crystal control, with its receiving frequency fixed to the servicing station only.

3. Functional also enfranchises FM stations in other cities for similar music service. The franchise is exclusive in each city and makes available to the station Functional's receivers and programming, promotion, and sales assistance. In return Functional receives from the station a percentage of the gross income from the music serviced.

ALL THESE ACTIVITIES, Lane asserts, combine to produce black ink, both for Functional Music and for the FM stations enfranchised.

"Ever since FM radio was introduced to the public about a decade ago," Lane said, "it has been pretty much in the position of a 'loss leader' in the broadcasting industry.

"Its advantages of high fidelity and freedom from interference have long been recognized. But because of its scant horizon-to-horizon coverage, reducing its attractiveness as a mass advertising medium, FM's unprofitableness has been a bugbear.

"Our solution developed out of music service. Our company differs from most in this field in using the airwaves instead of telephone wires to distribute music to our cash customers.

"This cuts costs to about a third to a half of wire distribution. At the same time FM gives much higher fidelity . . . the longer the wires the greater the cost, whereas with FM the cost is the same anywhere within the 40-to-50-mile radius of the station."

TO SATISFY all the needs of its numerous customers on a single frequency calls for highly skilled programming, Lane says. Restaurants and similar subscribers require popular music in the daytime, string ensemble tunes at night.

During the fatigue hours in factories and offices—11 to 11:30 a. m. and 3 to 3:30 p. m.—peppy music is broadcast as an antidote. The objective is to reduce absenteeism, improve labor relations, increase production, and step up office efficiency.

Charges to customers are made on a flat monthly fee basis, depending on the number of speakers in operation. The company services some 325 subscribers in the Chicago area through FM station WFMF, thus, said Lane, surpassing its largest wire distributing competitor.

In New York City, where operations started in May, about 100 subscribers are serviced by WGHF.

Bulbs Are Practically Family Heirlooms

My story about the long-lasting light bulb, like most of my stories, has been topped.

Shirley Noell of 2102 Scroggins rd., Alexandria, Va., writes:

"My grandfather, who lives in Lynchburg, Va., wired his gas chandeliers for electricity when he moved into his present house in 1902.

"The same bulbs that were put in at that time are still in use every night, and burn until the last member of the household has reached home. They burned mighty late during the days when my Daddy and his brothers were in the town's social whirl."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I, too, would like to join the Anti-Harry-Wismer Club. Too often have I groaned at his endless, irritating chatter, his dramatics and his crystal ball.

Who cares where, or with whom, he played golf last week? Why doesn't he just cut out 80 percent of his nauseating verbosity and stick to a recital of what's going on down on the field of play? L. Pierre 6127 Utah ave. nw.

Dear Mr. Pierre:

Doing the play-by-play on a football game is a difficult assignment. Even the best of the sportscasters slip occasionally; perhaps they miss a play or, even having seen it, blurt out the wrong words.

A newspaperman can edit and rewrite; but a broadcaster's mistakes are half way around the world before he realizes he's made a fool of himself.

The result is that most airmen approach their jobs with deep humility. I think Wismer would be well advised to follow suit.

This past Sunday, for example, he reminded his listeners that on a previous occasion he had been given a seat in the end zone, and had squawked about it. The complaints had borne fruit; now he was on the 50-yard line, with a clear view of the field, "and the television fans can check our accuracy."

Unfortunately, this television fan found that Mr. Wismer's accuracy was something less than complete. For example, two Gilmer passes were so pitifully "short" that they were grounded before they got as far as the outstretched fingers of a potential receiver who had dived for them like Pepper Martin sliding into second base on his stomach.

But both times Wismer cried: "It was a little low—and he dropped it." The second time, he added: "Joe is having trouble holding on to those low ones."

Fellows like Gilmer and Justice don't need slanted reporting to make them look good. They can stand on their own merits.

Wismer would do himself and the fans a great service if he'd stop trying to coach and referee from the press box. Calling penalities before the officials call them is bad business—as is his second-guessing of Redskin strategy.

And it's particularly out of place when it comes from a broadcaster who owns a substantial financial interest in the team.

Harry Wismer's job is not an easy one, but I sometimes suspect that his biggest problem is Harry Wismer. Bill

RSVP

James J. Brahms of Olmsted's Restaurant invites me to be present at that eatery at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Occasion is the unveiling of the famous painting, "Township of Wurzburg in Bavaria." He writes:

"The painting was presented to me by the councilmen of Wurzburg. With their compliments, I also received a barrel of the priceless Wurzburger beer brewed by Johann Philipp von Schoenborn on June 6, 1906. The councilmen decreed that the brew be solely for the pleasure of those present at the unveiling."

Well, sir, my knowledge of art leaves much to be desired. But I will try to make up for it with my appreciation of your beer. Deal me in.

WELL, DUNN?

Temple Dunn, director of music at Calvary Methodist Church, was sitting at his organ the other day, running through several selections in preparation for worship service.

A little girl sat down nearby and listened intently for a while. "Hello, Pattie," said Dunn.

"Hello," said Pattie. "Do you know my girl friend, Judith?"

"No, I don't," said Dunn.

"She's about as big as me," explained Pattie, "and she has yellowish brown hair."

"No, I'm afraid I don't remember her."

There was a brief silence, then Pattie leaned over and read off the name of the chorale-prelude Dunn was practicing. "Say," he said, "you're pretty smart to be able to read that well."

"Some day," she replied, "I'll be as smart as you."

"Let's hope you'll be smarter than I am."

Pattie considered that for a moment, then offered: "Well, I DID remember Judith, you know."

IN SINGLES, SILLY

Mrs. Evelyn Hersh of 8001 Blair Mill dr., Silver Spring, Md., dropped in at a neighborhood soda fountain yesterday and asked one of the clerks for change for a nickel.

"Certainly," said the obliging young lady. "How do you want it?"

NAVY JOKE

Guy B. Epling of 5759 13th st. nw. tells me he's heard a lot of jokes about the youthfulness of Air Force officers, but he considers this new version the best:

"A storekeeper was arrested the other day for selling cigarettes to an Air Force officer. The merchant was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a major."

Hospitality Center Needed Here

By Drew Pearson

Some people ill hardly believe it, but herewith is a bouquet to my old deep-freeze pal, Gen. Harry Vaughan.

Vaughan

Ever since the Korean war, 10,000 servicemen have been wandering the streets of Washington with no place to go and none of the hospitality shown them during World War II. For the Nation's Capital—like a lot of other cities—hasn't realized that with the cold war now warm, we civilians ought to shift our hospitality from cold to warm.

An exception is General Vaughan, who has been quietly raising cain with the Treasury and Jess Larson, chief of the General Services of Supply, in order to pry loose the old Belasco Theater for the use of the American Legion and other veterans' groups in entertaining servicemen.

The Belasco Theater enjoys one of the most central locations in Washington. Diagonally across Lafayette Square from the White House, it is adjacent to the old Dolly Madison House, where the life of the fourth President of the United States entertained in the early days of the Republic. But because legitimate theaters have long been closed in the Nation's Capital, the Belasco—believe it or not—is filled with old Government files and canceled checks.

And the Treasury Department, whose files are chiefly concerned, won't release the theater to the veterans for entertainment purposes.

First stumbling block was a Treasury claim that it would cost $20,000 to transport the files to another building. Whereupon Maj. Gen. T. W. Herren, Army commander in the District of Columbia, offered to transport the files in Army trucks, free.

Then the Treasury came up with a new argument—that it would cost the Government $75,000 to find other storage space for the files. Furthermore, the Treasury wants an armed guard to be placed over its canceled checks and it's more convenient to keep a guard over them in the Belasco Theater.

But what Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder doesn't seem to realize is that $75,000 a year is chickenfeed compared to the morale of 10,000 young Americans who don't want to be away from home, but who in serving their country have to be away from home, and need some place to relax evenings.

General Vaughan, recognizing this problem, has done his best to cut red tape. But so far his friends John Maragon and Joe Major seem to have been more successful with Jess Larson regarding surplus property in the past than the general is now regarding hospitality for servicemen.

President's Guard

The folks back in Independence, Mo., are still talking about the strict security precautions taken by the Secret Service during the President's recent visit to his home town. It wasn't at all like other visits, when Mr. Truman casually walked around the main streets, waving to neighbors and chatting with old friends.

Milton Morris, a deliveryman for the Independence Ice & Creamery Co., is one who knows how different Harry's visit was this time. For when Morris wheeled his ice truck into the parking lot at the Reorganized Latter Day Saint Auditorium where Truman was being entertained at lunch, he was met by two Secret Service agents.

Morris was told to leave his pocketknife, his ice pick, and his ice tongs in the truck. He was required to carry the 50-pound chunk of ice to the door of the building in his arms. There the ice was washed—twice—and then handed to a worker inside the building.

Phone Strike

The Senate Labor-Management Subcommittee is rushing a report on labor and strike conditions in the Bell Telephone system.

The report will show that while American Telephone and Telegraph, the mother company, actually dictates labor policy for the entire system, the labor union is forced to deal independently with the local companies, and that "careful and deliberate wage chaos exists in the Bell System. There are over 100 different wage schedules for the single job of telephone operator in the United States."

Starting rates for telephone operators in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and the South are only $27 a week; yet it takes these operators eight years to reach the top rate of $36 per week.

"It is our position," the CIO Communications Workers of America told Senators, "that a wage rate of $36 a week for a skilled operator after eight years' service with the largest and richest company in the world is an unreasonable and improper wage rate."

The committee found that skilled telephone installers and cable splicers often make less than common laborers. In Newark, N. J., common laborers in the building industry are paid $2.12 an hour, while the starting rate for skilled telephone craftsmen is 91 cents an hour. After eight years, a telephone installer still receives one cent less than an unskilled laborer. Yet the Bell System has such a monopoly on the telephone industry that its skilled workers cannot quit and go to work for a competitor.

Senators also found that the Bell System has collected 394 million dollars in rate increases since V-J Day, considerably more than the wage increases paid out.
